"Vulgar, Demoralizing and Wasteful" Joseph Pennell Calls Our Outdoor Advertising

Dean of American Etchers Says Something Must Be Done to Stop the Growing Billboard Hideousness.

NEW YORK, March 27.

"IT'S a fad, that's what it is," said Joseph Pennell. "But it's a cheap, bad, vulgar fad that not another country in the world would tolerate for a week. It is ruining our landscape. It is masking and destroying whatever architecture we have. It is debauching and demoralizing whatever taste there is for art—if there is any such thing as taste, which I doubt. And the only reason it is allowed to go on is because nobody cares anything about such mattters. All American men think of is making money in the quickest and easiest way. You can't get them to be in earnest about anything else—about this cheap, trashy, worthless, wasteful outdoor advertising, for instance. The result is that outdoor America has fallen into the hands of a gang of advertisers—a gang of exploiters—and is at their mercy.

There was no doubt that Joseph Pennell, famous etcher, was in earnest, though the vigor of his vocabulary made that plain.

"I call it worthless," he went on, "because it is worthless. As art—as an expression of something—ninety-nine one-hundredths of the stuff that goes up on these billboards and skysigns is beneath contempt. It's childish. The coloring is crude; the composition hasn't an idea in it; the drawing is not drawing, and the lettering is rudimentary.

"As advertising, also—as a means of making sales—I also very thoroughly doubt if it has any real value. To begin with, most of the stuff that is exploited in this way is the cheapest sort of stuff. Merchants who have something to sell which people really need and want don't have to go to such extremes to attract attention to it.

Defeat Their Purpose.

"And in the second place, the method is so offensive that human nature instinctively revolts against it and protects itself as far as it is able. The billboards defeat their own purpose. People won't look at them if they can avoid it. When we are traveling, instead of looking at the landscape we are passing, we read magazines and papers and keep our eyes inside the car windows. Why? Because we don't want to see the billboards. And yet advertisers are paying out hundreds of thousands of dollars for the space there, in the hope that he will look.

"Think of the waste of that," said Mr. Pennell. "Think of the pitiful waste of the whole business. There are hundreds of miles of those things now and we have gone into a regular spree of putting up new ones. We talk of helping out in the rebuilding of France. Why, the lumber that's been put and is being put into those vulgar atrocities would provide shelter for all the people in the devastated regions. The structural iron—for they're building them with iron frames now—would replace the destroyed bridges. And think of the trainloads of paint that are wasted on them, and think of the wasted ground. The damnable things have grown so big now that they have to be set well back from the tracks to be seen at all. They're rarely closer than 100 yards, and one of the conditions of the contract is that the land in the foreground shall be kept bare of obstructions. If that wasted ground were put in cultivation there's nearly enough of it, I'll venture to say, to feed the country.

All America Same Way.

"All over the country it's the same way. You can't approach a single city of any size by train; you can't motor and come to a village or a cross road, that a herd of these lumbering crimes against everything simple and normal and decent doesn't begin to bellow at you. I've been as far west as St. Louis just lately, and it was the same all the way. And more of them are going up every day.

"I come over from Philadelphia to New York at least once a week, and all along the line I see the nuisance increasing every time I pass, and nobody seems to care enough to raise a voice in protest. The worst spot on the whole line is at Princeton Junction. Princeton—which keeps two professors of so-called art on its faculty! And the little grass plot the railroad built beside its station there is absolutely walled in with these hideous things—20 or 30 of them close together, and so many more in prospect that the gang has actually put up a sort of hut there to house its workmen. Gang—I call it—for that's what it is—a gang of exploiters. They're ruining the landscape and architecture. They're wasting lumber and iron and paint and ground and labor. They're debauching taste by giving millions of ignorant people the notion that there must be something good about the beastly things or all that money wouldn't be invested in them. A vicious gang, I call them, and the question is whether this country is going to be run for their profit or for the comfort and welfare of the people who live in it.

"As I began by saying, not another country in the world would tolerate such a condition. That's proven by the fact that whenever they've tried it on anywhere else they've been promptly run out, as they deserved to be.

"Take England. They attempted to invade England with what they conceived to be their great and modern idea. There were two aspects of the nuisance, the highway and the sky sign, and both received a prompt knockout from the outraged English people.

How England Stopped It.

"Even as here the makers of automobile tires were among the worst offenders in the matter of highway signs. One concern in particular got hold of all the cross-road sites and you couldn't drive anywhere without having them hit you in the face. The Royal Automobile Club, of which I happened to be a member then, didn't enjoy the sensation, so letters were sent out to its members asking their promise to boycott any tire concern which advertised by such methods. The members sent in their signed promises promptly, and then, the situation was brought to the attention of the arch offender. They caught the point at once; admitted they had made a bad mistake and tore their signs down.

"Other billboard offenders could not so effectively be reached in that manner. Also there were the sky signs, which branch of the abuse was passed to extremes we have yet to reach over here. Not merely were signs, electric and plain stuck upon house tops, but they flashed them by stereopticon on tempting expanses of walls, including the outside of the National Gallery and similar pieces of architecture around Trafalgar Square. They even took searchlights and defiled the sky.

"Whenever a cloud drifted over London you could see a sign two or three miles long up there advising or imploring you to take somebody's pills or wash yourself with somebody's soap.

"I suppose America would stand that if it came, but England didn't. Two bills were put through Parliament and are now in effect. No advertising matter can be projected on clouds or the walls of buildings. No billboard can be erected that blocks the landscape. And no sky sign can be put upon a building in such a way as to mask the architecture or blot the skyline.

France Stopped It, Too.

"That's what England did, and routed the invaders. It was direct action. France met the threat to her beauty and taste and decency by an indirect method which was just as effective. She taxed them out of existence. The things earn revenue, don't they?" asked the French. 'Very well; let them pay their share of the public expenses.' So tax of so much per square centimeter was put on. But it was cannily made a graduated tax, increasing rapidly in proportion with the size of the advertising surface. In England you can't have a poster bigger than—as I remember it—40 inches by 60. In France you can have one as big as you care to pay for—but one big enough to be obstructive would cost you in taxes several times what the wildest publicity enthusiast could possibly persuade himself into believing it might be worth.

"The result is that over there poster advertising has become restricted to such places as the inside of railway and subway stations, where it is legitimate enough, harms nobody and does really serve its ostensible purposes of selling things, instead of merely helping exploiters extract easy money from the pockets of a lot of fussy-minded merchandisers who don't realize they're getting very little, if anything, for all the money they're spending—who are merely following, sheep-like, the leader who first fell for this cheap, bad, vulgar fad, as I call it. And another result is that over there this poster advertising is becoming a sort of poor man's picture gallery. Good men are doing the posters, men like Brangwyn, to name one of many. While here, though they prate of art education and spend millions putting up art galleries and buying pictures to improve our general level of culture, we feed the masses on this worse than childish and trashy stuff. It's all the 'art' most of them ever see. For one who looks at a picture in a gallery, the thousand look at

Soviet "Terror" Inspired Dread by Ruses

Government Needed a Scarecrow and He Had to Be the Goat, He Tells Post-Dispatch Correspondent—Says People Think He Spends Time Signing Death Warrants.

"Exponent of Ruthlessness" Defies Anyone to Produce Evidence That He Ever Sentenced a Prisoner Unjustly—Only 4444 Were Executed During Revolution—Foreigners Never Put to Death.

By LINCOLN EYRE,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, March 21.

AT ONE of the Soviet bureaus in Moscow with which I had frequent business there was a minor functionary who had once owned a factory and hence was an ex-bourgeois. This man approached me in the main waiting room of the department in question, where fully a score of persons were seated and delivered himself of a loud diatribe against the Soviet Government.

"We are ruled," he said, "by the scum of the earth, a gang of crooks, whose only thought is plunder. All who oppose them are flung into jail, or killed. You know that 600 are massacred nightly right here in Moscow. The situation is indescribably horrible. They have taken everything we had and now they are taking our lives. And worst of all," he added, at the top of his voice, "is that nobody dare say a word against them."

Now, this embittered accuser of the Soviets knew nothing about me save that I was a foreigner and that I had been sent to his office with an official letter from the Soviet Foreign Office—a fact that indicated at least the amicability of my relations with the Government which he was so violently denouncing. Yet despite his lament that "nobody dare say a word against them," he didn't hesitate to pour his indictment of Bolsheviki into my possibly pro-Bolshevik ears, in the presence, moreover, of numerous others, among whom there might well be spies of the Extraordinary Commission. That he was talking French was scant protection to him; since most of the educated Russians understand that language.

No Punishment for Verbal Attack.

As a matter of fact, among those that overheard him was a dyed-in-the-wool Communist to whom all bourgeois are anathema. When I asked him what would be done to reckless assailants of the Soviets, he replied with a shrug of his shoulders, "Nothing. Words can't harm us. Let him rave." This incident contributed considerably to my relief that the Red Terror had gone through a bleaching process and come out pale pink. It seemed to me that had Bolshevik brutality been what it is pictured—indeed, what it was pictured by him—the ex-factory owner would scarcely have ventured to rail so openly against its authors and that if he had done so anyway, regardless of consequences, he would have been brought severely to book. No punishment whatever was meted out to him, as I had the opportunity of assuring myself in subsequent visits to his department.

I can't say flatly that there is no terrorism in Russia today. I can only say that in my 10 weeks' stay, during which I was free to go where I listed and see what I liked, I saw no signs of the cruelty and ruthlessness that one associated with the term Red Terror. I saw many persons arrested and heard on unimpeachable authority of many others who were languishing behind prison bars. In the largest percentage of cases with which I was familiar, friends of the accused thought, as an accused individual's friends are likely to think the world over, that he was the victim of a miscarriage of justice. But in no case—and this to me is the principal point—was a prisoner held without a definite charge being filed against him and without an opportunity to speak in his own defense. What we know as constitutional guarantees which safeguard a man's life and liberty are lacking altogether. There is neither habeas corpus nor trial by jury. But on the other hand, this sort of protection was discarded during the war by France and Germany and to a cerfain extent by Great Britain. And it must be remembered that Russia is in the throes of both external and internal warfare.

Death Sentences Abolished.

The most striking manifestation of the terror's diminution was, of course, abolition of the death sentence. This step was forecast by Lenine in his speech at the Seventh All-Russian Soviet convention in December. On that occasion he declared that the terroristic methods were simply a legitimate means of revolutionary defense and had been imposed upon the mass of workers and peasants against their will by sheer necessity. "For the Red Terror," the Premier added, "enemies of the revolution, and, above all, the Entente Governments, are responsible. Having sworn its destruction, they never have ceased to stir up against the revolution all sorts of plots and conspiracies, invariably linked with the counter-revolutionary attacks from without."

The text of the decree fixing Jan. 22 as the date after which the infliction of the death penalty by any agent of Soviet justice was forbidden is worth quoting. It reads:

"The crushing of Yudenitch, Kolchak and Denikine, the occupation of Rostoff, Novocherkast and Krasnoyarsk and the capture of the supreme dictator himself fundamentally alter the conditions of our struggle against the counter-revolution. These events completely dislocate the calculations of various counter-revolutionary groups in the interior of Soviet Russia, who thought to overturn the power of the workers and peasants by means of conspiracies, revolts and terrorism. While the Soviet republic was defending itself against the counter-revolutionary forces launched against it by the Entente, the workers' and peasants' Government was obliged to have recourse to extreme measures to suppress the maneuvers of espionage, disorganization and provocation to revolt engineered by the agents of the Entente and Czarist Federals in their pay in the rear of the Red army.

"The defeat of our external enemies and the destruction of the most important secret counter-revolutionary organization within our borders, together with the solidification of the Soviet power thus obtained today permit the workers' and peasants' Government to renounce its right to apply the supreme penalty—death penalty—as regards the enemies of the Soviets. The revolution, the proletariat and the Government of Soviet Russia remark with satisfaction that the crushing of the armed forces of the counter-revolution gives them the opportunity to lay aside the arm of terror. Only the renewal of the Entente's attempts by means of armed intervention or material support of rebellious Czarism Generals to shatter the power of the Soviet and to interrupt pacific labor of the workers and peasants for the construction of a Socialist regime can render obligatory a return to the terror. Consequently the responsibility for a possible future return to this severe weapon will fall entirely and exclusively upon the Governments and ruling classes of the Entente and upon their friends, capitalists and landed proprietors of Russia. For these reasons the All-Russian Executive Committee and Council of People's Commissaries have decided to abolish the application of death sentence either by the All-Russian Extraordinary Commission and its local organs, or by municipal and provincial revolutionary tribunals, including the supreme tribunal attached to the Central Executive Committee. This decision is to be put into effect by telegraphic promulgation.

"Signed by Mameniev for Central Executive Committee, Lenine for the Council of People's Commissaries and Dzerpinski for the All-Russian Extraordinary Commission."

Even "Peters the Killer" Pleased.

It was Peters—Peters the Killer, as he is popularly known outside, though not inside, Russia—who told me of the above decision some days before it was announced. Judging by what I had heard of his blood-thirstiness, I should have fancied him depressed by the news. Instead, he gave a creditable imitation of a man most cheered by the portentous development. "It was to be expected," he observed; "it is the logical result of our victories. The stronger we grow th weaker grows the terror. It was simply a matter of expediency. When we—that is the Soviet Government—are trembling under blows from without and conspiracies within we are obliged to handle our foe a bit roughly. That is the logic of self-preservation, isn't it? Well, I'm glad it is over. Are you going to the opera tonight? Challapin is singing, you know."

With some difficulty I evaded Peters' attempts to swerve the conversation around to music, which, plus poetry, is what he professes to care the most about. We were sitting in his homelike room in the First Soviet House, formerly Hotel National. Books, mostly poetry, were all over the place. On the walls were a few old prints and photographs, among them some snapshots portraying Col. Raymond Robins in a smiling conversation with Peters and other Bolshevik leaders.

"I no longer have any direct connection with the Extraordinary Commission," this young looking exponent of Terrorism who likes poetry and music informed me. "Now and then I sit as a judge at revolutionary tribunals, but mostly I am out at the front as an army commissary. People still seem to think, though, that I spend all my time signing death warrants. You see, in the early days the Government needed somebody to act as a sort of a scarecrow to counter-revolutionaries, to impersonate the Terror, so to speak, so they made me goat." From Lincoln Eyre's article on "Peters the Killer."

IT was Peters—Peters the Killer, as he is popularly known outside, though not inside, Russia—who told me of the above decision (to abolish capital punishment). Judging by what I had heard of his blood-thirstiness, I should have fancied him depressed by the news. Instead, he gave a creditable imitation of a man most cheered by the portentous development. brutality, let me say just one thing—I am so brutal that I have never been able to see an execution, though sometimes it was my duty to be present. I could not stand seeing anyone shot."

Peters said the total number of persons condemned to death for the counter-revolution in the year November, 1918, to November, 1919, was 4444. Of this number 533 were shot in Moscow and more than 500 in the provincial town of Pezae following a White uprising there. These figures (for the accuracy of which I cannot vouch, of course) are the Soviet's official tally of all individuals who were sentenced to death by the Extraordinary Commission or any other Soviet agency during the period specified. "They were all Russians," Peters added; "in fact, we have never yet passed the sentence of death on a foreigner, although some of them richly deserved it. The few foreigners who have lost their lives in the revolution have been killed in the course of a fight or some such manner."

Peters gave me a brief sketch of the Extraordinary Commission's powers and scope. It is a regular department of the Government operating under the Council of People's Commissaries, by whom it is charged with the suppression of all activities dangerous to the revolution, including speculation and sabotage. The Vaytchaykan, the name on which from its initials the All-Russian Extraordinary Commission or Vzerossiski Tchrfavetchainya Kommissia is known and feared throughout all the Russias, is extraordinary in the sense that its power over life and death is or was practically unlimited. Usually it functions through revolutionary tribunals acting as a sort of secret service public prosecutor, examining magistrate and grand jury rolled into one. But where it seems expedient it has had, or rather had up to the abolition of the death penalty, full authority to order prisoners shot forthwith. That it has seldom exercised this prerogative is due to the fact that the conviction of an allied counter-revolutionary by a public tribunal becomes more widely known and thus strikes terror into more anti-Bolsheviki hearts than a sentence secretly and summarily imposed by the sinister Vaytchaykah.

Says Soviets Never Torture Foes.

"Our extraordinary commission," Peters explained, "is like the Committee of Public Safety in the French Revolution, except that among our enemies it had even a more bloodthirsty reputation. Yet, as far as I ever heard, nobody ever accused the Bolshevik of anything so ghastly as putting hundreds of men and women on rafts and drowning them in a river, as the French did in the Loire during their reign of terror. We may shoot our foes because we have to, but we never torture them."

Peters' last sentence, I noted, was almost exactly like that spoken by a woman member of the Dvinsk Vaytchaykan, with whom I talked on the journey to Moscow.

Secret police, in which every Communist is enrolled, in addition to whatever duties he may have in militia and revolutionary tribunals, are all within the jurisdiction of the extraordinary commission. The first two are the Soviet counterpart of the American Detective Bureau and uniformed police. Of the last I shall have something further to say.

Before we parted, after our opera, whither he insisted on my accompanying him, Peters cleared up the related and more often denied allegation that he and Peter the Painter, the Russian anarchist who was killed in pitched battle with the London police under the eyes of Winston Churchill, then Home Secretary, in Sydney street, were one and the same person. "That chap was my cousin," Peters said. "We were not on very good terms, because his anarchist views did not match my socialism. We had a polemic in one of the English Socialist papers, just before the Sydney street affair, I remember."

I also obtained from Peters the details of the notorious pro-Yudenitch conspiracy in Petrograd. According to him, the whole affair was engineered by an English writer, Paul Dukes, who traveled about Russia in disguise and on emerging wrote a series of articles for the London Times.

"Made a Terror" Without Firing a Shot.

"I was not in Petrograd at the time the plot was discovered," Peters said, "but was sent there afterward to 'make a terror,' which I was able to do without killing a soul or even firing a shot—just by advertising my terrible presence." Peters laughed reminiscently and went on: "Naturally I became familiar with all aspects of the plot. It began to develop in the first part of October, after Dukes and other Entente agents had distributed foreign bank notes freely among certain members of the Cadet party, who formed what they called a National Center. In anticipation of Yudenitch taking Petrograd they had already arranged a provisional Government composed of their own leaders, overlooking altogether the so-called Northwestern Government established by the allies in support of Yudenitch. Prof. Alexander Bikoff, ex-State Councilor and member of the Polytechnic Institute faculty, was to have been Premier. The reason Bikoff and his fellow plotters would not recognize Yudenitch's Northwestern Government was, as one of them put it, it was 'semi-speculator;' that is, primarily out for making money.

"The commander of one of the red armies, Ludenkvist, joined in the conspiracy and tried to betray our military operations to Yudenitch by wireless. The Petrograd Extraordinary Commission, however, was onto him from the start, so he didn't get much information through to the enemy. Ludenkvist was shot. Another active agent of the Entente was Berg, a former commander of the eastern division of our Baltic fleet. He admitted he worked for the British counter-espionage bureau at Stockholm, his particular

Stories of Mountain Folk Told Here by Kentucky's Story-Telling Governor

Pride, Honesty, Patriotism and Religious Nature of the People Illustrated by Executive on St. Louis Visit.

GOV. EDWIN P. MORROW of Kentucky, who visited St. Louis yesterday and Friday delivered two speeches here which were regarded by his audiences as rare specimens of oratory, was born, reared and still lives in the mountain district of Kentucky, a section much fictionized, much romanced and, according to the Governor, never yet fully understood or accurately analyzed.

"I cannot describe the mountaineer to you," the Governor said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "but I can illustrate him," and he proceeded to draw from the fund of his stories for which he is renowned. It is conceded in Kentucky that the greatest story-teller the State ever produced was the late United States Senator Bradley. Gov. Morrow is a nephew of Senator Bradley, and Kentuckians now are granting to Gov. Morrow the mantle of his distinguished relative.

"Physically," the Governor began, "the mountaineer is raw-boned, muscular, clean-limbed. He has a deep native vein of religion and the greatest debates to this day in the mountains are debates on religious themes that our present-day pastors out in the world think they settled a century ago. The mountaineer has pride. Bless you, I don't mean pride of blood or pride of accomplishment, the garden varieties of pride. The mountaineer has the pride of primitive virtues still clean and unsullied, pride in his elementals and his elementals are excelled by no race or clan or class or creed anywhere in this world. The mountaineer may be ignorant and the mountaineer usually is ignorant of letters and the softenings of civilization, but, God, he is not common. He is not common."

"You Signed That Note; If It Takes the Roof, Pay It."

"IS honesty a rare virtue? The mountaineer is honest. Before my period of public office, I represented as an attorney a company holding about 40,000 acres of mountain lands and my duties took me many mule or saddle journeys over and through the mountains. On one of the journeys, as night approached, I came to the cabin, the single-roomed log cabin, of 'Lihu Bruce on the Laurel Fork of the Cumberland. Molly Bruce, about 75 years old, came out at my hello and wanted to put up my horse. Not being permitted to serve me to that extent, she began the immediate preparation of supper—fried meats, corn pone and shuck beans.

"Just as I was finishing, in came 'Lihu, who had been across Jellico Mountain to the county seat, and gave me a simple salutation. After supper, 'Lihu, Molly and I gathered about the open log fire in silence. I could see that something was troubling 'Lihu and that he and Molly wanted to talk. So I asked for my bed. Mountaineer homes usually contain beds in three corners and a dresser in the fourth. I went to my corner.

"It was only 8 o'clock and I could not fall asleep, but, after a time, 'Lihu and Molly thought that I had, and 'Lihu began:

"'Molly, you 'member last summer Amos Skidmore come over a-wantin' me to go security of that note for $300?'

"'Yes,' Molly answered him, 'an' I told you not to do it.'

"'I know you did, Molly,' 'Lihu replied, 'but he were a neighbor boy and I signed. Now he's gone and he ain't paid it and they brung suit agin me. I went to town today to see the lawyer, and he tol' me to let 'em git judgment, that they couldn't take nuthin' we had, that the fee exemption give us the work beasts and the homestead and they can't take them frum us. Ridin' home, I got to wonderin' 'bout it, and I want to know what you think."

"There was full 10 minutes of silence. Then Molly began slowly:

"'Lihu, when me and you come here to the Laurel, we were just married. We didn't have nuthin'. You had the mule that your pap give you and I had a milk cow that my man give me. That's all. Neighbors came from the Rockcastle and the Cumberland and helped fell the timbers and notch 'em and raise this cabin. Then our boys and gals come and we raised them hard and rough, but honest, a-payin' as we went.

"'Then the war come, an' the men with the fife and drum an' flag out thar by the bend of the road. You went with 'em and you tuk my boys. After a while you come back, but my boys didn't. They're sleeping at Shiloh. Then the gals married. One's out in the Missouri and 'nother in the Wyoming and thar's nobody on the fork but me and you.

"'Out thar in the barn is two mules whar there wa'n't but one and a milk cow that come down straight from the one my man gave me. They hain't much else but the house raised by honest hands.

"'But, 'Lihu, you signed that note. Your name's to it. If it takes our roof, you pay it, and my

The Young Bucks Who Hitched Nags to Meetin' House Maples.

"THE courts of justice in the mountains are not always show places of the English language," the Governor continued, "but native Judges who may know that L.L. B. does not mean "lie like blazes," often let fall gems of speech."

Lou Lewis, a Circuit Judge of the upper Kentucky River section in the mountains, always made the occasion of a charge to the grand jury one of expounding every law on the statute books with local applications mixed in. Incidentally each of his charges was a political speech, for the Judge was a constant candidate for office. On the occasion that comes to mind, his concluding charge was this:

"Gentlemen of the jury: A most heinous crime has been called to the attention of this court. You all know the Piney Grove meetin' house. The godly elders and deacons thereof, in the goodness of their hearts, went down to the banks of the middle forks of the Kentucky and with great care selected a fine lot of water maples and brung 'em back and planted 'em in the meetin' house yard. Them trees growed and flourished and was doin' fine, but gentlemen of the jury, observe the perversity of mankind.

"'A few wild bucks on a Sunday rid their rags up to the meetin' house and, ignorin' the hitchin' post on the outside, rid their beasts into the yard and hitched them to the aforesaid maples and while the congregation inside wuz a-singin' sweet songs of Zion, them thar beasts gnawed all the bark off uv them thar trees and to-tilly destroyed them.

"'Gentlemen of the jury, I say to you that a man who would do the like uv that would ride a jackass into the Garden of Eden and hitch him to the Tree of Life. Indict 'em gentlemen, indict 'em.'

"He Ain't Lit Yet and He Ain't Goin' To."

"DURING one of my trials of a case when I was United States District Attorney," the Governor went on, "the even precedings were suddenly interrupted by Judge John Patten, who rose up from the bench and pointing a long finger toward the rear of the courtroom, exclaimed: 'Mr. Sheriff, you see John Burroughs a-comin' into this courtroom. Don't let him light. I say, don't let him light. Take him out.'

"The Judge did not reseat himself until a long mountaineer had been removed. Then resuming the bench, he turned to me and said:

"'Mr. Morrow, you may think it passin' strange that I won't let a free-born American citizen come into an open court of justice. But I have good and sufficient reasons.

"'Do you know that, when I were a candidate for this office, that that thar John Burroughs went from one end of the creek futher, a-publicly oratin' that he could order from Sears, Roebuck & Co., and get delivered in good condition across the mountains, a better Circuit Judge than me?

"'I said then that he never could light in a courtroom of mine. He ain't lit yet and he ain't goin' to.'"

Pretty Busy Ganging Whisky, but Ready to Invade Mexico.

THE Governor, telling of patriotism in the mountains, said: "It is a Stephen Decatur degree of patriotism—the call of country is the command of God. Breathitt County, Ky., did not send a man in the first or the second draft. Every man of draft age already had gone." McCreary County, in the mountains, also, led the nation in per capita subscription to Liberty Bonds.

"Even when the little rumpus that Villa created on the border appeared to be leading toward war, the mountains were much concerned. During this period I received a letter from Silas Sullivan. Sullivan lives in Denmark in the mountains. Denmark consists of a postoffice and store combined and a blacksmith shop. The mail of the Denmark Postoffice requires no canceling machine. However, this is the letter that came from Silas at Denmark; mark:

"'Dear Ed: I s'pose you see in the papers where them Greasers is a-gettin' sort of too purt. Well, Ed, you know me for a peaceable man,

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

How to Do It.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am sure that you have no intention of deliberately deceiving your readers, but an uninformed person would most certainly have been misled had he read your editorial of the 18th inst. on Republican mismanagement.

Your article is correct as far as it went, but it went only far enough that its certain result was untruth. It is true that Representative Blanton of Texas, the self-constituted watchdog of the Treasury, has at every opportunity attempted to have eliminated certain positions in the Government service and to reduce the compensation of others. But Representative Blanton is pursuing these tactics for political purposes only. He is attempting to convince the country that it is the Republican Congress that is responsible for the huge cost of government, when it should be well known that it is his own party (Blanton is a Democrat) that is primarily responsible for these matters.

The Post-Dispatch is riding the wrong horse. If you are honest in your endeavors to relieve the people of taxation by reducing the cost of government, I can give you a very valuable tip. The best way to reduce the operating expenses is to put all government activities on a business basis. The first step is to abolish all political appointments. If anyone will take the trouble to run through the Federal directory he will find that the country is paying out millions of dollars each year to men who are appointed to office as a reward for political service only. The writer has been in the Federal service for many years and is personally acquainted with many employes in other offices, and I do not hesitate to state that there is not one in a hundred of these appointees who makes a pretense of earning his salary. Their main activity consists of getting up dinners for their patron whenever he may be in town. These positions should be put under civil service and filled only after competitive examinations. The people could then be assured that they would receive a run for their money and the employes would certainly like it much better. Respectfully, F. E.

Laundry Wages.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Seeing the announcement of the increase in prices from 9 to 20 per cent by the Associated Laundry Owners, due to the increased cost of labor and materials, I wish to say that for the past three years I have been employed in a laundry, starting at $7 per week, and since then have been advanced to $12. I know that the wages in this laundry run from $9 to $14 a week.

Will not the Associated Laundry Owners kindly increase the laundry workers' wages according to the increase of laundry prices?

LAUNDRY WORKER.

The Property Owner.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"Another Victim" writes in your columns on March 18 of his "rent-hog landlord." His article is quite interesting. There is assuredly something wrong with a man whose income has not increased during the past three years. He is certainly not a plumber, bricklayer, paper hanger, coal dealer, painter, decorator, gasfitter, carpenter, ash hauler, janitor, hardware dealer or any other who has dealings with property owners.

It is indeed unfortunate that persons who are otherwise sane and intelligent cannot realize that everything relative to property upkeep (and in fact, all other necessities, so far as the writer knows) has advanced so sharply that it is quite impossible to keep up repairs, pay plumbers' bills, janitor hire, for paper hanging, painting, taxes, etc., on the same gross income derived from the same property three years, or even one year ago. I do not consider that it is necessary for me to quote proven statistics. This man is howling from his side of the fence, and from the tone of his letter, he is perfectly ignorant of the property owners' position. I recently returned from a business trip through several cities, and from my information I am of the opinion that rents in St. Louis are much lower than in other middle or far western cities.

Proper Packing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The business men of the United States could easily verify the statement of Mr. C. H. Ryohard of Hoquiam, Wash., in last Sunday's Ledger, that their best advertising and trade-winner lies in the packing room. Mr. Ryohard states the United States is about to lose the Oriental trade through inferior packing of goods shipped to the Orient and foreign countries.

I know that to be a fact, as I have for over 25 years packed in all lines and all over the states from coast to coast and at all the world's fairs.

I found that a great many of the foreigners brought their own packers with them to some of the fairs, afraid to trust to the American way of some of our packing. I found that the most prosperous firms were those that saw that the goods were packed properly.

HANDS OFF IN GERMANY.

The report from Washington that the administration is opposed to the use of American troops for interference in the German internal troubles is gratifying. The final conclusion as to Russia should be applied to Germany—the Germans must work out their own political problems.

Germany, however, differs from Russia in the fact that Germany was an enemy nation and is under the terms of the peace treaty. She is under certain obligations to the allies and is subject to control from a military standpoint on account of the possible menace of German armies to the safety of her neighbors, and the fulfillment of the treaty's terms.

It is this condition which gives peculiar danger to the German situation. It is manifest that if the Germans are to work out their own salvation the German Government must have a free hand to maintain order and establish law and authority. But it is reported that the allies, at the instance of France, will not permit the Government forces to operate in the Ruhr district, without permission from the German Government for Entente forces to occupy Frankfort and Darmstadt as a guarantee of safety.

Frankfort and Darmstadt are not in the German area of occupation defined by the treaty. German leaders say that the occupation of Frankfort and Darmstadt by allied troops would be the signal of destruction for the existing Government and of complete domination of the Reds. Probably this would be the consequence of an attempt of allied forces to control the Ruhr district.

The situation is fraught with danger. A blunder on the part of the Supreme Council might bring on a conflagration, with Germany organized and united under a Red dictatorship to fight invaders. The end of such a movement cannot be foreseen.

Hands off in Germany is our wisest policy. We have not ratified the treaty, nor entered the League of Nations, but if we had, the course suggested by Mr. Hoover would be wise. He urged that we keep our hands out of European commissions and internal dissensions, except in so far as the latter might, as a menace to peace, come under the jurisdiction of the League. The less we are concerned with the petty entanglements of Europe the better. We should keep a free hand for the larger field of arbitrament.

OIL WELLS AND FORESTS.

When an oil well is pumped out that is the end of it. There is no way to induce nature to refill her subterranean bottles. The thing is done only by the leisurely, time-scorning process of geology which looks upon a century as a mere intermission and which takes no account of humanity's ephemeral requirements.

But the products of the earth that pierce through the surface and come to maturity on a mixed diet of air and soil are all renewable. Unfortunately some of them are exterminated with never a thought of the day of need. As a people we have been wantonly guilty on this score. In the past we have been encouraged in such folly by the fact that just beyond the horizon was a new land of virgin plenty to be occupied at our option. The passing of the frontier has terminated the supposably endless repetition of pioneering and peaceful conquest, but the waste goes on.

Today we are destroying our forests at a dreadful rate. For example, the lumber and timber exports from our Southern States last year totaled almost 800,000,000 feet, or 300,000,000 more feet than the shipments of 1918. Our home demands, too, were extraordinary and very likely will continue so for several years. What is going to happen when we face the timberless age—a condition we are hastening towards?

It is predicted by qualified persons that the great pine forests of the South, for instance, will be exhausted within the next 15 years. If this is true that great lumber industry will pass out along with the oil industry, and two fruitful sources of wealth will have vanished. The inexcusable pity of it is that it is unnecessary. The oil industry may be short-lived, but the lumber industry can be made as permanent as that of growing cotton or wheat. Reforestation is a big word, but it simply means the replanting of trees and their cultivation; the growing of forests as fast as they are cut down. A good deal has been accomplished in this line, but nothing compared to what must be done.

It is a vital proposition which ought to enlist city and country in a carefully calculated program of limited timber consumption and compulsory tree planting.

A UTILITY BOARD ON THE DEFENSIVE.

The tables have been turned with such effect in New Jersey that the State Public Utility Commission is about to take the anxious public's place in an important hearing.

Wearying of combatting before the commission decisions which seem invariably to favor the side of the service corporations, those contending for a square deal have complained to Gov. Edwards. The Governor has appointed a date on which the commission may appear and make answer to a series of interesting questions.

One is why the commission put in effect a zone system which caused state-wide confusion and dissatisfaction. Another is why it employs in inquiries as to valuation and other matters so-called experts long identified with service companies who seem to arrive at conclusions sustaining such companies' contentions. Also it will be asked if it permitted one company to deplete its depreciation fund by $500,000 and use the money to pay dividends on its stock, "and that, too, watered stock." The questions, indeed, cover a good deal of ground and relate to increases in fares alleged to be unnecessary, variations in children's fares in different cities and why 8 per cent has been held to be a proper rate of interest for wealthy, powerful corporations to earn on their properties while 6 per cent is held sufficient for some small local companies.

Utility commissions exercise tremendous powers and are virtually unanswerable to any other authority. To realize that a day of reckoning may come for them as well as for others may have good effects. An exposition on the influences that sway their judgment and the methods by which they reach their decisions may avail for the public's instruction.

AMERICANIZING THE AMERICANS.

Dr. Peter Roberts of New York emphasized an incontestible truth when he declared in a Y. M. C. A. speech in this city that many Americans need Americanization as much as foreigners. It is conceivable that some of those engaged in the laudable Americanization movement may need it.

How many Americans know enough of the history of the science of government to appreciate the fundamental nature of the guarantees incorporated in our governing system? How many know that the selective judgment of the founders of our Government picked the principles on which our institutions rest because they were principles that had withstood the test of time? Those institutions may be given new forms, may be improved to meet the needs of new times, but the principles on which they are based are abandoned only with peril.

Those who disparage those principles, as is the habit now of some, and regard them as perhaps meeting a need of former times but as being of small importance in our present stage of development, must not think on government as on an automobile, of which a new model is to be desired every year. Government represents a very old endeavor in the human family. Features in our Government embody the experience of thousands of years and a part of that experience points to the folly of any material disturbance of the distribution of powers between local and general government.

A union of small governing units is desirable for protection against enemies within and without and to insure uniformity in certain of the larger matters of common concern, but after all the defense of liberty and the safeguarding of individual opportunity must be chiefly in the hands of the small units. Time and again it has been shown that excessive centralization not only leads to bureaucratic oppression and misrule, but sows the seeds of early dissolution.

How many are teaching Americanization by cheap flag-waving—by the methods through which attempt used to be made to Prussianize alien races? Better than dogmatic, academic Americanization is the Americanization taught by actual object lessons under a Government that administers strict justice, protects the rights of even the most obscure and insures to all a square deal. The results of such a government cannot fail to impress even the most ignorant of foreigners. They are more observant than some of their instructors may suppose.

In decreeing that nobody shall pay more than $2.75 a pint for whisky, brandy, gin or rum, for medicinal purposes, Rhode Island is likely to become a great health resort. Whatever his affliction, any man that could get liquor at that price would feel a whole lot better.

OUR PROGRESSIVE ORCHESTRA.

If hospitality to new ideas is in general an index of mental freshness and enterprise, then that diagnosis is particularly true of a symphony orchestra. On the one hand, a director may coddle himself and his men by programming works like Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, which they all know by heart. On the other hand, by electing, for instance, Florent Schmitt's suite, "The Tragedy of Salome," he sentences his men to arduous rehearsals and himself to the study of an unfamiliar and formidable score.

Taking the number of "first-time" works as a test of artistic energy, we find from records of the season of 1919-20 that the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra has achieved a gratifying record. Among eight of the leading orchestras of the country the local organization stands, in proportion of novelties performed, second only to the Philadelphia Orchestra, which is now conceded to be the country' leader in musical enterprise.

Some of the orchestras have not yet completed their season, but all have played concerts sufficient to guage the complexion of their policies. We learn from an examination of the various program books that these orchestras stand in the following order, as to the percentage of "first-time" works performed: Philadelphia, 46 per cent; St. Louis, 30 per cent; Cincinnati, 27 per cent; Minneapolis, 25 per cent; Detroit, 20 per cent; Boston, 18 per cent; Chicago, 16 per cent, and New York Philharmonic, .07 per cent.

The success of Director Zach's liberal policy in this significant respect is very likely reflected in the figures of attendance. The total paid attendance for the 30 regular concerts during the season of 1918-1919 was 38,701; for the season just concluded it was 49,510—an increase of 10,709, or 27 per cent.

Ninety per cent of Missouri's industrial accidents occur in plants that employ 20 persons or fewer. Little business should not permit Big Business to monopolize safety first.

It is an interesting race between the steamfitters and the plumbers as to which will be the first to pass the prima donna scale of salaries.

PANETELLA.

Yes, Luella,
Metaphysics
Have us going.
On the whole,
Turning back
From evil doing,
Lo, we contemplate
The soul!
Having made
The life we're living
Such that God
Is doubtless vexed.
Nowadays
We're apprehensive
Of our chances
In the next.

Thus it is,
My little girlie,
That we sit
With bated breath
While a lecturer
Discourses
On the outlook
After death.
What we fear
Is having chosen
Not affection
But the rod,
We shall be
Behind the woodshed
In a little While with God.

So does conscience,
Sweet Luella,
Fashion psychics
Of us all,
Each one vieing
With the other
Sitting forward
In the hall.
All of us
At last attending
What the prophets
Have to tell,
And at length
Becoming truly
Interested
In a Hell.

What the moral
Is, my dearie,
Past a qualifying
If,
Is that going
In for evil
We are only
Frightened stiff.
Having made
Our world a shambles
With its own
Blood red and wet,
Lo, we call in Lodge or someone,
Ascertaining
What we'll get.

So we have it,
Little girlie:
Having for
A time forgot,
Now we think
Of consequences
Here and afterward
A lot.
Having for a space
Amused us
With our transitory
Toys,
Now the prophets,
Aristotle,
Kant and Plato
Are the boys.

We have to have spirits of some kind.

Senator Borah thinks the people should be permitted to exercise their choice among aspirants for the presidential nomination without being influenced in that function by the ordinary uses to which campaign funds are put. That sounds commendable, but it really would be equivalent to asking the people on Mars whom they would like to have as our presidential candidates. The present campaign is fairly typical. There is no outstanding figure upon either side, and except for the campaign funds the conventions would ballot for several days upon local sons. The campaign fund eliminates this ordeal, as well as the danger that a favorite son momentarily fascinating the convention with the quality of his voice or the color of his whiskers might be nominated. What has evil in it seems to the Senator in this case to be wholly evil, which it is not. The campaign fund ought to be limited and the manner in which it is got together regulated. We seem not to have much quarrel with the way in which it is spent. If somebody is comical enough to think that books about his candidate such as there is complaint of in Indiana among the anti-Woodites are going to impress us when we can readily guess the authors of them were also paid out of the campaign funds, let him have books or whatever else he wants. We must have freedom in which to make ourselves ridiculous, probably the most valuable freedom we have. The moment we deny ourselves room in which to make fools of ourselves we deprive ourselves of the best means we have of judging one another. We must judge one another, no matter what Senator Borah thinks.

Sign hunting, which is by this time an industry employing thousands of sign hunters, probably began when Just A Minute was a boy. There was an old gentleman out on the edge of town who had lady apples in his orchard. Lady apples attract boys much as cherries attract birds. At any rate, the old gentleman finally painted upon the top board of the orchard this sign:

Keep of the fence

We used to say "Keep of the fence" as we went over the top after lady apples. It was the countersign around the orchard at night—"Keep of the fence." It became inseparably associated in Just a Minute's mind with the brighter side of life, and induced that interest in signs from which we have the present national passion and numbers like 72580645789642467890964. The kindly little old gentleman who raised the lady apples started something.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

A DAUGHTER OF THE REVOLUTION.

From the Omaha World-Herald.

THAT two human lives should have spanned the years since the Revolutionary War to the present day was pronounced an unusual and notable incident in longevity by the Rev. Dr. Robert L. Wheeler as he conducted burial services for Mrs. Elvira Tewksbury last week. Her father, James Walker, served with the New Hampshire militia at Fort Ticonderoga. "It was the happiest funeral I have ever attended," said a well-known woman. "Not happy in the sense of festivity, but with appreciation of a long life well spent, and of a readiness to go when the call came. As a pioneer of Nebraska, who had spent 80 of the 89 years of her life here, and with a Revolutionary soldier father, 'Aunty' Tewksbury was a notable figure in local history." Commenting on these things, Dr. Wheeler appealed to the friends present and to Daughters of the American Revolution, of which society the deceased was an honored member, to cherish the ideals of the founders of the American republic. There has never been a period in American history when greater need existed for holding fast to the principles on which the Government was founded. Americans should stand by their colors, not only Old Glory, with its red, white and blue, but to the principles of justice and liberty, religion and home, the things that make the individual life honorable and praiseworthy and the national life an object lesson to the world.

ASQUITH'S ELECTION.

From the Nation.

MR. ASQUITH'S election to the House of Commons may mean much or little for the future of British Liberalism. In the House, where the Liberal leadership of Sir Donald Maclean has been felt to be lacking in vigor, the presence of the former Premier can hardly fail to inject new life into the debates and to put the Government upon its mettle. His outspoken opposition during the Paisley campaign to nationalization, joined to his defeat of a Labor candidate in a manufacturing constituency, has not only caused him to be looked upon as a dangerous man by the Labor party, but is also certain to disturb, if not actually to alienate, the advanced Liberals who, so far as the nationalization of mines, railways and other important industries is concerned, agree with the Labor party program. As an offset to nationalization, Mr. Asquith stands for economy and for the re-establishment of relations with Russia; but neither of these demands, important as they are, touches as closely as does nationalization the deeper and more earnest thinking of the British masses, nor do they appear to be of themselves sufficient bases for a new Liberal platform.

WOMAN DIVORCE LAWYER'S VIEWS.

HELEN P. McCORMICK in Hearst's Magazine.

TO HIS surprise the man who marries discovers that the authority he fatuously thought would be his is wrested from him and exercised by one of those ironically termed the "weaker sex." A surprisingly large number of husbands, perhaps the majority, have the same feeling for their wives that the circus leopard has for the young woman with yellow hair and pink tights who makes him jump through hoops every day of his life. They admire vaguely the artistic perfection of her work, but they grumblingly or silently resent being driven. Few of them fight their driver, but all of them nurse a growing distaste for the whip and the holler of it. I have heard the complaints of many male spouses. A great number began with: "I had no idea that when I married I was losing all right to myself or my possessions. But I soon learned that I had." In this frame of mind, which becomes chronic, men regard their wives as tyrants. Since Russia has fallen many Benedicks believe that the state of matrimony is the only surviving absolute monarchy.

Events in the Social World

Society Prepares for Big Round of Gaiety to Begin With Close of Lent—Matrons Have Their Troubles Arranging for Board Walk, While Debutantes Get Ready for Junior League Follies.

THIS week will be for society what writers often call "a breathless pause" in anticipation of events that will start promptly with Easter Sunday. It will be breathless for another reason. The efforts made in preparation will leave many people breathless. There is much to be done. Rehearsals to be held, invitation lists are to be made up, shopping is an urgent matter, and there will be the customary eleventh-hour rush that precedes all seasons of pronounced social activity.

Some matrons are losing weight and giving extra work to the masseuse under the strain of concluding settings for the Board Walk Show, which will begin at the Coliseum April 5. To say that the preparations are going forward merrily would be to strain the adverb—"earnestly" would be a better word. Of course, it is a different matter for the debutantes, whose chief duty will be to lend the necessary touch of beauty to the booths.

On the other hand, they, by virtue of the rehearsals for the Junior League Follies, are now learning the meaning of hard work. Dinnie MacDonald, the director, is a heartless taskmaster, and a pleading face or an injured pout mean nothing in his life, if the owner's feet happen to be out of rhythm with the rest of the chorus. Most of the costumes have been completed, but rehearsals will be continued between now and the opening night, April 16.

A careful survey of the Follies, as outlined in the first rehearsals, shows that the 1920 edition will differ somewhat from the previous offerings, in that its structural continuity is modeled upon two famous productions of the army and navy, the "biff, bang!" of the navy, and the "Who Can Tell," by the extravaganza artists of the A. E. F. The liberties taken with the texture of these two offerings, are many and abrupt, and the St. Louis Follies will find itself time and again quite lost from its marked-out path and treading the uncharted way of musical comedy.

Songs, dancing, an occasional chorus or two, and musical and terpsichorean melanges of varied style and sort, will take up the greater part of its two hours. Four big scenes are being especially dwelt upon, a Chinese interior, a Hungarian Gypsy ensemble, an Oriental setting rich in Persian color and similitude, and a travesty on grand opera and the classic dancing craze.

The charities that will be benefited by the Follies will be the Children's School Lunch Room at Nineteenth and Franklin avenue; a workroom for convalescents and invalids operated in connection with the St. Louis Children's Hospital, a club recently formed for employed blind workers, a considerable settlement undertaking that is being operated in conjunction with Sand-Pile House, 1320 Blair avenue, and other less familiar activities of the league.

Among those who attended Monday's rehearsal were Misses Frances Reid Jones, Roberta Lewis, Edith Skipwith, Doris Drummond, Elizabeth Holliday, Lucy Ludington, Leonore Cahill, Ada Johnson, Elizabeth Benoist, Jane Goddard, Elizabeth Smith, Marian Franciscus, Elizabeth Mauran, Isabel Mauran and Vesta Reed; Mmes. Knox Taussig, Harold Wilson, August Busch Jr., Effie Bagnell Culbertson, Harrison Hoblitzelle, Elmore Bostwick and Dan Jones; Misses Grace Taylor, Elizabeth Kennard, Edith Cates, Eva Cotter, Annie Laurie Warmack, Mary Plant, Caroline Tyler and Elizabeth Edgar; and Messrs. MRS. O. N. ARMSTRONG of 16 Gast place entertained with a luncheon at the Ridgedale Country Club yesterday to announce the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jean Armstrong, to William Robert Gibson of Montreal, Canada.

Miss Armstrong received her education at St. Agnes School in Belleville, Canada, and studied two years at the Toronto Conservatory of Music in Toronto, Canada. Mr. Gibson served as Captain of Infantry in the Canadian Army during the war, and saw three years' overseas service. He is the son of L. C. Gibson of Sincoe, Canada. No date has been set for the wedding.

The announcement was made through the floral decorations. A large centerpiece made up of 14 corsages of pink sweet peas surrounded by a circle of pansies adorned the table. At the conclusion of the luncheon each guest was asked to take a corsage, which had a card attached with the names of the young couple on it.

The guests at the luncheon included Mmes. Owen Mitchell, Charles Tooker, George Logan, Harold Wilson, E. D. Pendelton, Earl Bennett, J. R. Bissell, Misses Edith McCormick, Shirley McDavitt, Eula Stokley and Alice Pettingill.

SEVERAL weddings of note were solemnized last week. On Tuesday evening at the Second Presbyterian Church Miss Ruth A. Moffat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moffat, became the bride of Edwin H. Hilmer, son of Mrs. Laura Hilmer. The Rev. Dr. MacIvor officiated in the presence of about 400 guests. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

In the bridal party were Miss Peggy Moffat, who was maid of honor, Misses Ester Bernet, Dorothy Jackes, Mildred Norris, Grace Woods, Mary Hope and Mildred Candy as bridesmaids, H. Hixon Kinsella as best man and Erwin P. Stupp, Albert Roth, Milton Bernet, William Cunliff, Warren Miller and H. Guy Herring as groomsmen and ushers. The bride's small cousin, Helen Moffat of Pittsburg, was flower girl.

Two weddings of social interest took place out of town yesterday, one in Los Angeles and the other in Louisville. At noon at the Cliff House in Los Angeles Miss Mary K. Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert N. Edwards of Kirkwood, and Manley A. Moule, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moule of Palo Alto, Cal., were quietly married in the presence of the immediate families. The young couple will make their home in Palo Alto.

The marriage of Mrs. Katherine Bonnie of Louisville, and Carl Langenberg, son of Mrs. Henry Langenberg of St. Louis, was solemnized yesterday at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Bonnie. The bride's sister, Mrs. Hugh Caperton of Louisville, attended her as matron of honor, and Harry Langenberg, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. After an extended honeymoon through the Orient Mr. Langenberg and his bride

The American Theater will be transformed into a veritable college playhouse on Wednesday night, April 14, when colleges and universities will vie with one another honoring their alma maters. Pennants and banners will pay their silent tribute. Between the acts, an opportunity is always given for the expression of long pent-up enthusiasm in college yells and campus ballads.

This year the first entree act will be led by the Yale Quartet. With Elmore Boswick as director, the quartet will call for the various colleges and universities and their loyal sons and daughters will arise in their places all over the house to join in the song or yell of their alma mater. The second entree act will be led by the younger college set, who will form in line as they advance down the aisle, singing those never-to-be-forgotten college songs, such as "Finnicull, Finnicula," "Soloman Levi," or "My Darling Clementine."

The sponsors for the benefit this year are Charles A. Antrim, Roscoe Anderson, Joseph Caffee, Philip B. Fouke, George Gellhorn, Henry H. Hopkins, Dr. H. W. Loeb, Richard McCulloch, Rudolph Schmitz, Oreon E. Scott and William E. Wittrig.

Living pictures symbolizing the various uses of the cosmetics and toilet articles affected by the modern ladye fair will be the attraction at the perfume and soap shop at the Atlantic City Board Walk. Mrs. Walter Knight will direct the shop.

Mrs. William Kerwin, Mrs. Fred Campbell, Mrs. J. H. Locke, Mrs. C. H. P. Hamilton Jr. and Misses Margery Livingston and Dorothy Pufeles are among those cast for the living pictures.

Pictures already decided upon are entitled Face Powder, Lip Stick, Shampoo, Face Cream, Manicure and The Eyebrow Pencil.

Bol," by Miss Nina Fiorita. On the same evening a one-act fantasy, "The Maker of Dreams," by Oliphant Down, was given with Miss Anne Anderson, in quaint robing, as "the Maker of Dreams." Sheldon, and with Doris Keane, starring, ran in New York and afterwards for three seasons in London.

They were: Chairman, Mrs. R. H. Houchan; vice chairman, Mrs. Lilian Phelps, and secretary, Mrs. Emma J. Lewis. This report was unanimously accepted and the new officers elected.

Williams, under the direction of Mrs. A. B. Young.

The Shell and Anchor Club, composed of vocational students at Washington University, will give its first dance at Moolah Temple, April 17. It will be an informal affair. The same body will give a minstrel show in May.

COMMITTEE OF WOMEN MAKING SURVEY OF MOVIE THEATERS

Religious Organization's Board Fostering Movement to Ascertain Standard of That Amusement.

A committee of 50 women, representing as many religious denominations, is making a survey of moving picture theaters in St. Louis, to become acquainted with the character of pictures shown, the tastes of the picture theater public, and the physical condition of the theaters in matters of ventilation and safety exits.

The committee will report to the Board of Religious Organizations, which is fostering the movement, as soon as conditions in all the theaters have been studied. The work is in no way identified with any censorship proposition, but merely for the purpose of getting information regarding the standard is of this form of amusement.

REALTY DEALER IN PRISON SECOND TIME

Beverly C. Stevens of Clayton Surrenders at Jefferson City.

Beverly C. Stevens, former Clayton real estate dealer, surrendered at the Jefferson City penitentiary yesterday morning to serve a three-year term for embezzlement. He was released from the same penitentiary Nov. 19, 1918, after serving a three-year term for forgery.

The State Supreme Court March 13 sustained Stevens' conviction on the embezzlement charge, thus making it necessary for him to serve his term. He was in Texas at that time. He arrived in St. Louis several days ago. For a time he was ill at the home of relatives here. He departed from St. Louis Friday night, arriving there early yesterday morning. After a few hours at a hotel he surrendered alone to the Marshal of the Supreme Court and was taken to the penitentiary.

The number 22,706 was assigned to Stevens when he was "dressed in" at 9 a. m. His number when serving his first sentence was 18,963. As in his former term, he was assigned to work in the commissary department of the prison.

MOUNTAINEER STORIES TOLD BY KENTUCKY'S STORY-TELLING GOVERNOR

what goes before his God every meetin' day. But I expect Ed, that I've got 3000 letters urging me to raise a rejiment in the mountains to invade Mexico. Now, the whisky gauging is keeping me pretty busy, Ed, but I just want to advise you that if I do raise a rejiment and invade Mexico, there won't be any language spoke in hell for the next six months, but Mex.'

"To the ear untrained to mountaineer speech that may sound like brag," the Governor said. "I assure you that it is not. I know the mountaineer and I accept the letter as a simple statement of fact.

"Don't Do it, Ed," Advice of Mountaineer Politician.

"JUST before I accepted the nomination for Governor," "I went up on Green River for a fishing trip with an old mountaineer friend. We fished for two days in understanding silence, but, after supper on the third day, my friend said to me:

"Ed, they tell me you're fixin' to run for Guv'ner, and I want to give you my advice. I have had 40 years' experience in politics, Ed, and I 'spect few men have had more, leastwise in Kentucky. I've been road overseer. I've been school trustee. I've been magistrate, and I would a-been county Judge, Ed, had not all the Republi-cans been to war.

"Arter 40 years, Ed, all I got to show from politics is a few lukewarm friends and a lot of damnsite hotter enemies. Don't do it, Ed."

Men Folks Had a High Ol' Lonesome at Still.

ONE of the most frequent questions of the curious," the Governor said, "is how the mountaineer regards his still. Does he regard the Government as infringing on his liberty? I don't know, I confess. But the nearest description of how the mountaineer regards that I can think of is that the still house is the mountaineer's club. Men, at times, feel the need of the association of men. It is these occasions that the still satisfies. I believe that the best expression I ever heard of the relation came from a witness who had been arrested in a moonshine raid. He was not accused of stilling, but the law holds all on the premises. This was his testimony:

"'I weren't a-gettin' nothin', and I weren't a-makin' nothin', but the word had gone up the valley that there was goin' to be a run-off that night, and the men folks come in to git together an' talk an' brag and hear what was a-goin' on. Hump Davids brung his banjo and Bill Sismore his fox hounds. We made a big fire and some was settin' round and some was playin' cyards, and some was arguin'. Humpy was a-playin' of his banjo and we wuz listenin' to the fox hounds on the hill.

"'We were just men folks havin' a high ol' lonesome. That's what tuk me thar, Judge.'"

Dropped a Few Shots an' Then Went on Readin' Bible.

WHEN the Governor finished this story, he said: "Those incidents give you some insight into the ways and character of the mountaineer. He is a man to be admired. He is a man to be trusted and, as he puts himself, there is only one way to get along with him. Take no "underholds" in any of your dealings with him.

"I suppose you demand a feud story. Of course, there are no longer feuds in Kentucky and that feud thing was pretty much overdone by romancing beyond the borders of Kentucky. However, here is a feud story. I cannot vouch for it as I can the others, but this is it:

"'Lige Parsons dropped into the courthouse one day and went to see his friend, the Probate Judge.

"'Howdy, Lige.'

"'Howdy, Judge.'

"'What's doing down Pussum Trot, Lige?'

"'Nuthin' worth dividin', Judge, nuthin' wuth dividin'.

"There was no conversation for a few minutes, when Lige began:

"'Tother evening', I was a-settin' a-readin' of my Bible, Judge, when shootin' began. One of the gals said 'twuz the Persons boys down by the fence.

"'Now, Judge, I didn't mind them Persons boys shootin', but I thought they might kill a calf critter or two or maybe hit the ol' woman, so I picked up my rifle and dropped a few shots down thar by the fence and went back a-readin' of my Bible.

"'Next mornin', Judge, I went down by the fence, an' they was all gone, 'cept four.'"

SUIT FOR BEER ORDER DISMISSED BY JUDGE FARIS

Appeal to Supreme Court Will Be Taken by Brewers Seeking to Stop Prohibition Enforcement.

The injunction suit brought a week ago yesterday by the St. Louis Brewing Association and concurred in by four other St. Louis breweries, to restrain local Government officials from enforcing national prohibition as to the sale of 2.75 beer, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Faris in the United States District Court.

Charles A. Houts, attorney for the breweries, announced immediately after the dismissal that he would go to Washington at once and file a direct appeal with the United States Supreme Court.

The dismissal motion, filed by District Attorney Hensley, alleged that the brewers had no cause of action in an equity suit and denied their assertions that the national prohibition amendment was unconstitutional and that Congress and the Missouri Legislature went beyond their powers in authorizing and ratifying it.

The specific dismissal was ordered in the St. Louis Brewing Association case, but it applied in its effect also to identical suits filed by the Independent Breweries Co., the Griesedieck Bros. Brewing Co., Louis Obert Brewing Co. and the Schoor-Kolkschneider Brewing Co.

Judge Faris in his decision said that as a similar suit is pending in the United States Supreme Court the matter could not be expedited by a hearing on the merits of the case in the District Court here.

PENNELL PROTESTS AGAINST VULGARITY OF OUTDOOR ADVERTISING

the billboards, and if one of the thousand does by any chance sometime or other enter a gallery he immediately feels what's there is bad because it is so much unlike what he's used to! And he's right in his reasoning. It certainly must be bad if the billboard display is good.

"No wonder," said Pennell. "Europe has a tradition of us as a race of crazy savages, when the first thing Europeans see as they land here is our sky signs and our tunnels of billboards. And all because we don't care enough about decency and beauty and ordinary common sense to stop these exploiters. One community over near Philadelphia did get aroused. They formed a vigilance committee and went out with ropes one night to pull the things down and the vigilantes had to content themselves with burning a few before the police arrived to protect the others.

"Of course," said Mr. Pennell, "I am not advocating violence. Violence serves no permanent purpose. What is needed is law and an awakening of public spirit. The big hope is the women. They have the vote now. And American women are easier to stir in such matters than American men are. I've spoken to several state gatherings of federations of womens' clubs already this winter, and I'm going to speak to several more at their annual meetings. It's to be hoped they will do something, and do it promptly. The abuse is increasing like wild fire, as an aftermath of the war and the Government's poster publicity. Hundreds of new billboards were set up for that praiseworthy purpose and covered with really good posters that wouldn't hurt anybody to look at. But now the advertising exploiters have taken them over and are putting up its own trash and building new surfaces by the square mile. If the thing goes on unchecked for a year or so more even the one scenic and memorial high road ever taken in this country, intended to stretch from coast to coast and be dotted with worthy and beautiful historic monuments, to be educational and recreational and inspirational, will be nothing but a way of penance between two shrieking walls of billboards.

"Exploiters and busybodies," concluded Mr. Pennell, "that's what this country has fallen into the clutches of. The exploiters are playing havoc with our landscape, our state and our store of materials and labor, while the busybodies have forced prohibition upon us.

PETERS, "THE KILLER," TIMID MAN WHO CAN'T ENDURE EXECUTIONS

Job being to unite Mensheviks with the Cadets in this conspiracy.

Women Among Conspirators.

"Dukes, the man higher up in the whole scheme, also used Anastasia Petrovna Orlovia, of the princely house of Orloff and Anna Alexievna Pekrovskaia, another former noblewoman, both of whom had been maids of honor at the Imperial court, as his tools. The former was much perturbed because a set of intimate photographs of Nicholas Romanoff and his family were taken from her after her arrest. An Englishman named Kipson who had been living in Petrograd, helped Dukes to distribute large sums of money to the conspirators, among whom there was also a Mrs. Kennedy, a Russian woman married to an Englishman, who, I am told, had once been employed in the American embassy and had some of its archives in her possession.

"All these persons with the exception of Dukes were arrested. A few were sentenced to death, but [illegible]

I forget. Even if we had not known all about it in plenty of time to break it up it would have been quite unsuccessful. In all Petrograd the plot organizers were enabled to enroll only about 700 persons, most of them of Apache type, who were interested purely in drawing the big wages provided by Dukes. Not merely the working class, but the city's population as a whole, was entirely unaffected. As a matter of fact I think even the leaders were conspiring chiefly to win Yudenitch's good will and to save themselves from the White Terror they knew he would inflict upon Petrograd as soon as he got there."

150,000 CITIZENS QUALIFIED TO VOTE ON BONDS MAY 11

Of This Number 16,598 Names Were Enrolled at the Special Registration Last Thursday.

About 150,000 names of voters will be on the registration books for the special election of May 11, on the $24,000,000 municipal bond issue, it is now expected. The number of names enrolled in the 500 precincts Thursday was 16,598, according to the Election Board's announcement yesterday.

The Board estimates that 10,000 of these names were merely transferred from one precinct to another, the balance being new registrations, including returned service men and youths who have lately become of age. There will be a certain deduction, after the clerks' canvass, for persons who have moved and who failed to register in their new precincts. Such persons probably will have no opportunity to register for the August primary. The number of names on the books, before Thursday's special registration, was 144,541.

Eighteen Bond Proposals.

The 18 bond proposals will be submitted, and each, for passage, must have an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the votes cast upon that particular proposal.

The enrollment by wards Thursday was as follows:

First Ward, 425; Second, 828; Third, 446; Fourth, 367; Fifth, 493; Sixth, 550; Seventh, 628; Eighth, 356; Ninth, 383; Tenth, 407; Eleventh, 620; Twelfth, 550; Thirteenth, 966; Fourteenth, 527; Fifteenth, 484; Sixteenth, 414; Seventeenth, 878; Eighteenth, 332; Nineteenth, 510; Twentieth, 566; Twenty-first, 646; Twenty-second, 574; Twenty-third, 685; Twenty-fourth, 781; Twenty-fifth, 868; Twenty-sixth, 734; Twenty-seventh, 930, and Twenty-eighth, 1120.

The Committee of City Salesmen and Small Retailers is planning for an educational campaign on the Bond Issue. August E. Gilster is chairman of this committee, Hugh H. Mace, vice chairman, and Arthur Sherwood, secretary. There are about 200 city salesmen, 50 small retailers and 1000 sales managers who will be included in the work of this committee. The purpose of the committee will be outlined at a meeting of the Citizens' Municipal Bond Campaign, 110-112 Hotel Statler at 4 p. m. Wednesday.

To Instruct Workers.

At a dinner, the evening of April 9, city salesmen, retailers and sales managers will receive their instructions from the officials of the Citizens' Municipal Bond Committee, and the items of the Bond Issue will be explained by speakers.

On the Salesmen and Small Retailers' Committee are Leo Fuller, Frank W. Corley, C. W. Condie, Isador Unterberger, Charles Dyer, H. P. Riefling, John F. Peters, E. B. Heller, Clarence King, James H. Howe, E. C. Donk, J. Louis Boche, E. A. Ellerman, Jacob Stocke Jr., Walter F. Hoener, George A. Roth, Samuel Kieffer, Joseph J. Hauer, W. E. Tarlton and C. W. Spier.

The labor division of the Bond Committee met last night at the Carpenters' District Council, 3024 Olive street. I. W. Williams is chairman. Other officers of the labor division are Joseph J. Hauser, Maurice J. Cassidy, Fred Heller, John McCrady, James B. Conroy, vice chairman; E. G. Marsh, secretary and treasurer; W. R. Carver, assistant secretary.

Women's Division.

Mrs. G. V. R. Mechin, chairman of the women's organization division, will outline the work of the women at a meeting in parlor B, Hotel Statler, at 10 a. m. tomorrow. The women will concentrate their efforts on the wards which have voted against past proposed municipal bond issues. Mrs. James Hayward is Secretary of this committee. Other members are Miss Mary Wheat, St. Louis Women's Advertising Club; Mrs. Fanny Bonner Price, Women's Chamber of Commerce; Miss Edith Souther, Wednesday Club; Mrs. Laura S. Edwards, League of Women Voters; Miss Fanny Robb, W. C. T. U., Mrs. R. A. Crabb, Democratic City Committee, Mrs. J. M. Hutchinson, Republican City Committee; Mrs. May A. C. They will be assisted by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, approximately 2500 active young men, the Republican City Committee, the Democratic City Committee, the League of Women Voters, the Women's Republican City Committee, and the Women's Democratic City Committee.

WEEK'S COMEDIES ARE HOOVERIZED IN CASTS

Five Characters in "Tea for Three," Nine in "Moonlight and Honeysuckle."

So far as size of casts goes, the spirit of Herbert Hoover will rule at the American and Shubert-Jefferson theaters this week. The two spoken comedies on the current boards employ an aggregate of only 14 actors. "Tea for Three," which opens at the Shubert-Jefferson tonight, has only five characters—or, it might be said, only three, for two of the roles are the minor ones of a maid and a valet. "Moonlight and Honeysuckle," starring Ruth Chatterton, which will be presented at the American tomorrow night, struggles along with nine characters. Yet each of these economically organized plays has been praised as being among the notable stage productions now before the public.

An extra performance of "Angel Face," with its sparkling music by Victor Herbert, will be given at the American tonight, on which occasion Robert Emmett Keane, musical comedy star, will make his first appearance as a member of the cast. The Ford sisters, dancers, head the week's bill at the Orpheum. The offerings for Easter week will be May Irwin in "On the Hiring Line," at the American; and the farce, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," at the Shubert-Jefferson. The featured item at the Orpheum during the same week will be a musical romance, "Chin Toy," with Joseph E. Howard and a numerous company.

"Tea for Three," an adaptation by Roi Cooper Megrue of a Hungarian play by Charles Slaboda, has been described as the squaring on American principles, of the continental triangle. There is the familiar three-cornered situation of one woman and two men—the jealous husband and the "family friend." But this staple complication has been treated by the playwright, it is declared, with such originality, and such ironic, pungent and adroit wit, as to rejuvenate the ancient theme.

The friend, Philip, who is supposed to be an eminent physician connected with the Rockefeller Institute, is played, as in the original New York cast, by Arthur Byron. Laura Hope Crews has succeeded Margaret Lawrence in the part of the wife, Doris. Frederick Perry has from the beginning had the role of the husband, Carter Kathryn Keyes remains from the first cast as the maid, but Albert L. Marsh has supplanted William Postance as the valet.

Jealous Husband Is Cured.

The play opens with a single corner table in a fashionable New York restaurant, where Philip and Doris are having tea without the knowledge of Carter. It appears that Philip was Carter's unsuccessful rival for Doris, and is still inclined to cultivate the old flame—oh, of course, in perfect accord with the principles that have been shouldered upon Plato. It has been Philip's habit to take tea with Doris and Carter on Thursday afternoons, but the pair fear that this institution of "Tea for Three" is in danger of being disrupted by the husband's jealousy. So they lay a plot to banish the green-eyed monster.

How the conspiracy is carried out, even to the extreme of having a newspaper "extra" printed so as to terrify Carter into permitting the old three-cornered tea table to continue, makes the action of the play. "Tea for Three" ran a year in New York, and has had successful engagements in Chicago and Boston.

Charming Ruth Chatterton, one of the most popular of our youthful actresses, is easy to link with a play so idyllic and fragrant of title as "Moonlight and Honeysuckle." But the comedy is not quite so guileless as the name would indicate. Miss Chatterton has the part of Judith Baldwin, daughter of a United States Senator from Arizona, and the playwright, George Scarborough, places the action in the Senator's Washington home.

Judith is embarrassed by a superfluity of suitors. One of them is a Congressman of flowery language; another is a young clubman, and the third is a Western ranchman. She tests their devotion by inventing a "past," in which the seductions of moonlight and the perfume of honeysuckle played leading parts. The three acts tell how this somewhat unsavory concoction of the heroine's reacted upon the suitors; how one of them set out, presumably with a six-shooter, to find the "man in the case," and how the ingenious Ruth finally solved the problem of bestowing her hand.

Several of Original Cast.

Miss Chatterton created the part when the play was produced at the Henry Miller Theater, New York, on Sept. 29, 1919. The following members of the original cast remain: Edward Fielding, Sydney Booth, Charles Trowbridge, Lawrence Eddinger and Flora Sheffield. Corliss Giles has succeeded James Rennie as Miss Chatterton's leading man, and the other newcomers are Louise Randolph and Auriol Lee.

Supporting the Ford sisters at the Orpheum this week will be Johnnie Ford and "The Melody Maids;" a portrayal of six famous characters in "Oliver Twist" by the protean Owen McGiveney; Jack Wyatt's Scotch Lads and Lassies; Walter Weems, Southern humorist; George Watts and Belle Hawley, in song and dance; Flo and Ollie Walters and Harry Howard's ponies.

"The Bostonians" will hold forth at the Gayety this week and the Standard's offering is "The Record Breakers," with Jack Reid. The headline features at other theaters are as follows: Rialto, Gus Edwards, song composer, and Vincent O'Donnell, "the Kid McCormack," in a "Demitasse Song Revue;" Grand, "Little Caruso" and a company in "A Night in Venice;" Columbia, first half of the week, Will J. Ward and "five symphony girls" in "A Musical Melange," and Loew's Garrick, for a four-day run, a musical comedy, "Some Baby," with Johnny Kennah and Agnes Burr.

Receipts of "Follies" in St. Louis Stir Theater Circles in New York.

News of the record-breaking receipts enjoyed by the recent St. Louis engagement of Ziegfeld's "Follies" at the American Theater, seems to have caused a sensation on the Rialto in New York. It appears that the gross box office income, for 19 performances at $4 prices, was $48,500, which the New York Times declares "is fondly believed to be a record on the American stage—Hippodromes and circuses excluded, of course."

"If, here and there," the Times comments, "there is a layman to whom this amount means nothing, let it be added that many a show has existed on 10 per cent of that amount in the past, and that one-third of it, even in New York today, is considered excellent business for even a musical show."

This means that the "Follies" reaped as an average for each St. Louis performance an amount sufficient to maintain many a show for a week in New York.

HART ON STATUE COMMITTEE

Alderman Luke E. Hart has been elected chairman of the committee of the Knights of Columbus Supreme Board of Directors which is managing the Knights of Columbus campaign among its members for $50,000 to pay for a statue of Lafayette to be presented in August to the City of Metz, Lorraine.

Besides managing the statue fund, the committee will have charge of the pilgrimage which about 1000 Knights will make to France for the unveiling of the statue.

Keeps the Straightest, Unruliest Hair in Curl

You've never seen anything work such wonders for straight, lank, unruly hair as plain liquid silmerine. Nothing else will keep the hair in curl for an hour a time—nor produce such beautifully lustrous, natural-looking curls and waves. Damp or windy weather has no terrors for the woman who uses it. And no one need hesitate to use it, for it is so easily applied with a brush and is so perfectly harmless. It leaves no greasy, sticky or streaky trace. The contents can be acquired in three hours, though many prefer to apply the liquid at bedtime. When the hair is combed out it is delightfully soft and fluffy.

Anyone who will get a bottle of Danderine silmerine from the druggist and follow the accompanying directions will have a most agreeable surprise. The liquid is also valued as a splendid dressing for the hair.

HOUSING FUND FOR GIRLS WHO WORK REACHES $212,000

Y. W. C. A.-Letmar Club Campaign Chairman Says Canvass Will Continue for Entire $500,000.

Pledges and subscriptions aggregating $212,000 have been reported at the headquarters of the Y. W. C. A.-Letmar Club campaign committee, in the effort to raise $500,000 with which to erect two hotels for working girls.

The campaign, originally scheduled to close yesterday, will be extended until next Thursday and perhaps beyond that date, as Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, chairman of the committee, announced yesterday that the drive would not be closed until the total amount had been pledged.

It was explained at the luncheon of campaign workers, held yesterday at Hotel Statler, that there were many subscriptions which had not yet been reported. The majority of these are from large industrial establishments, where final action is awaited from the boards of directors before reporting a definite pledge. It is expected that when these reports are made the total will be greatly increased.

To date the various teams have reported as follows:

Mrs. Bixby's team, $81,000; business women's, $10,768; negro, $5101; women' other than business women, $7,084; men's, $63,081; Kirkwood, $801; Webster Groves, $760; citizens' committee, $2576.

Headquarters at 312 North Eighth street will be kept open until the close of the campaign and contributions may be made there.

The committee on housing, of which Mrs. Lon O. Hocker is chairman, reported yesterday that an offer had been made of a building in East St. Louis, rent free, for temporary quarters for working girls.

It is the plan of those in charge of the housing campaign to build one large hotel in the West End, to be supervised by the Letmar Club, and another in the downtown district over which the Y. W. C. A. shall have supervision. Quarters for at least 600 girls are to be provided in this way, and they will be given all the advantages of home life to which will be added many recreational, educational and amusement features.

There are now nearly 1000 women working under the direction of the Campaign Committee, soliciting residence and business districts, while a large number of men are also in the work.

The housing campaign has been sanctioned by the large civic organizations. Mayor Kiel has issued a proclamation calling on the citizens of St. Louis to give freely to this cause.

APPLICATION BY U. R. RECEIVER TO SPEND $3,057,580

Proposals Include $2,000,000 for 160 New Cars and $917,380 for Reconstruction of City Trackage.

WOULD SPEND $140,200 ON ST. CHARLES LINE

Stockholders and Bondholders Express Opposition to Plan, Fearing Scheme for Foreclosure.

Applications to be permitted to spend $3,057,580 in track reconstruction and the purchase of new street cars were presented yesterday to Special Master Lamm by the Receiver of the United Railways. The proposal will be taken up Tuesday at 10 a. m. in the Federal building.

It is proposed to spend about $2,000,000 for the purchase of 160 new cars, $917,380 in the reconstruction of track of city lines and $140,200 for reconstruction of track of the St. Charles line.

Henry S. Priest said that the corporate company and certain stockholders he represented would oppose some of the proposed expenditures as too extravagant and would endeavor to arrive at a compromise plan with the receiver. He said that he realized betterments must be made.

Opposition to Expenditures.

He said that he would oppose the purchase of so many new cars. He realized, he said, that the rolling stock must be added to in view of increasing travel, but he did not favor the purchase of expensive motors when trailer cars might be brought into service efficiently.

The cost of reconstruction of the city system seemed extravagant, he said, but he might be able to agree with representatives of the receiver to a modified plan in this regard. He said he recognized that something must be done to better service.

Priest declared that he would oppose the St. Charles line expenditures on the ground that, though the United Railways owned the stock of the St. Charles line, that the physical property was not in reality owned by the United Railways, due to the existence of bonds, and all money spent on improvements would have to come from the city lines.

Fear of Foreclosure.

Randolph Laughlin, attorney for intervening bondholders, said that he would oppose the applications on the ground that the owners, not the receiver, should make the expenditures, as the receivership was only temporary and large expenditures might bring on a foreclosure, it being the object of the receivership to avoid such an eventuality.

F. H. Portman, who said that he owned 725 shares of preferred stock of the United Railways, asked to be heard, and Judge Lamm gave him permission. Portmann said that he had gone to the receiver for information about the affairs of the company and that the receiver told him that he could not discuss the affairs of the stockholders. He declared that there was a scheme on foot to spend large sums on the railways with the idea of forcing foreclosure, in which event, he said, "washwomen, school teachers and other poor persons will suffer."

Judge Lamm interrupted: "This, my dear sir, is a hearing to decide when we will discuss all those things. What have you to say about that?"

"I say, don't spend any more money," Portmann replied.

GIRLS SLEEP IN HALLS AT HOME

Rooms at the boarding house for girls at 3704-3730 Lindell boulevard conducted by the Queen's Daughters are so scarce that the halls are being utilized as bedrooms, according to a report read at the annual meeting of the organization, Thursday, at 3730 Lindell boulevard. During a period of six months last year the two houses accommodated an average of 68 girls a month.

The parish committee and emergency guild distributed during the year to the poor 2725 garments, 287 pairs of shoes, a quantity of bed clothing and furniture and clad 221 children for church and school. The cash expenditures in that line of work amounted to about $1325.

The present indebtedness of the Queen's Daughters' Home Association is about $15,000. Plans for building an addition to the girls' boarding house are under consideration.

MOOSEHEART BAND ON TRIP

The Mooseheart Boys' Band of 45 pieces, from the vocational training institution for orphans, at Gillespie, Ill., gave five concerts yesterday in St. Louis, East St. Louis and Granite City, in the interest of the campaign for members of the St. Louis lodge.

The boys arrived in St. Louis Friday night, and yesterday forenoon paraded through the downtown section to the city hall where they were welcomed by Mayor Kiel. In the afternoon they were taken by special car to East St. Louis and Granite City, where they were the guests of the Women's Mooseheart Legion, at a dinner. In the evening they gave a concert in the ballroom of the Planters Hotel. They left for Chicago at midnight.

TIRES

A FREE "OFFER" YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO PASS UP

YOU'VE NEVER HAD ONE LIKE IT BEFORE

It's just this—to acquaint you with the merits of this wonderful tire we will allow, on the purchase of every Perfection Tire, the following amounts for your old tires—no matter how worn they may be. Think of it!

Good for One Week Only, Beginning Monday, March 29th

Perfection Asbestos Tires have everything that other high-grade tires have in their construction.

AND they also have an extra ply of fabric and an open weave Asbestos Breaker Strip of our own weaving.

The Perfection "Rib-Skid" Tires made in regular and millimeter sizes, 6000 mile adjustment—built by our own experts that made Perfection Asbestos Tires famous.

FREE! FREE!

We will allow you this amount in cash for your old tires, no matter what make or what condition they are in, providing you buy Perfection Tires. And our mileage guarantee holds good on the tires you buy.

$6 for 30x3
$8 for 30x3½ 32x3½
$10 for 31x4 32x4 33x4 34x4
$12 for 32x4½ 33x4½ 34x4½ 35x4½ 36x4½ 37x4½ 33x5 35x5 37x5

With this Asbestos Strip protecting the layers of cotton fabrics we are able to subject our tires, in curing, to the degree of heat necessary for a thorough cure of the rubber.

Therefore the rubber tread has a tougher road-resisting quality than commonly used. The asbestos and rubber form a perfect union and therefore eliminate blisters and tread spread.

The asbestos is unaffected by moisture, acids and grease, and particularly by heat generated from the road friction.

And you'll find the Perfection Asbestos Protected Tires are Quality Tires—handmade by expert workmen under the most rigid inspection, and are sold on a REAL MILEAGE GUARANTEE.

MILEAGE GUARANTEE

Perfection Tires are sold under a positive adjustment of 8000 on all non-skid and 7000 miles on all plain tread. And you'll find that when the above mileage has been reached the tire has just warmed up to its best performance.

61 GIRLS SENT TO COLLEGE BY CLUB

St. Louis Organization Will Give Benefit April 14 for Funds to Continue Work.

BY MARGUERITE MARTYN.

Sixty-one stories of ambition, of self-denial, of achievement and of gratitude, members of the College Club of St. Louis are able to hug to their hearts warmingly as the offspring of their endeavors. Just 61 girls have through their own efforts won fellowships enabling them to complete the remaining three years or earned money—against what adversity it is easy to imagine—for their further tuition and expenses.

Many of these girls have paid back the amounts invested by their sponsors. Others still are endeavoring to pay back. For, though the College Club gives its protege a year's tuition outright and makes loans thereafter to be paid at the convenience of the recipient, it seems to be an essential attribute in the nature of the girl who yearns for and accepts a college education she cannot afford, that she should also be imbued with the pride and self-respect that forbid her remaining an object of charity and with that gratitude which impells her to want to help other girls to the advantages she has enjoyed.

Due to this attribute of pride in the nature of their proteges, members of the College Club do not often talk outside their own circle of its achievements. But now that it is asking the public to buy tickets for the annual benefit performance which is its chief source of revenue, three members and officers of the Club, Mrs. Hamar Lowenhaupt, Mrs. Wilson Burden and Miss H. E. Hiemenz thought a few characteristic examples of worthiness, with their identity guarded, showing a sympathetic public how the money is spent, might not be amiss.

Made Phi Beta Kappa.

"One of whom we are proud," related Miss Hiemenz, "is a girl who graduated at probably the best-known women's college in this country with the highest average ever made at that institution. She made her Phi Beta Kappa in three years, won a scholarship in another well-known university and is now on its faculty. After the first year she won her scholarship each year and paid her own expenses through her own earnings.

"Another achievement of which we are proud is that of a girl who came to us when she was 31 years old. She had remained at home on a farm keeping house according to her parents' idea of her duty, until her younger brothers had grown up, finished school or were otherwise launched in life, then she set out to fulfill her ambition. She came to St. Louis attempting to enter a high school to prepare herself for examinations for college. Mr. Blewitt, seeing how sincere she was, made an exception in her case, though she was beyond public school age. She worked in the household of a minister to eke out expenses. We gave her her first year at college. She won a fellowship so that she could continue, was graduated and holds a social service job in Chicago and, needless to say of such a determinedly ambitious as well as dutiful person, she has repaid her obligation in full."

Scotch Girl Described.

The quaint characters among the club's beneficiaries stirred Mrs. Hauptman to reminiscence. She told of a little Scotch girl who was like a character of a Barrie play, who, after the first year's gift asked for loans in pathetically small amounts and who, now that she is graduated and earning her livelihood, is repaying the loans in amounts just as meager and just as steadily as she borrowed. And of a girl of Swedish descent, but not educated in that tongue, who chose to go to the University of Nebraska because it is one of the few colleges offering the study of the Swedish language. She is now conducting a model dairy and extending her knowledge of agricultural college methods to people of her nativity in a Swedish community in Wisconsin.

Varied have been the resources from which they have earned money with which to maintain themselves while studying. One girl worked as waitress at a restaurant here in St. Louis during vacations. Stenography and secretarial work supported some. One girl made candy that became so celebrated a firm bought her recipes and the use of her name at a price which enabled her to be independent. Several did housework outside school hours, many were employed as menials in the institution, one had charge of dormitories, one took charge of a girls' camp in summer, one found employment in a carnation nursery.

Club Began in 1906.

The club has been in existence since 1906, and has assisted 61 girls through 11 different universities. Besides already mentioned positions into which graduates have gone, one has become chief of the research department of one of the largest advertising concerns in the country at a high salary, one is head of an important department of a large firm of chemists, several are teaching, one is executive on Chicago's United Charities, and some, "too few of them," Miss Helmenz remarked, have got married.

Mrs. Burden was insistent upon controverting any idea that girls thus needy and hard working had been "digs" or "grubs" at college. Usually they had distinguished themselves in the athletic and social life of the college, she said.

The plan of awarding scholarships is to circulate the offer among girls of the January and June graduating classes of St. Louis high schools, to inquire specifically into the needs of the applicant, ask what college is preferred and why. Then each must submit recommendations from three persons. The club then apportions its gift according to the needs of the applicant. Sometimes she needs only partial support or temporary assistance, but she may ask and receive her entire first year's expenses and loans thereafter. No stipulation is made that she repay the first year's gift, but the spirit of gratitude has invariably animated each girl thus far with the desire to treat even the first year's gift as a loan, knowing that what she is able to repay will be used to extend an opportunity to some other girl.

Nearer Schools Chosen.

Smith, Vassar, Gaucher, Barnard, Wisconsin, Illinois, Wellesley Western and Chicago colleges and universities have been among those selected, but with the instinct of economy highly developed, the majority have chosen schools nearer at hand, 22 having attended Washington and 18 the University of Missouri.

The offer of the scholarship is restricted to the first year, since there are fellowships to be won in nearly all colleges after the freshman year.

The attraction of this year's benefit, which will occur the evening of April 14, at the American Theater, will be Mrs. Fiske in her new play, "Miss Nellie of N'Orleans." The ticket sale begins April 3. College Club night is always a gala event, participated in not only by members of this club but made by all college men and women, an occasion for the interchange of college spirit, the singing of college songs and flaunting of college colors from the boxes.

The Best Truck Tire Made

THE life of your truck is more important than the life of its tires. Let Akron's great Cord Truck Tire save your trucks from wear and tear. Don't spare your tires and spoil your truck. Buy the best tire made.

Don't judge The General Tire by any other pneumatic standards than its own. Don't think that because other tires are built with cords they are in the same class with The General Cord. Don't be satisfied until you have used this tire—until you have compared your truck repair, replacement and fuel bills with the cost of using The General Cord Tire — and know for yourself that it is cheaper to use The General Cord than any other type or make of tire at any price or mileage.

AUGUST NASSE DIES AT 82

Wholesale Grocer Was Veteran of Civil War and Lived in St. Louis 65 Years.

August Nasse, 82 years old, of 2823 Lafayette avenue, wholesale grocer, died yesterday at his home of nephritis. He was born in Augusta, St. Charles County, in 1837, and had lived in St. Louis since he was 17.

He served in the Union Army and at the close of the war entered the flour business with Erhardt D. Franz. Soon afterward he entered the firm of Fink, Nasse & Glidehaus. After 20 years he established the wholesale grocery business of August Nasse & Sons. He survived his three sons and also his wife.

Nasse was considered an authority on the coffee, sugar and flour markets. He made several trips to California and in 1910 headed a party of St. Louisans who made a trip to the Panama Canal. Until two weeks ago he was able to attend to his business.

Schwab Tells Princeton Students What They Must Do to Succeed in Business

Steel Magnate Stresses Loyalty, Concentration, Good Humor and the Making of Friends as Essential Qualities in a Paternal Talk.

(Herewith are presented excerpts from a talk by Charles M. Schwab to the students of Princeton University last week. Though Mr. Schwab announced at the beginning of the address that he had not prepared any manuscript because he wished to respond to their request as a father would speak to his sons on the eve of their setting out in life to make their own way. The result was a very intimate, chatty, extemporaneous talk, full of sage advice out of the speaker's own fund of observation and experience, for he began life at the bottom and rose to his present position, that of first of all the practical steel men of the world.)

IF I were asked to say the most important things that lead to a successful life I should say that, first of all, was integrity—unimpeachable integrity. No man can ever do anything of any great value in life and have the confidence and approval of his fellow-men or be successful in his undertakings with other business men if he doesn't have the reputation of being a man of honor and integrity; and I don't mean by that that a man shall be so high in the moral and social state of life that he is incapable of any action that might not be regarded as always right, but I have the highest regard for a man who, when he has done something wrong, manfully admits it and constantly sticks to the truth of integrity, however much it may seem to hurt.

I am going to speak of a young man that I regard as the most successful young man I have ever known. And if I did not regard him as the most successful young man that I know, he would not be the president of the Bethlehem Steel Co. I am going to speak of a young man that I have known since he was a man your age. I refer to Eugene Grace. You may have heard of him—and you baseball fans undoubtedly did—because he came down and played baseball at Princeton many years. He came from Lehigh University. When I first knew him, he was a shoveler of coal with an electric crane. I followed his career on and on and on. And whatever may have been said of Mr. Grace, you could always depend upon it absolutely that when Mr. Grace said a thing you would know the absolute facts, good, bad or indifferent. And today Mr. Grace stands among the great business men of New York and this country, with the reputation of being a man with absolute integrity and a man upon whom everybody can place the greatest possible confidence.

"Good Time" Versus Success.

Now, boys, that is the very foundation of a successful life. With this to start upon, then the other is going to be easy going and easy following. You can make up your mind to do one of two things. You can have a good time in life or you can have a successful life, but you can't have both. You have got to make up your mind at the start which of the two you are going to have. There is no royal road to a successful life, as there is no royal road to learning. It has got to be hard knocks, morning, noon and night, and fixity of purpose. Never has there been a time in the history of the world when so much opportunity offers for the leading of a successful life as today. What would I not give to be one of your age again and have the opportunity of starting life afresh! You think the opportunities of the past will not be the opportunities of the future. In that, boys, you make a mistake.

When I first started in the steel business the whole United States produced only 1,000,000 tons of steel in a year. That was about 1880. In 1890 we had got to 8,000,000, in 1900 to 12,000,000 and in 1920 we have got to 45,000,000 tons of steel annually. Now, we thought 20 years ago that the steel business had reached its zenith. We are just as far from the zenith today during your normal lifetime as we were from the zenith 20 years ago.

I don't say you shall become manufacturers or business men or professional men—I don't know what you are going to be. But this I do know: That any man who goes into anything in life and does it better than the average will have a successful life. If he does it worse than the average his life will not be successful. And no business can exist in which success cannot be won on that basis. If it did exist and nobody could make a proper success or get a proper return from it in life, the business would tend to go out until it would reach a basis on which it could be profitable.

Loyalty Put First of All.

Another important thing is loyalty. Now, that is what you boys in universities and colleges learn. You learn loyalty to your alma mater. You learn loyalty to your fellow-students. You learn loyalty to the friendships that are going to follow you through life. The one thing that you are distinctively in the university is that you are loyal men. Be loyal. What little success I may have won in life I attribute to the loyalty I had for a dear old friend who was my first steel master, whom you perhaps have never heard of, Capt. Bill Jones.

Capt. Jones was a great mechanic, just a natural genius at mechanical things. No education at all. He knew nothing of engineering or chemistry or the sciences. Now, I was thrown in, fortunately, with him. I made up my mind that I could be very useful to that man by learning things that he could not learn, and above all by being loyal to him and never letting the world know that the things for which he received credit were not his own creation. Boys, did you ever stop to think that a great man in life who has won great acclaim and great reputation is the very man who is willing to share and give the honor to others in the doing of the things that made him great? The man that will selfishly stand alone and proclaim that he is the man who has done these things never is the man who really did them. My own experience is that there is no real effort in life that is not done better under encouragement and approval of your fellow-men. A man goes along then with greater confidence. You must learn to let others share with you in that which you are doing, and honor and credit will be reflected upon you for so doing.

SCHWAB TELLS YOUNG MAN WHAT TO DO TO SUCCEED

Marshal Foch, the great commander, said to me a short time ago, when I congratulated him upon the wonderful work of the war: "This great military staff is like an orchestra, and each one fills his place. Each is equally important in the functioning of the whole. If the baton is in my hands it is merely a matter of chance, but we shall see to it that each man in this staff gets recognition for that which is due.' You never heard a great man say "I did this" or "I will do that."

Fault-Finding Poor Policy.

In the management of my great enterprises I have yet to ever find fault with any man. If a man is of the character that you must find fault with to get the best out of him he is not the man to be desired in an organization. Show me the man that will do his best under approval and I will show you the man that has within him the elements for successful going ahead.

Now, to come back to loyalty. Be loyal to the people with whom you associate at the start. When this good Capt. Jones came to the end of his life's work do you not suppose it was worth more to me than anything else to have him say: "That is the man that helped me do those things"? Remember always that it will but attract attention and credit to yourself to share it with those who help you. Be loyal when you start life, boys, wherever you start. Make your employer feel truthfully that you are sincere with him; that you are going to promote his interests; that you are going to stand for the things which he represents; that you are proud of being a member of his staff, and there is nothing that will reap you a richer reward. Loyalty above all!

Boys, there are other things in life than the mere work. I believe in appreciation of the finer things in life, the learning to know the beauties of literature and art and music, will help any man in his career. A man to carry on a successful business must have imagination. He must see things as in a vision, a dream of the whole thing. You can cultivate this faculty only by an appreciation of the finer things in life. No active business life, whether it is manufacturing or something else, can prevent you from enjoying the beauties of life. These finer things will contribute to your success.

The Value of Business Friendship.

Be friends with everybody. When you have friends you will know there is somebody who will stand by you. You know the old saying that if you have a single enemy you will find him everywhere. It doesn't pay to make enemies. Lead the life that will make you kindly and friendly to every one about you, and you will be surprised at what a happy life you will live.

I said coming down in the carriage, "What would I not give to be your age again!" I have not a single regret in life. The hardships that have come to me in life have but made me the keener enjoyer of the good things in life. I tell a story of a German workman I had years ago, and a saying of his that I adopted as a motto in life. We were having labor difficulties at the mill. He was a loyal fellow. The workmen picked him up and threw him into the river one day because he had reported for work. He came into my office all covered with mud and water, to tell me what had happened. I asked him what he said. He said, "I yust laughed." That's the thing to do—"Yust laugh."

I am going to tell you a little more—I am not lecturing tonight, but just talking as if you were in my drawing room. I would just like to say to you what I feel just as if you were my own sons.

I want to tell you a little more about this man Grace, because one often sees the points in a successful life best by analyzing a single individual. I told you of his great faculty of making good, no matter in what position he was placed. This boy went on and on. Above all, he worked hard with that brain of his which had been trained in the university to think and concentrate upon the subject that he was thinking about until he had reached a satisfactory conclusion. Now, that is the great point, to concentrate and think upon the problem in mind until you have reached a satisfactory conclusion in your own mind, and then finally go ahead. If you have made a mistake, all right. Never find fault with a man because he has made a mistake. It is only a fool that makes the same mistake the second time. I tell a story of my own experience with Mr. Carnegie as showing what this might mean.

An Anecdote About Carnegie.

As chief engineer of the works I had just built a converting mill. I went to him and said to him: "If you will give me the money to build this mill I can save 50 cents a ton." Of course he provided the money, and the mill was built. He came out to see it. I walked around with him. He saw the look of disappointment in my face and said: "Charlie, there is something wrong here. What is it?" I said: "It is exactly what I told you, and it is better than I told you. We save more than I said. But I don't mind saying that if I had to do the whole thing over again I would do it so and so. I made a mistake in that particular." He said: "Can you change it?" I said: "No." He said: "What does it mean?" I said: "It means tearing it down and doing it over again." He said: "Go ahead and do it. Don't make the same mistake a second time." Do you suppose if he had been a fault-finding man I ever would have told him? Not at all. He brought out the best within me. When that mill was torn down and a second one took its place it was as great a success over the first as the first had been over the old one.

Mr. Carnegie had my confidence, and I had his confidence. He believed in everything I had told him. If I had told him something that was wrong and not admitted my mistake, he would never have allowed me to progress, and his works and his great establishment would never have progressed as they did.

Now in my own establishment you will be interested to know something about how we do things. You boys will all, of course, have to start to work upon a salary. But the quicker you get out of working for a salary the better for all concerned. In our works at Bethlehem and San Francisco and all over the United States I adopted this system: I pay the managers of our works practically no salary. I make them partners in the business, only I don't let them share in the efforts of any other men. For example, if a man is manager of a blast furnace department he makes profit out of the successful conduct of his department, but I don't allow him to share in the prosperity of some other able man in some other department of the establishment. I give him a percentage of what he saves or makes in the department immediately under his own control and management. For example, if it takes a dollar a ton to make pig iron, and it takes him a dollar a ton to make pig iron, I say to him:

"Well, you are no better than the average manager over the country. Therefore you are entitled to only the usual wages. But if you can make pig iron at 90 cents a ton you are entitled to share with me in a large part of the profits. And if you make it for 40 or 50 cents a ton you share to a very large degree.

Grace Earns Over $1,000,000 a Year.

Therefore, I don't care how much a man earns. The more he earns the better I like him. And I pay in what I call bonuses to the various superintendents and managers of the different establishments more money for the successful management than I pay the stockholders of the concern in dividends. And it will surprise you to know the great sums of money that some of these men make. I would be afraid to tell you for fear of discouraging you in your start in life. But I don't mind saying that forty, sixty, a hundred thousand dollars a year for these men is not infrequent. And in the case of men like Mr. Grace, well, many, many times that.

It is a matter of common knowledge and it is a matter that has been published. And I am glad to tell you that in the carrying out of this principle Mr. Grace has earned considerably more than $1,000,000 a year.

Now, I do the same with the working people. I say that a good workman is entitled to more pay than a poor workman. And, therefore, wherever it is possible we have our workmen paid for the amount of work they do. I know that is contrary to the general rules of trade unionism, etc., but it is the proper economic basis that a man shall be paid for the work that he does. And so I carry this principle

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

MAN ADMITS SHOOTING AT O'BRIEN AND GETS 12 YEARS

Henry Carr Sentenced Six Years for Robbery Attempt and Six for Attack.

Henry Carr, 26 years old, of 1423A Bremen avenue, was sentenced to 12 years in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge Taylor yesterday on his plea of guilty to having shot at Chief of Police O'Brien following an attempt to rob the jewelry store of H. H. Gerhardt, 3224 Olive street, Oct. 31 last. He was given six years on the assault charge and six years on the charge of attempted robbery.

Joseph Henry, who was implicated with Carr in the Gerhardt holdup, was tried last week by a jury on a charge of having participated in a robbery at the jewelry store of Walter Voss, 4106 West Florissant avenue, Oct. 26 last, when jewelry and watches valued at $1900 were stolen, and was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment. He is awaiting trial on the charges growing out of the Gerhardt holdup and the shooting of Chief O'Brien.

William Manley, who was jointly indicted with Henry in connection with the Voss robbery, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge Taylor on his plea of guilty.

THREE IN SAME FAMILY DIE

Three of the four members of the William E. Coates family at Hillview, north of Jerseyville, died of pneumonia during the past week. Mrs. Coates, aged 39, died Saturday. Alma, a 13-year-old daughter, died Sunday, and the father, William E. Coates, died Wednesday. A double funeral for the mother and daughter was held at the Hillview Baptist church. The other daughter, Wilma, the only surviving member of the family, is seriously ill, as is Mrs. Coates' brother, George Powell, of Greenfield, Ill., who was stricken with influenza while caring for the family.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The week on the Stock Exchange ended with business still monopolized by the more erratic industrial shares, whose movement was highly irregular. In general, the tendency was towards higher prices, but there were plain indications of heavy realizing in some of those stocks, while others were being bid up by the professional speculators. This process left the day's net changes much confused, and the net results as a whole not important."

"Sterling declined slightly, after its 8-cent rise of yesterday; but the market was not active. Exchange moved against France and Italy also, but only to a moderate extent. The London gold premium did not change from yesterday. On the basis of par for the British mint price, gold now sells at London for 123⅛, as against 131⅞ a week ago, and 149⅝ at the February maximum.

"From last Saturday's $7,975,000 deficit, the bank statement showed today a surplus restored of $31,829,000. This resulted partly from $37,000,000 reduction of deposit liabilities, but chiefly from addition of $35,568,000 to reserve credits at the Federal bank. This reflected an increase, shown in the New York Reserve bank's report, of $87,000,000 in its loans and rediscounts. In spite of a very substantial increase in the bank's cash holdings, its reserve ratio increased only from 38⅞ per cent to 39⅜.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, March 27.—Despite the profit taking incidental to the week-end, stocks were strong at the broad and active opening of today's session. Motors and their specialties continued to lead, assisted by shippings, equipments and oils.

Outstanding features included Stutz, Chandler, Studebaker, Pierce-Arrow and Stromberg, Atlantic Gulf, Mexican Petroleum, Texas Company, Baldwin and American Locomotives, American Car, Republic Iron and American Woolen, at gains of 1 to 6 points. The market reacted within the first half hour, however, on a sharp break in General Motors.

5205 Automobile Tires!

(Nearly 6 Carloads—Almost $135,000 Worth)

At a Saving From 30% to 40%

We Purchased the Entire Stock of U. S. Revere Tires of One of the Largest Jobbers in America

Here is a sale of Automobile Tires that will be of interest to every automobile owner who is fortunate enough to know about it. At the present prices of tires, and with no assurance that the prices have reached the peak, a sale of this kind is welcome indeed to any user of Automobile Tires.

If you will notice the tables below and figure the saving, you will not let anything interfere with your placing an order for the full amount that you are permitted to buy. Not more than six Tires sold to any one customer, and none sold to dealers.

United States Guaranteed Tires

The sale includes 3154 United States Tires, all first quality, in the original wrappers as they came from the factory, all new and subject to the factory guarantee. Every Tire is an absolute "first," and you take no chance in either phoning or mailing your order to us, upon receipt of this notice.

Also included are 2051 "Special Brand" of a well-known make, which are called "seconds" for the reason that there are some small blemishes that ought not to affect the wearing quality of the Tire. Read carefully the price list below.

through every establishment that I have. The Bethlehem business is now the second largest business in the United States. It was exceeded only by the Steel Corporation last year. Other than that, it was the largest business in the United States, and I give it no more thought or no more attention and not as much as I have to my coming to be a guest of you boys here this evening.

Now, to be more practical: A lot of you fellows are going out into life. Let me give you a bit of advice. If you have any influence in the world to get you a start in life, don't use it. The worst thing that can happen to a man is to start life with influence. He has got to do twice as well as the fellow that starts upon his own merits, because, after all, it depends on the general opinion of all those around you as to how competent and successful you are, and when everybody says that you do well because of the influence back of you, then you have got to do twice as well as otherwise. If you are going into any manufacturing establishment, don't go there by reason of any influence you may have. Start upon your own merits, and start in some lowly position, no matter what it is. Be a laborer, if you will. I don't know but that is the best way to start.

A man educated in a great university like Princeton is 10 times the man who has not been educated in a university, if he will only learn that education in a university is not different from education in a workshop. You cannot be aristocrats unless you earn the right of aristicracy. And the aristocracy in the future is not one of wealth or university education, but the arictocracy of the men who have done something for themselves and their fellow men. And that is what will make the real man. That is the lesson that you have got to learn, and that is the lesson that so many of our college boys don't learn. They go into a great industrial or other establishment, and they imagine because they have a diploma from Princeton or Lehigh or Lafayette or some other college or university that they are in a different plane from the other men. Boys, unless you get that out of your heads you are going to learn the sorriest lesson you ever learned, because it won't succeed.

Importance of Simplicity.

This great war has taught us many things. The one thing it has taught us above everything else is that the true life is the life of modern democracy and simplicity; that it is not one of show or of extravagance; that we are men because we are men and because we have the true instincts of men, and we are not men because we are rich or because we occupy a high social position or because we have influence. Now, that's the thing that boys from universities have got to learn. And they are learning it fast, and this war has taught us more than anything else that it is now the fashion, and it is in the most liberal sense the fashion, to be simple and to be democratic; that the real man is the man that will live in that way and derive more genuine pleasure and satisfaction in the doing of it than he imagined before.

I had a lesson brought home to me here today that I have been thinking of ever since. You have here in Princeton the daughter of my dearest friend, Mr. Carnegie, and I went to her home to see her today, to wish her the happiness that she deserves. I was the first one to see her but 21 or two years ago, and I saw her today. With all of her wealth and everything that she might have that the imagination might devise, I saw her living in the simplest of cottages in the simplest and most unostentatious style and the happiest young woman it has been my privilege to meet for many years.

Find the Work You Enjoy.

Now, boys, there is an object lesson for all of us. I have a great house in New York. I have a great country estate. About the only pleasure I get out of it is the fact that I have to pay its taxes and have enough money in bank to do it with. I don't own the estate and I don't own the house. They own me. My secretary made up one day a list of my assets and liabilities. I am not going to tell you what they were. But he had this great estate and house on the side of my personal assets, I said: "You are wrong; they are not an asset, they are a liability. Put them on the other side." So it is, boys. As I grow older I find I want to have simpler things about me, the truest of old friends. And, boys, if you could know the joy of the long association and companionship with men such as I have known you would realize that you yet are to have such a compensation for old age as you have no idea of and you are to enjoy the truest thrills that come to the life of any man.

Now, boys, I have talked to you a long time. I have talked because I love to talk to you, and I see how interested you look. Just one thing more. Go at your work. You may not find yourself the first year. You may start at work that you think will not be agreeable to you. Do not hesitate to change. If you find that it is not according to your tastes and ultimate ambitions, then change and go into something that is more pleasant.

No man can be successful at work if he doesn't find the work he has to do pleasant. No man can ever do a thing well that he is not interested in. You boys will find in your classes that you do best in the things you like to do. When you start in life if you find you are wrongly placed don't hesitate to change, but don't change because troubles come up and difficulties arise. You must meet and overcome and conquer them. And in meeting and overcoming and conquering them you will make yourself stronger for the future.

Then go on and select your work. Let us suppose you become a craneman. Suppose you become a clerk in a lawyer's office. Give the best that is in you. Let nothing stand in the way of your going on.

How Charles W. Baker Rose.

I am going to tell you the story of a man that came to see me in New York, Charles W. Baker, the president of the American Zinc Company, a very good friend of mine. Thirty years ago as manager of the Homestead Mills I went to Cleveland to see some plates that were being made. I got there at 6 o'clock in the morning. I had telegraphed the superintendent that I would be there that morning. He was in the office. But, being early in the morning, I went right out to the works, thinking I might see something out there that would guide me in the making of these plates. When I got to the works I found this young man Baker, a stenographer and employe of the office, who had not been directed to go out there, but who thought when the works manager arrived out there he might want somebody to be on hand to meet him, and he was there, the only one that was there. And when I went back I said to the superintendent: "Watch that young man. When you have a chance give him a chance, because he is in earnest." It wasn't long before Baker got to be his assistant. Later he was agent. Later I made him the general agent of the whole Carnegie Company. Later I made him a partner. Today he is many times a millionaire and the president of the great American Zinc Company in New York. That is the story. That one little thing helped him forward.

But don't believe, boys that you can make opportunities for things like this. That will always fail. They must come naturally, and the only way that they can come naturally is to give your whole heart, give your whole soul, give your every thought, give your every act to the accomplishment of what you are going to undertake. If you will but make up your mind and determination to go through with what you undertake, you will have done more toward a successful life than you will have done in graduating from this great university, and you will do that which will bring you more genuine pleasure, satisfaction, and comfort in life than anything else you will ever do.

PALMS SAME PRICE AS IN 1919

Palms cost no more this year than they did in 1919, but the price is double what it was five years ago, according to Eugene C. Gummersbach, manager of the B. Herder Book Co., 17 South Broadway, distributing agents for palms in St. Louis.

Two carloads of palms, valued at $15,600, have been distributed to Catholic and some Episcopal Churches for use at Palm Sunday services today. They were shipped from Florida.

Safe Fat Reduction

Reduce, reduce, reduce is the slogan of all fat people. Get thin, be slim is the cry of fashion and society. And the everfat wring their hands in mortification and helplessness, revolting at nauseating drugs, afraid of violent exercise, dreading the unwelcome and unsatisfying diet, until they hit upon the harmless Marmola Prescription and learn through it that they may safely reduce two, three or four pounds a week without one change in their mode of life, but harmlessly, secretly and quickly reaching their ideal of figure, with a smoother skin, better appetite and health than they have ever known. And now comes Marmola Prescription Tablets from the same famously harmless formula as the Marmola Prescription. It behooves you to learn the satisfactory, beneficial effects of this great, safe fat reducer by giving to your druggist $1 for a generous-sized case or sending a like amount to the Marmola Co., 884 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich., with a request that they mail to you a full case of Marmola Prescription Tablets.—ADV.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! How good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

Brings Out Beauty You Didn't Know Was There

You can now so transform your complexion that you'll look like one fresh from the Fountain of Youth. You merely mix a little lemon juice with a spoonful of powdered tarkroot and cover the face with this harmless emulsion. As it dries into a thin shell-like mask, bringing the blood to the surface, you feel a delightful soothing sensation, and your mirror shows a delicate girlish bloom mounting your cheeks. Your lips have the beautiful redness of a ripe cherry. There's sparkle in your eyes. Your skin becomes youthfully fresh, clear and soft. The treatment also serves as an effective preventive of freckles, blackheads, pimples and blotches.

The general rejuvenating effect of this simple face mask is so marvelous that the drug stores are having a big demand for powdered tarkroot. The new treatment is creating a real sensation.

A BOOSTER FOR SULPHERB TABLETS

There are thousands of such boosters for Sulpherb Tablets, and that is why hundreds of thousands are sold by druggists every year. Mr. Robert Clemence, 233 S. Wilbur avenue, Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "I have taken 3 packages of Sulpherb Tablets, and my bowels are moving regularly now, and I am a great deal stronger than I was when I started taking them. I was all run down and weak from the long, continued stomach, liver and bowel trouble. I know 4 or 5 men that work with me were troubled the same as I was. I told them about Sulpherb Tablets, and now they are all taking them, and say they are the best medicine they have ever tried, etc." Sold by all druggists. Be sure of the name, Sulpherb—not "sulphur."

HOUSEWIVES LECTURED ON USE OF CHEAP MEATS

Domestic Science Teachers at Meeting at Which Cheaper Cuts Are Displayed.

Domestic science teachers and housewives were given a demonstration yesterday at the wholesale market of Swift & Co., 2816 North Broadway, of how the cheaper cuts of meat may be substituted for the higher priced cuts and the nutritive value of the foods remain the same.

In the smoked beef room there had been prepared an exhibit of the cuts which are less frequently used. These had been arranged in such fashion as to attract the eye and call attention to their palatable qualities.

J. R. Stephenson of Chicago, an expert on fancy meats, gave a brief talk to the women, telling them that thousands of dollars could be saved in each large city annually if the housewives would learn that there is just as much nutrition in the cheaper cuts as in those which cost much more. He explained the process by which meats are packed and prepared for use and asserted that cold storage meats were equally as good and as well prepared as fresh meats, the only difference being that the storage meats were made more tender by the effect of the extreme temperature on the tissues.

Reference to Prices.

In Chicago, he said, research work is now under way to determine how women of the country can be made to understand that the higher-priced cuts were not necessarily the best. "Everyone thinks meat is high," he said, "and it is much higher than a few years ago, but we also know that if there is more production there is certain to be a lowering of prices. Seven per cent of the animals comprise the cheaper cuts and portion. Add 7 per cent to the production or consumption of meat and you add considerably to the total amount for sale."

Stephenson cited the prices of several of the cheaper cuts as compared with porterhouse and sirloin at 60 and 50 cents a pound, respectively.

"Porterhouse and sirloin are wonderful meats," he said. "But there is no reason why if it is nutrition one is looking for that one cannot obtain other cuts just as good and for much less money, for instance, and here I will cite the prices of some of the meats not so often used and just as good—chuck roast, 25 cents; shank roast, 20 cents; brisket, 25 cents; navel roast, 25 cents; shoulder clod, 35 cents; chuck steak, 30 cents; rib steaks, 30 cents, rib roast, 40 cents; flank steak, 30 cents; round steak, 30 cents; rump steak, 25 cents.

Meats on Display.

"And let me say a word for rump steak. It is seldom heard of these days and yet it is splendid meat and filled with nutritive qualities. Let me commend it to your use. And then there are the pork livers, hearts of both beef and pork, kidneys, pork tails, pork feet, pork snouts, brains, pork ears, beef, pork and sheep melts by which we mean the spleen and pork plucks, meaning the heart and liver joined. All of these meats make good food, and are so much cheaper than the expensive steaks and roasts."

One entire side of the room was given over to a display of the meats listed by Stephenson in this category.

Books containing 100 recipes each for cooking the cheaper varieties of meat were distributed, and the teachers were asked to distribute these among their pupils and ask that they take them into their homes, carrying on this way a campaign of education looking to the establishment of a nation-wide "cheaper meat" campaign.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN ON TRUCKS PLANNED BY NEGROES

Two Churches to Join in Services to Start Easter Sunday; Machines to Carry Singers.

The First Baptist Church (negro), Cardinal and Bell avenues, of which the Rev. O. C. Maxwell, 4375 West Belle place, is pastor, will conduct a three weeks' evangelistic campaign, beginning Easter Sunday, under the leadership of Rev. L. K. Williams, pastor of Olivette Baptist Church, Chicago, said to have one of the largest congregations in the world.

The program will include street meetings at which services will be conducted from two large motor trucks at corners in various parts of the city between 5 and 7 p. m., daily. Services at the church will be at 3 and 8 p. m., daily. The First Baptist pastor will preach from one of the trucks and the services in the other truck will be conducted by the Rev. J. H. Branham, an assistant at Olivette.

There will be special music at the church services, and each truck will carry a group of singers and a delegation of workers who will distribute literature.

The Rev. Mr. Williams is a member of the Illinois Constitutional Convention and is president of the negro branch of the Illinois State Baptist Conference. He formerly was president of Bishop College at Marshall, Tex. His congregation in Chicago holds services in two buildings. He has three assistant pastors, a force of 15 paid workers and 27 different departments. He has provided motor busses to convey the elderly members of his congregation from their homes to church.

Member of Swiss Society Dies.

Ulrich Brugger of 4300 Chouteau avenue, who died Wednesday was a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Swiss Society, Swiss Club, Swiss Singing Society and the Rock Spring Singing Society. Funeral services were held at the Missouri Crematory.

RUSSIAN SOUVENIRS ON VIEW AT JEFFERSON MEMORIAL

Collection Loaned by Ambassador Francis Will Be Open to the Public Today.

A large collection of autographed photographs and other pictures and souvenirs of the Russian revolution and beginning of the Soviet, brought to St. Louis by Ambassador David R. Francis, has been placed on view in the west wing of the Jefferson Memorial, and is open to the public today. This collection has been loaned to the Missouri Historical Society, and a private view for members of the society and invited guests was held a fortnight ago. As long as it remains at the Jefferson Memorial members of the Missouri Historical Society will be privileged to see it at any time, officers of that society announce, but the public will be admitted only on Sundays, because it is placed in the section that is open only on Sunday.

The collection contains a number of souvenirs of Kerensky, including an autographed photograph of the Provisional President and autographed photographs of the allied Ambassadors, as well as many of the notable figures in the Russian Governments which succeeded each other during the time Ambassador Francis was in Russia. A pair of reindeer skin boots, worn by Russian travelers on long sledge journeys, and used on several occasions by Ambassador Francis when he was obliged to make long trips after the Provisional Government was overthrown, also are in the collection.

Although Born in 1839 Dr. Caldwell Can Still Be Found in His Office Daily

Founder of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin strong and vigorous at eighty-one.

Physicians know that good health depends upon proper digestion and elimination and that much sickness results from constipation. No one knows this better than the family doctor.

DR. W. B. Caldwell of Monticello, Illinois, was and is a family doctor. The whole human body, not any small part of it, was his practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

Dr. Caldwell in the course of 40 years' practice, for he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875, had found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year the preparation was first placed on the market. The picture of Dr. Caldwell that appears on the package was taken in that year.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in the doctor's private practice. Today the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it, for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is selling at the rate of over 6 million bottles a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Syrup Pepsin, and the formulator of that prescription is fortunately living to see its wonderful success.

Women, children and elderly people are especially benefitted by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. While it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases, it is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby and children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home. Where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL TODAY

Born Shelbyville, Mo., March 27, 1839

Began the manufacture of his famous prescription in 1892

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

6 MONTHS IN JAIL FOR MOONSHINING WHISKY AT HOME

Rumanian Also Fined $600 by Judge Faris, but Fines Will Be Remitted After Jail Term.

Isie Yonescu, 321A Marion street, a native of Rumania, was fined $600 and sentenced to serve six months in the St. Charles County jail on his plea of guilty in the United States District Court yesterday on two charges of "moonshining."

He was sentenced to one month in jail on a charge of setting up an unlicensed still in his home and to six months in jail for making illicit whisky in his home. The jail sentences were made concurrent. The fines are to be remitted when he has served his imprisonment.

Yonescu was arrested Dec. 14 last when a still, a quantity of raisin and corn mash and whisky which he had made, were found in his home. A few days later he was again arrested on a charge of having made whisky in his home.

The lighter sentence was on the charge of setting up an unlicensed still. As to the charge that Yonescu made whisky in his home his attorney told the Court his client was ignorant of the law, and had read in a foreign language newspaper that it was legal to make whisky at home for one's own use.

"I myself even thought it was all right until I studied the law," said the attorney.

"Well," said Judge Faris, "that plea can no longer work. It is time to stop this practice of making intoxicants in the home."

PALM SUNDAY SONG SERVICE AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH TONIGHT

Congregation to Join With That of Second Baptist Church in Observance of Holy Week.

A Palm Sunday service of song will be given at St. John's Methodist Church, King's highway and Washington boulevard. This evening, during which the "Crucifixion" by Stainer will be rendered by the church choir, led by A. I. Epstein, organist and choir leader, assisted by Mrs. Epstein, soprano; Glenn Lee, tenor; W. W. Gibson, bass, and Miss Helen Ludwig, alto. The Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt will preach at the morning service on "The Conquering Christ."

The Palm Sunday services are the first in the Holy Week program, in which the Second Baptist Church and St. John's will join. The week's program is as follows: Monday, 4 p. m. at Second Baptist, Dr. Holt as speaker; Tuesday, 4 p. m., St. John's, the Rev. Dr. William C. A Harrowing Tale

An "oil can" she had wed for life
He knew not how to treat a wife.
He never gave this girl a thrill.
She wanted a sinner to fill the bill.

—SUCH A GOOD MAN COULD NOT LIVE LONG.

So after her hubby had passed away,
She searched for a sinner both night and day.
She captured a male in a swell cafe
But this bird was careful and flew away.

—BUT THE WIDOW STILL PURSUED HIM.

The would-be sinner ne'er came around
So she decided to run him down.
She dressed in a gown of the vampire style.
Even the bellhop was shocked for a while.

—SHE WAS IN A BACHELOR APARTMENT.

Just what it took to meet her need;
This sinner had—oh, yes, indeed!
And when she learned, she thought she'd faint.
Her sinner proved to be a saint.
OH SIN: WHERE IS THY STING!

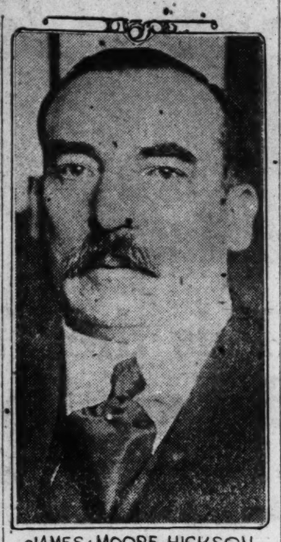
Cures Come Direct From God in Answer to Faith, Belief of Healer Hickson

English Episcopal Layman, to Come to St. Louis Tomorrow, Says Interest in Gospel Promises to Reawaken.



JAMES MOORE HICKSON.

ONE day last June an unimportant looking Englishman stepped off a Liverpool liner at Hoboken. He was met by several clergymen of New York, but the battalion of ship news reporters at the pier, eagerly seeking distinguished passengers, passed him by without notice.

One morning, several days later, an enormous throng gathered in front of Trinity Chapel on West Twenty-sixth street. It seemed as if all the lame, halt and blind in New York had been assembled on this particular week-day morning. Inside a continual line of afflicted was wending its way slowly towards the chancel steps, where stood the same Englishman laying his hands on the heads of each as they passed.

Such was the advent in America of James Moore Hickson, layman of the Church of England, who is scheduled to spend three days in St. Louis—tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday—preaching the gospel of spiritual healing which is spreading rapidly through the American Episcopal Church. Since last June, Mr. Hickson has visited Boston, Baltimore, Albany, Philadelphia and Detroit and several other cities. In nearly every case he slipped into the city, unannounced except to the ailing. He is touring the United States at the request of nearly every Bishop of the Episcopal Church who saw him conduct a healing mission during the church's general convention in Detroit last October.

Does Healer Hickson actually cure people through faith? Let him answer.

"No, but Christ does." In a newspaper interview, he said:

"I wish you would emphasize as best you can the fact that I do not claim to be a healer. I do claim that I am instrumental in being able to turn the attention of the church to the fact that, until the fifth century, it was able through Christ to 'heal the sick.' Also I wish it to be made plain that the new work to which I am calling the church does not in any way conflict with the work of physicians and surgeons. I wish we could understand that all power of healing comes from the one source, from God himself; that it is God who has endowed herbs with healing qualities; that it is God who blesses the ministry of medicine and surgery.

An Agency of God.

"There are some cases that can be treated by this spiritual healing which I am advocating. There are many that are affected by the combined efforts, in the name of God, of doctors and physicians of the souls. But it is the agency of God that is in all and through all.

"I have told of the success that we have met in dealing with little children. Sometimes we have been at the bedsides of sleeping children and we have been able to bring the power of healing to them. In the cases of some adults, despite their avowed attitude of sympathy there is a lack of faith, and there is, in consequence a want of success.

CURES COME DIRECT FROM GOD BELIEF OF HEALER HICKSON

"I have been asked what type of cases respond most readily to the treatment. This is difficult to answer except by the statement that one cannot limit the power of the Infinite. The very fact that one presupposes a limitation indicates a want of faith.

"One newspaper editor cited the instance of a man whose hand had been amputated, and said the ultimate test would be the growth of a new hand. I do not agree with him. We are not talking of restoration of amputated members. We are talking of healing. The healing of the stump from which the hand had been severed would be an argument in favor of that which we teach. But it will be argued that the stump would heal through the agency of medicine and the natural processes. I reply that all healing is God. And it is a fact that cases which have not responded to medicine alone have responded to our administration.

"Take the matter of a bad habit, for instance. Medicine and surgery are important. But our healing ministrations accomplish the seeming impossible. This, of course, is not the ministry of the body.

"My mission is to awaken the church to the power of faith to a consciousness that even as Christ did heal, so He can heal today. It is a consciousness that the church has lost. It promises a reawakening interest in the gospel of the living God."

Came by Invitation.

Mr. Hickson came to America at the invitation of the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church, New York, known as a bulwark of conservatism and the wealthiest parish in the world. Today in practically all of the chapels of Trinity Parish there are Prayer Leagues being established, following Hickson's visitations, at which healing by faith and prayer is being attempted by both clergy and laity.

Many of the Episcopal clergly who watched the Englishman's ministrations at Detroit, are reviving the ancient practice in the church of anointing the sick with oils. This sacrament of unction was administered recently by Bishop James Wise of Kansas to a woman who has been a chronic invalid for life. Marked improvement is said to have been shown in the case.

The New York Tribune in a recent Sunday issue, devoted an entire page to the subject of spiritual healing and Dr. Hickson, in which Dr. Manning was quoted as follows:

"Let us begin properly," said Dr. Manning, by avoiding any comparison between what is often called faith healing and the work of Dr. James Moore Hickson. Let us apply the term 'spiritual healing' and I think we shall come to a better understanding. His work is not to be confused with psycho-therapy or mental healing, or other similar methods, all of which have their own use and place. The distinction is this: The principle of mental therapeutics is the power of mind over matter. By the spiritual healing urged by Mr. Hickson, the power of the healing Christ is brought directly to bear. I can illustrate my point by relating the case of an old lady, very deaf, who came to Mr. Hickson. He laid his hands on her and prayer with her. She left the chancel not hearing any better than before, but saying, 'My deafness has not been healed, but I don't mind being deaf any more.'

Reconciliation Enabled.

"Do not understand by this that actual cures are not affected. I have ample testimony in support of the claims of cures. But I also insist that, where the actual cures are not brought about, there is this spiritual uplift that enables one to be reconciled. Also I am not willing to concede that, even in the case of this old lady, a cure is impossible.

"You have asked whether actual cures have come within my own observation. My reply is unqualified on that score. They have. A case in point is that of a young woman whose hand had been closed by rheumatism so that she could not articulate its joints. On leaving the altar she was able to move her hand as freely as I move mine. She told me it was the first time in several years that she had been able to move it. I made some inquiries and verified her story so far as possible. Those who had observed her as she came to Mr. Hickson testified that her hand was tightly closed and that she apparently had no power to move it. I have direct testimony on other cases quite as remarkable.

"When Mr. Hickson came to New York I invited him to Trinity Chapel because it was the quietest spot in the parish. I felt that no public attention would be directed to his work there and this would be to its advantage. For a few days Mr. Hickson worked at the chapel without attracting much attention. But then the newspapers heard of it. One morning I had so many telephone messages that it seemed as if every newspaper in New York wanted to find out something about Mr. Hickson. To every newspaper representative I said the same thing.

"I asked them all to excuse me from discussing Mr. Hickson but to go and see for themselves. I will confess to you that I looked for the newspaper reports with some misgivings. There were so many opportunities in a venture of this kind for discussions that would not be serious and that might tend to discredit the work we were attempting. I found, however, that the newspaper men approached the matter from the point of view of the man on the street.

Papers Sought Truth.

"The undercurrent of their reports indicated that they, too, were just as earnestly seeking after the truth in the matter as were the people at large. And, in this connection, let me say that one of the most appealing things about the proposal for a healing ministry is the universal demand for just that thing. The newspaper men all seemed convinced of Mr. Hickson's sincerity. And what is true of the newspaper men is true of all men who have come in contact with him. Now let me be personal. I have given to Mr. Hickson's work my unqualified approval. There are no reservations. I believe in him and in his work.

"Somehow the church has not availed itself of this power. Mr. Hickson's effort is to call the church to a consciousness of the availability of this power. He does not claim to be a healer. He does not claim that he can heal anything. But he does, in a beautiful spirit of humility, declare that he has been used of Jesus as a medium for the transmission of His healing power.

"Mr. Hickson is almost diffident as he makes this claim, because it is so susceptible of misconstruction. Also he says that his claim is not a personal thing. By that I mean that he believes the power that comes to him is in the reach of others. Mr. Hickson himself has explained that the possession of this power is a progressive thing. It is

Spring Has Come, and Next Sunday Is Easter Sunday.

The little brown dog joined the three small girls in romping and playing tag.

All seemed happy to see the fresh, green grass and to feel the warm spring sunshine.

How much the sun has to do with bringing out the flower and fruit blossoms and the ripening of the fruit.

There is already less smoke in this great city of St. Louis, and people are beginning to clean up and replenish their homes.

This store has just been cleaned and completely redecorated inside at a cost of several thousand dollars.

Like an orchard, it is beginning to blossom with the new Spring Furniture, as the Missouri fields of apple and peach trees.

Isn't This the True Mark Of Hudson Endurance?

No Stock Car Ever Equalled Its Official Records In Speed, Hill-Climbing, Acceleration, Endurance

In every performance asked of a motor Hudson official records reveal greater ability than any other car has ever shown.

They have stood for five years. They are not held by hairs'-breadth, but by big, convincing margins before which argument is dumb. They prove the master type, with limits of power, speed and endurance that none has matched to this day.

Yet if they stood for only contest supremacy they would have small importance to you.

In all the years your Hudson serves you will hardly require its full capacity. You do not want 80-mile-an-hour speed. You will scarcely encounter a situation to tax its limits of power.

These Qualities Count in Every Day Service

Of course, there is pride in possession of car qualities you know are unexcelled. And this performance mastery gives innumerable advantages. For instance, you travel faster within the speed limits. That is because you are away quicker. You pick-up faster. You have power that levels hills with ease. You have smoothness that makes the long journey comfortable and free of fatigue.

But you will have far more occasion to admire Hudson's superb riding ease, its good looks and its trustworthy dependability, than its more spectacular qualities of great speed and power.

So it is chiefly as they reveal its basic principle of supremacy—the control of vibration—that the Super-Six's world famous records are important.

The exclusive Super-Six motor adds no weight or size. Yet it adds 72% to power, and 80% to efficiency. It almost doubles endurance. It does this by converting to useful power the destructive force of vibration, which uncontrolled quickly undermines motor endurance.

That is why the Super-Six can go faster, farther, and lasts longer.

These are official proofs. All can verify them.

Endurance Gave it Mastery On the Speedway

Nothing shows the dominance of the Super-Six principle more clearly than its success in high-speed racing. It was never intended for a racing car. Yet, pitted against the world's fastest cars, some of which cost as high as $25,000, the Super-Six won, time after time, because it could maintain the terrific pace without self-destruction.

Ever since, Hudson made those records it has been the largest selling fine car in the world. Each year the demand increases. By no possibility will all who want Hudson's be able to get them.

You should place your order now for your Hudson, even though delivery is not desired until summer.

YOU CAN'T BRUSH OR WASH OUT DANDRUFF

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Scientific Wrinkle Remover Easily Made

A few dermatologists long have held the secret that a certain product known to the drug trade as saxolite, had the property when used in solution, of almost instantly reducing wrinkles and furrows. Anyone can readily make this same solution by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in this—and note the quick transformation! The skin tightens, becomes firmer—deepest wrinkles and crowfeet at once begin to smooth out. This action will of course also reduce hanging cheeks or double chin.

When the hands show signs of aging, the skin becoming coarse, creased or flabby, bathe them in the solution. Since the first publication of this formula, men and women all over the country have taken advantage of the information, according to reports, with most satisfactory results.

How I Cured My Rheumatism

by PETER SAVALA

I threw away my crutches in seven days, in two months I was a well man—and I have never had a twinge from rheumatism since. This is what the remedy, which I obtained from my uncle in Greece, did for me.

I went home to Greece crippled, broken in spirit—sick. I returned to this country in two months, absolutely free of every trace of rheumatism.

The whole story of my life in America—how I became crippled with rheumatism and how I found the treatment which uprooted the disease and drove it out of my body—I will gladly tell you FREE.

It makes no difference how swollen or distorted your joints may be; how severe the pain; or how discouraged you are; I feel sure that I have the means of helping you to find relief in a few days and a lasting cure in just a few weeks.

FLYING SQUAD TO CONTINUE FIGHT ON FREIGHT THIEVES

Work in St. Louis and East Side Counties Will Be Directed by Department of Justice.

MILLION IN LOOT RECOVERED BY SQUAD

More Than 100 Convictions Obtained During War Including Policemen, Merchants and Railroad Men.

Return of railorads to private ownership left in doubt the future of the "Flying Squad," an aggregation of railroad secret service men who virtually have eliminated the once profitable practice of freight stealing in the St. Louis district, but it was learned yesterday that the organization is to be enlarged, under the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice.

United States Marshal Cooper Stout of the Eastern District of Illinois, with headquarters in East St. Louis, announced that he has assigned Deputy Marshal George S. Simcox to the East St. Louis Switching District, which includes the switching terminals in the city of St. Louis, Madison and St. Clair Counties, and adjacent territory, and Simcox assumed charge of the "Flying Squad." Tim Sullivan, who was chief of the squad while it made its successful fight on the freight thieves in St. Louis and East St. Louis, which resulted in more than 100 men being sentenced to the penitentiary, and the recovery of loot valued at more than $1,000,000, will remain in the squad.

When the Government took over the railroads during the war and the United States Railroad Administration was created for operating the roads, a survey disclosed that the East St. Louis switching district was the source of great loss to the railroads because of freight thefts. Whole carloads of merchandise disappeared, automobile tires were stolen by truckloads, and food, clothing and other articles, some of which was Government property being shipped for export for use of the army overseas, disappeared. Federal and municipal officers, loaded down with excess duty under war conditions, proved unable to locate loot and thieves, and make convictions.

The Railroad Administration selected several men and gave them the task of stopping the thefts.

The squad found plenty of work at the start, for the looting of freight cars was extensive. As a result of the squad's activity, some merchants have been sentenced to the penitentiary for buying stolen freight. The men convicted include policemen, railroad employes, including watchmen, switchmen, conductors, engineers and crew foremen, as well as team owners, transfer drivers, and professional thieves.

The squad worked individually and in conjunction with the secret service departments of the various railroads, and was aided by United States Marshals and police departments of the district.

With the return of the railroads to private ownership, it was expected by some that the "Flying Squad" would be automatically dispensed with, leaving the work to the individual secret service departments maintained by the railroads.

Simcox now says that there will be no let up against freight thieves, and the secret service and private watchmen of the individual railroads are to work with the "Flying Squad" in the future as in the past.

$10,729,263 FOR WORK AMONG NEGROES

Expenditures of Inter-Church Fund Will Be for Educational and Missionary Purposes.

A total of $10,729,263 included in the budget of the communions co-operating in the Inter Church World Movement is for the educational, missionary and benevolent work among negroes to be done by four communions whose membership aggregate more than 4,000,000 of the negroes of this country, according to an announcement just issued by the Inter Church Movement.

Most of the money to be raised for work among the negroes is in the budget of the National Baptist convention. The total of askings of this denomination amounting to $10,250,000 is made up of the following items: Foreign Missions, $2,200,000; Home Missions, $3,850,000; American education, $2,600,000; American religious education, $685,000; American ministerial support and relief, $350,000; special work by women, $500,000, and items of a general nature amounting to $65,000. The askings of this denomination covers a five-year program. Of this amount, $2,050,000 is to be paid during 1920.

Distribution of Funds.

The $250,000 asked for the work of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church is for colleges and schools supported by this body.

The African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church with askings for $212,000 will distribute the amounts as follows: Foreign Missions, $52,000; Home Missions, $50,000; American education, $60,000; American ministerial support and relief, $40,000, and miscellaneous work, $10,000.

The Reformed Zion Union Apostolic Church has one item in the budget for $17,263 to be used for home missions.

The united simultaneous financial campaign to be conducted under the general direction of the Inter Church World Movement from April 25 to May 2, will be nation-wide in its scope, and will include the askings of 30 denominations aggregating the sum of $336,777,572. Of this sum, $175,448,349 is to be paid this year. There are 14,939,413 members represented in these 30 churches.

Represents Study of Needs.

Coincident with the announcement of the budget, Dr. S. Earl Taylor, general secretary of the Inter Church World Movement, issued this statement:

"In presenting the budget the Inter Church World Movement asks nothing for itself. All of the expenses incurred will be paid by the co-operating agencies and the Inter Church World Movement is merely the servant of all.

"The budget represents an earnest attempt on the part of thoughtful Christian men and women to make a study of the world's needs, as viewed from the standpoint of the co-operating churches and to lay these needs upon the minds, the hearts and the consciences of the people of America, thus placing the responsibility where it belongs—upon the shoulders of the individuals who make up that element of our republic who believe that the security of our democratic foundations has been because they have rested upon the Christian home, the open bible, the free school, and the free church.

30 Denominations Interested.

The purposes for which the money is to be expended are: Foreign Missions, $107,661,488; Home Missions, $109,949,037; American Education, $78,837,491; American Religious Education, $5931,925; American Hospitals and Homes, $5,116,488; American Ministerial Pensions and Relief, $20,510,299; miscellaneous, $8,770,927.

The 30 denominations in the financial campaign are: Advent Christian Church, $35,000; Northern Baptist Convention, $130,533,000; National Baptist Convention, $10,250,000; General Baptists, $272,500; Church of the Brethren, $3,219,598; Brethren Church, $200,000; Christian Church, $727,693; Congregational Churches, $16,508,470; Disciples of Christ, $12,501,133; Evangelical Association, $1,394,260; United Evangelical Church, $305,983; Society of Friends in America, $4,532,081; Society of Friends in California, $40,000; Holiness Church, $50,000; Evangelical Synod of North America, Lutheran, $1,846,521; General Conference of Mennonites, $82,000; Methodist Episcopal Church, $34,485,737; Methodist Protestant Church, $1,745,866; Free Methodist Church of North America, $6,234,986; African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, $212,000; Colored Methodist Episcopal, $250,000; Reformed Zion Union Apostolic Church, $17,263; Presbyterian Church in the U. Steel Plant Personnel Director Works 7 Months as Laborer to Find Out What's on Worker's Mind

Whiting Williams, After Bunking With Men in Disguise, Finds Unemployment and Fear of Losing Job Greatest Fomenters of Unrest.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., March 27.

WHAT'S on the worker's mind? The country has been asking this question ever since the release of war energies let loose the emotions of industrial unrest. There have been many answers to the question, too. The workers themselves have tried to tell us what they were thinking about and how. But it is not always the person who is physically ailing or mentally disturbed that can give the best account of the causes of his trouble. Many earnest people, writers, social workers, professors, of explanations of the why and wherefore of industrial unrest. Most of these explanations, though sincere, reveal but slight contact with the realities of industrial life. They seem more like sketches of the social scene drawn from the platform of an observation car and filled in at leisure in the quiet of a study room.

Quite different is the story of about industrial conditions. As different as the manner in which the which Whiting Williams has to tell story was obtained. To find out what the workers thought and felt, Mr. Williams went to live among them. For seven months he knocked about from plant to plant, either looking for a job or working. Between the iron ranges of Minnesota and the foundries and steel plants of the Atlantic Coast he shifted from place to place and job to job, never staying in one place more than a month, sometimes moving on after a day or two. In the seven months of this experience he was day laborer, "cinder pitter," machinists" and reamers' helper, miners' buddy, etc. When he came back to his desk in the offices of the Hydraulic Pressed Steel Co. of Cleveland, and resumed his duties as director of personnel, Mr. Williams had had a taste of the actual experiences which go to make up the daily life of the unskilled and semi-skilled American worker. For Williams had not only worked in and about factories and mines, but he had bunked with the workers in their boarding house, eating and sleeping with them and whiling away with them their moments of leisure.

Started Out to Find Job or "Bum."

"I was determined to go through with this thing in a real way," explained Mr. Williams in telling me about his experiences. "I cut myself off entirely from my friends and from my official position and connections. When I landed in the first city where I was determined to look for a job I had $25 in my pocket and a vow in my heart that if I failed to find a job I would 'bum' for six months. I was not going to go back or to ask for money or in any other way avoid the consequences of my plunge into what was to me a new world.

"I have been asked time and again since I came back why I undertook this experiment. As director of personnel for the Hydraulic Pressed Steel Co. I had charge of the industrial relations of our plant. I was responsible for the 'hiring' and 'firing' of the men and supervised all matters pertaining to health, safety and sanitation. My experience gradually led me to the conclusion that the problem of industrial relations was at bottom a psychological problem. The important thing in industry is what the workers feel toward the owners and managers, and vice versa. Feelings are more important than ideas, and also are more powerful in forcing action. It gradually became clear to us at Hydraulic that if people are restless and act queerly in industrial matters, something must be eating at their feelings. We were determined to find out what that was. But how? You can interview a person on his ideas, but not on his feelings. As an officer of my company I could go about and talk to the men about their ideas. But I could not so easily get at their feelings. I decided to break through this barrier by going out among the men as one of them and sharing their life with them.

Find Clothes Made the Man.

"It is queer to realize what a break such an experiment is. You remember, perhaps, Jack London telling in his 'People of the Abyss' how different the world looked to him when he came out of the shop where he had exchanged his good clothes for some old and disreputable garments. He suddenly realized that it was clothes that made the man. When I put on a pair of greasy overalls, a flannel shirt and wide-brimmed hat and let my beard stick out all over my face, I suddenly realized what a wide gap lay between me and the world I had just left. I had no difficulty now in mingling with the workers and in watching the currents of thought and emotion that pulse through their minds and hearts.

"The biggest thing that I have brought back with me from my seven months' experience, is the conviction of the colossal importance of the daily job to the worker. A steady job is more important than hourly wages or anything else. It is the job, the desire to hold it, the fear to lose it, and the agony of quitting it that shape the most fundamental feelings and ideas of the workers. People on salary cannot imagine what it means. The average worker put out of a job has no standing. He is like a bee which has been driven out of a beehive. Its primary impulse is to get back among its fellow bees to carry on the work of the hive, and it feels as if all its instincts had been violated by something which it cannot control.

Plants Laying Off Men.

"I started my wanderings in January of last year. The armistice had brought a cancellation of war orders and created a feeling of uncertainty in our basic industries. Many plants in the steel district where I started were laying off their men. Wherever one went one found a bunch of fellows at the gates waiting. The only topic of conversation was whether there was any chance of a job. I shall never forget those first days of job hunting and all the comebacks of superintendents, foremen, employment managers, policemen, bartenders and others. No one seemed to have a kind word for the jobless man. Everybody was a prophet of trouble. Even one day of hunting made me feel like jumping into the river.

"Perhaps these days were more painful to me because they were my first experience. But my observation of and conversation with the other men convinced me that they felt no happier than I did. I say without hesitation that to my mind the finding of a job is the crux of the industrial problem. The worst indictment of our present civilization that I have ever heard came not from Socialists or Communists but from men who were temporarily out of a job. Imagine how you would feel if you had to line up at the gate with 75 or 100 other men knowing that there were only two or three jobs inside. Imagine that you are a strong husky fellow, that you want no more than what every other worker gets, that you are ready to give your brawn and brain, and the policeman at the gate informs you that there's 'nothing doing today.' And then imagine yourself seeing two other fellows, the fellows on the inside,

New Way to Remove Hair Creates Sensation

(Actually Takes Out the Roots)

What beauty specialists regard as one of the most important discoveries in recent years is the phelactine method of removing superfluous hair. Its great advantage, of course, lies in the fact that it actually removes the hair roots. It does this easily, instantly, harmlessly. Sufferers from the affliction named need no longer despair. The actual hair-roots come out before your very eyes, leaving the skin as smooth and hairless as a babe's.

Because it offers such complete relief, a stick of phelactine is the most inexpensive thing a woman can buy for the removal of hairy growths. For the same reason druggists are having an enormous demand for it. You can use it with entire safety; it is so harmless one could even eat it without any ill effect.

Rupture Kills 7000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the 'burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a weakening wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way—and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adjusted closely to the body cannot possibly work or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch, and is entirely unnoticeable. To be used while you work and while you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached. Just put them to the normal reducing, as nature intended so the rupture can't come down. STEEL DIRECTOR WORKS 7 MONTHS WITH LABORERS with jobs, no stronger than you, no better, no more willing, coming out of the gate swinging their dinner pails. And such memories hang on and stay by the worker even in the days when jobs are plentiful, as now, and perhaps make him change oftener while the unusual and abnormal condition lasts.

Man Out of Job Sensitive.

"I maintain that it is here at the gate while looking for a job that the worker gets his first and most lasting impression of the industrial system. It is quite natural, too. The man out of a job is in a nervous condition, he is emotionally keyed up and more impressionable than at other times. He is particularly sensitive to anything which may seem an infringement of his dignity and self-respect. The man out of a job usually feels humiliated by his condition and this sense of humiliation is one of the most hopeful things in the world. It shows that fundamentally every man wants more than anything else a proper place in productive life, an opportunity to make himself useful. But the stronger this feeling is the more painful it is to be out of a job and the keener one feels any treatment which 'rubs it in.'

"Suppose you are looking for a job. You come up to the gate. There is the policeman or watchman. You ask whether there is anything today. The man shakes his head, horizontally or vertically. What is the worker's first reaction? 'Hell, can't he say yes or no? Won5t he talk to a man?' When the 'man at the gate' is unceremonious or gruff, the result is, of course, worse. The worker goes away in a sore state of mind. A few such experiences during a week and he grows sore. When he finally gets a job he brings to it the accumulated emotions of the days or weeks during which he looked for the job. It matters not that the new employer is not personally responsible for the treatment of the worker in other plants. The workers usually generalize their individual experiences. They regard every policeman at the gate, every foreman in the shop, every paymaster at the cash window as representatives of the eppioyers as a group.

Thinks Production Talk Bunk.

"Again, consider the worker's attitude toward the question of production. Everyone talks more production and the worker hears this all the time. But here he is out of a job and ready to work, and no one to hire him. What is his inevitable conclusion? 'Talk about production is bunk. Where do you get that stuff? If they want more production why don't they take me on right here and now?' When the worker has found his job he does not feel it incumbent upon him to work, too hard. He knows that ordinarily there are many fellows like him still waiting at the gates and he is not eager to rejoin them. Thus the manufacturer who finally hires the worker pays for all the misunderstandings and hard feelings in the workers, by those who did not hire him and did not handle him well at the gate.

"I am deeply convinced that we must, first of all, try to solve this problem of the job if we are to eliminate or abate industrial unrest. I do not deny that much has been done by individual plants and that many employment managers have shown a remarkably sympathetic understanding of the problem. But I believe that the problem is so serious that we must adopt more radical measures. We must organize the labor market in a thorough and efficient manner."

Mr. Williams was asked whether he did not find that the workers who belong to trade unions received considerable assistance and encouragement from their organizations when out of a job.

"That is true," said Williams, "but the unorganized workers are in the majority, especially in the unskilled occupations. My experience has been with these unskilled workers, who are largely foreign. It is among them that the seeds of better feelings must be sown. I believe that this can be done by organizing the labor market. The finding of a job should be the function of government. Just as we consider it a public matter to provide pure water, so we should regard the placing of a man in a proper job. The brawn market should be removed from the profiteering of the private employment offices and should be organized as part of our Federal machinery in a way to get the co-operation of both employers and employes. That will remove the bitterness and humiliation which are born of hunting for a job.

Living Conditions Play Part.

"I put my emphasis on joblessness," continued Williams, "but I am aware of the other conditions upon which industrial unrest feeds. Next in importance to unemployment, I believe is the relation of tiredness and temper in the worker's life. In living about the boarding houses and cheap hotels, I found that the workers are very sensitive to living conditions. Bad smells, lack of air, sleeping in rooms through which one must pass to the bathroom, crowding of families in one or two rooms, these and similar conditions have a very bad effect upon the worker's mind. It tells directly on their work and on their temper. A tired body naturally makes a tired mind, and the fatigued worker is the one who is most often in the mood of 'to what the hell'—chronic fatigue results not only from bad living conditions, but also from overlong hours and improper work. Whatever its cause, it makes for unrest and discontent.

"A third factor in the present industrial situation is the total ignorance of the unskilled worker of his employers' purposes, plans and character. The skilled worker usually knows a good deal about his job and about the concern he is working for. He gets his information from contacts within the plant, also from his newspaper and trade organization. But the unskilled

For Wrinkles and Lines of Age.

Here is an almost never failing remedy that acts so quickly that it will astonish you.

The following method will remove the most deep-set wrinkles in a very short time and produce a tremendous difference in your appearance as to age.

It makes the skin delightfully plump and youthful, immediately begins to build up the tissues and finally leaves the skin almost as firm and smooth as in early youth. Simply mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a half pint of water and add two ounces of aptol. Use liberally every day. Soon crow's feet, deep lines, big and little wrinkles, and flabbiness of flesh will disappear. The result in your appearance will be startling. This rarely fails, it is exceedingly economical and is no trouble at all. You can obtain the aptol from the drug store for fifty cents, and the glycerine is inexpensive.

So skilled have the modern day makers of toilet goods become, that it is no longer necessary for you to have been born beautiful—for you can so easily cultivate all the necessary requirements. Just a little patience, coupled with a proper knowledge of the right preparations to use, will bring to almost any woman a clear skin,—beautiful hair,—rounded figure—or whatever she is most in need of to complete her attractiveness.

A few suggestions may serve as examples.

Now as to Hair.

Let us suppose your hair has started to come out. Every morning your comb is full of hairs that have pulled out or broken off from brittleness. Or suppose the hair seems dead and lifeless and is not growing as it should.

All this can be so surely and quickly remedied. Just go to your druggist and get whatever materials you may need to mix at home the following:

To a half pint each of bay-rum and water—or to a full pint of witchhazel if you prefer—add one ounce of beta-quinol. Mix thoroughly and apply to the scalp freely and often.

This mixture is not only economical but none is better at any price.

For a Shampoo

By all means, get a package of eggol from your druggist. It sells for a quarter and there are weeks of delight in a package. Soap alone will not remove the oily crust down next to the scalp.

Here is a Surprising Method for Removing Blackheads.

You just dissolve them away. No pinching the skin nor squeezing.

Neroxin is the name of a powder to be sprinkled on a sponge or wash cloth. It comes in packages retailing for about fifty cents and the package will tell you just how to use it.

Don't tolerate blackheads and pimples when you can get neroxin and it is so simple to use it.

Never Use a Harsh Irritant to Remove Hair.

Unsightly growths of superfluous hair—under the arms, on the forearms and elsewhere, should be wiped off with a little sulfo solution. This will be found far better than burning the hair and skin with some harsh and cheap depilatory.

Sulfo solution comes in dollar bottles only, but you will find it worth many times its price in the satisfaction you will derive from using it.

As for Red Spots, Freckles and a Muddy Skin,

this can easily be remedied in a few days by another home made and simple formula. Just mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and one ounce of sintone in a pint of water. This results in a satiny cream, and makes over a pint, which is several times more than you obtain in the stores for anything like the same cost, and besides you have a beautifier which has no equal for quick and positive results. It will remove every blemish, red spot and freckle, and all muddiness, and the result is a perfect tint, purity and clearness of skin which is exquisite. The sintone can be secured at any drug store for fifty cents and you probably have the glycerine at home.

If you do not wish to use any of these suggestions today, suppose you clip this out and save it for future reference.

OUR BIG OFFER

Catarrh

ENDED OR GET YOUR MONEY BACK

What if a specialist in catarrhal afflictions, a real physician of character and integrity, should offer to relieve you of catarrh, or nothing to pay?

You would jump at the chance. Of course you would. You would be foolish if you didn't.

And now that the makers of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me), say to you that Hyomei will end catarrh or that you can have your money back, what are you going to do? Are you going to be prejudiced and narrow minded just because the offer is not made by a physician?

Are you going to continue to suffer with snuffles, crusts in the nose, watery eyes, mucous in the throat, and all the annoying and distressing conditions that accompany catarrh, when Hyomei will satisfy you or money back?

Do you know what Hyomei is? Let us tell you; it is composed chiefly of eucalyptus obtained from the eucalyptus trees of inland Australia, where catarrh, asthma, croup and hay fever are practically unknown.

Pour a few drops of Hyomei into the hard rubber inhaler (same as illustration), and you can then breathe into the lungs the germ-killing antiseptic you would breathe in the Australian forests of pine and eucalyptus.

And Hyomei is so pleasant to use, you'll like to use it; when you breathe it in it has such a soothing, healing effect on the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane. In five minutes you get such wonderful relief that you know that at last you have help.

A Hyomei outfit, which consists of one bottle of Hyomei, a hard rubber pocket inhaler and medicine dropper and simple instructions for use, costs only $1.15, and extra bottles of Hyomei, if afterward needed, cost 60 cents.

And besides catarrh, remember that Hyomei is guaranteed to relieve asthma, croup, bronchitis, coughs, colds, sore throat and hay fever, or money back. Hyomei is sold by leading druggists everywhere. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. guarantees it.

ESTATES SAID TO HAVE AVOIDED TAX ON $5,000,000

Assessor's Office Bases Estimate on Conversions of Taxable Holdings Into Government Bonds.

Estate experts of the Assessor's office estimate that more than $5,000,000 of taxable securities and cash owned by estates in process of settlement were converted in 1919 into non-taxable securities, mostly Liberty Bonds or United States Government bonds, before June 1, the date on which taxation is based, and that after that date these assets were reconverted into taxable securities, the effect being that the city and State were deprived of taxes they might otherwise have collected.

The loss to the city and State in income was about $100,000.

Assessor Woolbrinck said he recently looked up a large estate which showed $100,000 cash on hand May 28. When a tax return on this estate was made June 1 the estate claimed $100,000 exemption on $100,000 worth of United States Government securities and reported no cash on hand.

Another estate which had $29,000 cash on hand May 23, filed a return showing that all but $115 had been invested in Government securities. The Assessor, through the records of the Probate Court, has a certain means of learning what assets are held by estates and is therefore in a position to know to what extent they have availed themselves of the opportunity to turn cash into non-taxable securities.

Individual taxpayers also are said to have avoided tax payments in the same way, but there is no definite means of knowing to what extent.

The Assessor said the practice had been in existence for years, and it was impossible to prevent it, as there could be no positive proof that the conversion of assets was for the purpose of evading taxes. Usually, he said, the administrators of estates had a plausible explanation for the conversion.

The same practice was found to have been followed in St. Louis County in 1919, depriving the county and State of a considerable amount of taxation revenue.

STEEL DIRECTOR WORKS 7 MONTHS WITH LABORERS

worker usually cannot read English and he feels his job is such an insignificant incident in the organization of the plant that there is no opportunity for him to learn. He sees a little details here and there and he catches but an occasional glimpse of those who manage and direct the forces of industry. The laborer cannot have an intelligent interest in his work under such conditions, and still less can he form a human relationship to the industrial unit of which he is a part.

Unemployment Chief Source of Worry.

"Of course there are many more things that are on the mind of the worker today—as on the minds of all of us. The cost of living is worrying him, he is aroused over what seems to him profiteering; he is restless because conditions in the countries of Europe in which he feels a strong interest are disturbed. But the fundamental things seem to be those that I have mentioned: unemployment, fatigue and ignorance of industrial purposes. The other matters are less urgent. Take wages, for instance. Up to a certain point, naturally wages are the most important consideration. But when a minimum standard of living has been assured, wages become less important and the questions of the job and fatigue become paramount.

"Before I went into this thing I had an entirely different idea as to what the workers want. You know, I was executive secretary of the Cleveland Welfare Association, and as a college graduate and social worker I advocated shower baths in the shop, clean washrooms, restaurants at cost and similar things. I still think that these things are desirable, but I now realize that they will disappoint unless they come in addition to a steady job, right hours, good foremen, etc. What we must do is to organize industrial relations at the strategic points. That means on the job.

"I cannot go into a consideration of specific remedies. But it is quite clear to me that we must give the workers a larger satisfaction in the job. There must be a larger opportunity for those who are young and a larger measure of security for those who have grown older. This requires a regulation of industry which calls for co-operation throughout industry between producers, workers and consumers. I feel confident that we can work out his problem to the satisfaction of the entire people."

Hair Often Ruined by Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

A Permanent Investment

Heretofore the purchase of rimless glasses due to excessive breakage of lenses was an extravagance that few could afford.

With the advent of

"Kant-break" Rimless Glasses

(PATENT APPLIED FOR)

The buying of a pair of these remarkable lenses (which the U. S. Government Bureau of Standards has declared to be 300% stronger than ordinary rimless glasses) is in the nature of a permanent investment as the constant outlay for replacing broken lenses is abolished.

Kant-Breaks are the most economical glasses you can buy as the first cost is the last cost. They are also very becoming to the average person.

CHRISTIAN SOCIETY TO OPEN LARGE PLANT

Landing of Headquarters for St. Louis Called Big Thing for City.

E. J. Troy, secretary of the Manufacturers' Association of St. Louis, has received a telegram from W. Palmer Clarkson, president of that association, who is now in Cincinnati representing the United Christian Missionary Society, in which Clarkson says that establishment here of the national headquarters of the latter society will mean much to St. Louis.

"It will mean," says he, "the establishment of a large plant from which will radiate foreign and home missions as well as the other activities of this great Christian denomination."

According to Troy, for the last two years Clarkson has been working on a plan to bring the permanent headquarters of the United Christian Missionary Society to St. Louis and was so near success last year that options were obtained upon grounds and buildings here. At the recent convention in Cincinnati, St. Louis obtained the headquarters, in a contest in which New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Indianapolis were also trying to land the prize.

Clarkson Arranging Details.

Clarkson will remain in Cincinnati several days to arrange details. The United Christian Missionary Society was formed in Cincinnati last October and will function for the entire body of the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ, as the one agency of that church in place of the many agencies which have heretofore administered the benevolent, missionary and educational funds and activities.

The society is at present occupying offices in Cincinnati, and Frederick W. Burnham, who for some years has been president of the American Christian Missionary Society, is executive head of the society.

The considerations which led to the selection of St. Louis were many, chief among these being the geographical location of the city and the fact that three-fourths of the communicants of the church are within a night's ride of St. Louis. Missouri has more members of this church than has any other State in the Union.

Already Publishing Center.

St. Louis is at present the home of the Christian Board of Publication which publishes the Christian Evangelist and all the accessory publications used by the church and Sunday schools. It was the gift to the church of R. A. Long of Kansas City.

The organized agencies of the church which were merged to form the United Christian Missionary Society are the Foreign Christian Missionary Society, the American Christian Missionary Society, the Christian Women's Board of Missions, the Board of Ministerial Relief, the Board of Church Extension and the National Benevolent Association. Others which are to be merged with the new body are the American Temperance Board, the Board of Education and the Association for the Promotion of Christian Unity.

The Disciples of Christ was one of the first denominations to enter the Inter-Church World Movement.

STATE OF NUEVO LEON WILL BUILD GASOLINE MOTOR LINE

Seventy-Mile Railroad Is to Tap Agricultural and Mining Land Near Monterey.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTERREY, Mexico.—An appropriation of 800,000 pesos, which is equivalent to $400,000 American money, has just been made by the State of Nuevo Leon for the construction of a 70-mile gasoline motor railroad that is to run from Monterey through a rich agricultural and mining country extending to the east and south of here. It is stated that the total cost of the proposed railway will be approximately 2,000,000 gold. The survey has been made and the construction forces are now being organized.

As the money may be needed to meet the cost of building and equipping the line, additional appropriations will be made by the State Government. Antonio Elosua, representing the State Government, is now in the United States to purchase gasoline motors and other rolling stock. The steel rails are being manufactured at the plant of the Monterey Iron and Steel Co. here.

MONKEYS WORK CONFIDENCE GAME ON VISITOR TO ZOO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DALLAS, Tex.—Whether the monkey really needed glasses or the attention of an oculist, or whether he thought he could eat specs, will never be known. But there is one thing John Page of Garland does know, and that is he is out $20 he paid for glasses a short time ago, and all because a monkey in the zoo decided it would like to have them.

Page was inspecting the simian exhibit rather closely. In fact, he had his face against the cage. While he was watching one monkey cut some capers, another snatched the glasses from his face. The monkey tried to fit them on its own nose. They did not suit—probably the vision was wrong. Then the monkey tried to eat them. When its teeth failed to masticate the glass and gold the animal slammed them on the concrete floor of the cage and shattered them into a thousand pieces. It then twisted the frames to pieces, before the keeper came.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses, and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by all good druggists, including the Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson Stores.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

BIGGEST WATER POWER PLANT TO GO UP IN CHINA

Yangtse Rapids to Be Utilized, Says Visitor Who Comes to Buy Machinery.

SEATTLE, Wash.—China is planning to build the largest hydro-electric plant in the world, according to Jen Chow, a former Cornell man who arrived here recently from the Orient to purchase machinery and supplies for the Chengtu Light & Power Co., as well as to study hydro-electrical development in the United States.

"The hydro-electric plant will be built in the province of Szechuan, making use of the enormous power, hitherto wasted, of the Yangtse rapids," said Chow. A great Chinese Panama in the heart of Asia is our ultimate aim. Our electrical project will be the first step in the gigantic operation of harnessing the water power in the upper Yangtse, whose potential power is far in excess of that of Niagara Falls.

"The Japanese boycott really has caused a new industrial life to bloom all over China. The Foochow and Tientsin incidents have had a wonderful influence in intensifying the boycott. The Japanese boycott has been one of the greatest things that could have happened to the American market as it has created a demand for American goods which the American merchant has been slow to realize. An industrial China is the need of the moment and that added to the protective tariff system will make China the giant among the industrial nations of the world.

"Popular sentiment is all in favor of the American capitalist, but the Chinese capitalist must consider his own protection. And this is a fact the Americans fail to realize. Let the American compete on terms with the Japanese or on terms half as good and the American can gain the bulk of the Chinese trade."

MINISTER BELIEVES IN SPIRIT COMMUNICATION

Dr. Hart Has Letters He Says Were Written by Wife, Father and Others After Death.

Belief in spirit communication is a cherished doctrine of the Rev. Frederick J. Hart, 75 years old, of 4950 Columbia avenue, who is pastor of Reber Place Congregational Church.

The minister said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that 15 years ago, and at intervals for a year thereafter, he received written messages through a medium, from his wife, who died in 1898, from his father and from other persons, one of them being Henry Ward Beecher. He said the messages from his father, his wife and a sister were in their handwriting, and that this convinced him of their genuineness.

The minister, who is known to his friends as "Col. Hart," because of having served as a youth in the Civil War, was ordained only 10 years ago. He was previously in railroad work and mining enterprises. He has painted a number of pictures in oil, some of which are displayed in his study. He has also written a moving picture scenario and a novel, both of which he says have been accepted. His manner is that of a practical man, not a mystic.

Relates Experiences.

He repeated to the reporter the story of spirit communication which he told to the Congregational ministers at their last meeting, and which the other clergymen have since been discussing.

"About 15 years ago," he said, "before I was in the ministry, and while I was living in a boarding house here, I became acquainted with a Mr. and Mrs. Connelly. The wife, then 60 years old, was a note-writing medium, and I found, by testing her, that she could tell the cards held by other persons in card games. I attended several seances, not as a matter of gain to the medium, for she never permitted me to pay a cent. At these gatherings, I received the notes from my wife, my father and my sister, in their familiar hands.

The notes, which Hart has preserved, were shown to the reporter. Some of them are:

"Dear brother, I am with Juliette and the others, you are on the way to a great influence—BELLE."

"April 5, 1905. There are others who desire to write. I give way to them. I just want to say that I am always watching over you—JULIETTE."

"My dear, the question you have in your mind will be answered sometime. It will be answered by your own self. Each day the school of life is opening up new thought, you cannot express your inner self just now, that will come, and you will step out into a new field by the grace of God. He will give you power to go out for good.—JULIETTE."

Letters From Father.

"My dear son, you are seeking and surrounding yourself with purity of purpose, a nobility of aim, an earnest desire for the truth and an infinite patience that can wait while it works for its own, that will lead you into the light of a perfect day where we will see as parts of the One-in Spirit. YOUR FATHER."

"My son, I have written you two messages, sometime your mind will ask yourself this question: What is a spirit? Spirit and electricity are two units in volume of voltage, invisible forces. Spirit is a spiritual force of supreme power of intelligence. YOUR FATHER."

The note purporting to be from Henry Ward Beecher refers to "your father, who is with me," and says, "slowly but surely the world is advancing. All things are possible to the man or woman of receptive mind and liberal thought. If ye have sufficient faith, ye can remove mountains."

Spirit Message From Wife.

Before he had become interested in these manifestations, Hart said, he became convinced of the possibility of telepathic communication between the living, by a personal experience. He said that, while he was in a St. Louis hotel, he saw his wife, who was then in New Haven, Conn. He said she told him that her spirit had come here, while her body was still in New Haven, and that she asked him to come to New Haven at once, as she was very ill. He prepared to return east, but abandoned the idea, thinking he had been subject to a hallucination. Two days later he learned of the death of his wife, whom he might have seen alive if he had followed his first impulse to go to her.

He says he ceased spirit communication after the medium, Mrs. Connelly, removed from St. Louis to California.

VITANOLA

The Phonograph of Marvelous Tone

VITANOLA FOURTEEN

HOW THE TONE FILTER REMOVES IMPURITIES FROM MUSIC

"Impurities" in music are any outside sounds that come through the phonograph—

Years ago, all phonographs rendered music so full of "impurities" that the "noises" almost smothered the music itself.

Each succeeding type has freed the music more and more from surface noises and blasts—

And now comes the VITANOLA with its wonderful tone Filter which is the greatest improvement of all. With this remarkable new development, the music comes to you as near like life as is possible through the medium of a phonograph.

If you purchase a phonograph without hearing the VITANOLA, you are doing yourself a grave injustice.

VITANOLA Plays Records of all Makes—

Buy the records you like. No matter who made them, the VITANOLA will play them. It is instantly adjustable to all types and makes of records without extra attachments.

The Design and Finish You Want is in the VITANOLA Line

Different people have different ideas. Realizing that fact, we have embodied in the VITANOLA line enough different cabinet designs, woods and finishes to furnish a choice for the most particular.

What a "Tone-Test" is

In the book, "Edison and Music," written by one of Thomas A. Edison's righthand men, you will find the following description of the tone-test:

"An artist stands beside the New Edison and sings—or plays. Suddenly, and without warning, the artist ceases and the New Edison continues alone. The test is whether the audience, with eyes closed, can tell when the living artist has ceased to sing—or to play. Where practicable, the lights are turned off suddenly and the artist steals from the stage, leaving the New Edison to perform its miraculous feat of RE-CREATING the singer's voice—or instrumentalist's performance—with such perfect realism that the audience is not aware of the artist's departure until the lights are turned on."

Great Medicine

Made From Corn Silk—Excites Favorable Comment

Kidney and Bladder Ailments Banished By Few Doses.

Corn Silk! The same "silk" you see protruding from the husk of corn, produces a fine medicine for kidney and bladder irregularities, when compounded with other simple drugs as in Balmwort Tablets.

Balmwort Tablets contain a powerful extract of corn silk, which quickly relieves the inflammation and congestion that causes such distress as pains in back and hips, rheumatic twinges, nervousness, severe headaches. The patient is compelled to arise frequently to relieve painful pressure. The eyes appear "bloodshot," the sleep is restless, and sometimes fever, followed by chills, cause great unrest. It is unwise to neglect such symptoms, when a few doses of Balmwort Tablets can be taken for relief. Alice Trobough, 5627 South Twenty-fourth st., Omaha, Neb., writes: "I have used one tube of your Balmwort Tablets and find that they are the best I have ever used for kidney and bladder trouble."

Ask any leading druggist for a tube of Balmwort Tablets. Price, $1.00.

ADVENTURING IN THE LAND OF WOODWINDS

New Ensemble's Concert This Afternoon an Event of Uncommon Instructiveness.

While all of the string instruments of an orchestra, except perhaps the viola, are familiar to concert-goers, as are also the trumpet and trombone among the brasses and the drums and kettledrums in the "battery," there remains for many a somewhat mysterious region in the land of instruments—that of the woodwinds.

Not a few persons, to whom violin and violoncello are old friends, would be at a loss if asked to identify by appearance and sound the oboe and the bassoon. Others would be puzzled to state off-hand which, of the flute and clarinet, is actuated by a vibrating reed and which is not. Often is the name inquired of that intricate coil of tubing, the French horn, which forms the connecting link between woodwinds and brasses.

The presentation of these relatively unfamiliar instruments both in solo and in combination is not the least of the attractions of the program to be given at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Odeon by the first woodwind ensemble organized in St. Louis. It is composed of artists of the Symphony Orchestra, and the recital, in a sense a continuation of the series of popular Sunday afternoon concerts, will be at "pop" prices.

The members of the ensemble and their positions in the orchestra are as follows: John F. Kiburz, first flute; Adolph Bertram, first oboe; Tony P. Sarli, first clarinet; Domenico Delledonne, second bassoon; Pellegrino Lecce, first French horn; and Frederick Fischer, first bassoon. Mme. Ida Delledonne, harpist of the orchestra, will assist, and Fischer, who is director of the ensemble, will play the piano in concerted numbers.

A Unique Program Offered.

The program, which was deliberately chosen by Fischer so as to display the qualities of the various instruments, and which introduces music and composers almost unknown to the general public, is as follows:

Quintet in B-flat, opus 57...Lefebyre
Andante-Rondo in C, for clarinet, bassoon and piano...Delledonne (First time anywhere).
Harp solos:
(a) Vision .....Verdalle
(b) Gavotte .....Tedeschi
Larghetto, for flute and harp..Huber
Prelude and Menuet, for quintet—Pessard
Elegie, for oboe, horn and harp—Boisdeffre
Sextet, in B Major, opus 6, for woodwind, horn and piano—Thuille

Such information concerning the composers named above as is available in reference books is as follows: Charles Eduard Lefebvre, born in 1842, became a teacher at the Paris Conservatory and composed operas, chamber music and choruses. Delledonne, a member of the Symphony Orchestra, was formerly a member of the orchestra at La Scala, Milan's famous opera house, and also of orchestras at Cairo, Egypt, and Buenos Aires. Mans Huber, a Swiss composer, was born in 1852, and wrote operas and much instrumental music.

Emile Louis Fortune Pessard, born in 1843, won the Prix de Rome at the Paris Conservatory, and wrote many operas, operettas, masses, cantatas and instrumental pieces. Charles Henri Rene de Boisdeffre (1838-1906) was a prolific composer of vocal and instrumental works. Ludwig Thuille (1861-1907) became a professor at the Royal School of Music at Munich His sextet, which concludes today's program, was the work which first made his name known.

Performers and Instruments.

Concerning the performers the ensuing information is given. Kiburz, a pupil of the famous flautist, Georges Barrere, was for two seasons first flute of the New York Symphony Orchestra, under Walter Damrosch. Sarli, before joining the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, was a member of the Barrere Ensemble. Bertram came to the orchestra last November from the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra, and Leccee came at the same time from a post as first French horn of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, Mme. Delledonne has played with the same orchestras of which her husband was a member. Fischer is orchestra manager of the Symphony Orchestra and director of the Pageant Choral Society.

The oboe (its name is a corruption of the French "hautbois," or high-wind) is the soprano of the family of double-reed instruments of which the English horn is the alto and the bassoon the bass, and is distinguished by the pensiveness and melancholy of its tone. Having a conical bore, it obtains its higher notes by "over-blowing an octave." That is, by increasing the wind pressure, the performer can make a fundamental tone sound an octave higher.

The bassoon is called "fagotto" in Italian from its fancied resemblance to a bundle of faggots, due to the fact that its eight-foot tube is doubled back on itself. It is held almost erect and is played through a thin metal crook projecting from near its center. It provides a rich and sonorous bass, and its extraordinary agility causes it to be used frequently for effects of grotesque humor. It also has a conical bore and overblows an octave.

Flute, Clarinet and Horn.

The flute is the only wood-wind instrument not actuated by a vibrating reed or reeds, its air column being set in motion by blowing the breath against the sharp outer edge of a mouthpiece, or embouchere. The clarinet differs from all the other reed instruments by having a single instead of a double reed, and a cylindrical instead of a conical bore, which causes it to overblow a twelfth instead of an octave. It is the most perfect of the wood-winds, and the nobility of its contralto voice has won it the name of "the tragedienne of the orchestra."

The French horn was originally a hunting horn, and its tube was coiled in a circle so that a horseman might conveniently sling it over his arm. It is noted for its mellow, golden voice. Perhaps the most difficult of all instruments to master, it has a compass of no less than four octaves, so that performers divide themselves into two classes—those who specialize in its higher register and those who specialize in the lower one.

BRUNSWICK
Method of Reproduction

The Ultona, the exclusive all-record reproducer, a Brunswick invention. It plays ALL records at their best, with the proper needle, the proper diaphragm. Not an attachment, but a built-in part.

Critical music lovers prefer The Brunswick

IT is always a certain friend, an enthusiastic one, we find, who hears The Brunswick and then compares it.

The ear is quick to appreciate its superior tone. The eye is quick to note its finer cabinet work. And the mind is quick to reason out why Brunswick is a final-type instrument in every way.

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction has brought new standards in the phonographic art—better tone, truer tone. Tones hitherto lost are now ever-present.

Every hearer is convinced. That is the reason for the great popularity—that accounts for The Brunswick winning such headway in a field where limits were supposed to have been reached.

You can quickly prove all we say by doing as others have done. We invite you to visit a St. Louis dealer. Ask him to play The Brunswick for you. Make any comparison you wish. We abide by your decision.

The Brunswick Tone Amplifier, a great improvement. Moulded entirely of wood—no cast metal used. Tone waves vibrate and enlarge properly, bringing a finer, richer, truer interpretation.

ACT QUICKLY OR SCHOOLS ARE LOST, PRINCIPAL SAYS

Herman F. Hoch, Who Takes Position in Commercial Field, Believes Crisis Has Been Reached.

Herman F. Hoch, whose resignation as principal of Grover Cleveland High School became effective yesterday, gave a statement to the Post-Dispatch, in which he says the St. Louis public schools have reached a crisis because of the economic condition of the teachers due to inadequate salaries. He says the condition is apparent in a loss of efficiency which is reflected through the pupils and affects every citizen of St. Louis.

He is convinced, he says, that the people of St. Louis have been neglecting their duty for several years, and that if they do not deal with the situation as citizens, the schools are lost. They must see that the charter of the Board of Education is amended and that other legislative changes are brought about to make possible larger revenues for the erection of buildings and the salaries of teachers.

Advocates Salaries of $6000.

He advocates salaries of $6000 to $7000 for high school principals, based on the declined purchasing power of the dollar. He was receiving $4100, the maximum principal's salary being $4200, and his reason for quitting the schools after 16 years of service was to better himself financially, by entering the employ of a large manufacturing company as general director.

His statement follows:

"The St. Louis public schools are face to face with a crisis. The morale of the teaching force is at a very low ebb. Teachers cannot do efficient work in classrooms when harassed by economic conditions, such as exist today, and no doubt will exist for years to come. This loss in efficiency is reflected in the pupils, and in that way is carried to the homes, and thus affects every citizen in our city.

Teachers Examples of Devotion.

"I have been in the St. Louis school system for 16 years and I know that if honest devotion to service is to be found in any body of men and women anywhere, it is to be found in the great body of St. Louis teachers. This is a quality in our teachers which the people of this city should take every means to cherish and protect. It is extremely dangerous to exploit it. It ought to be humiliating to proud St. Louisans to admit for a minute that teachers should teach our children out of love of the work merely and forget money.

"Are the people taking charity from the teachers? This devotion is, indeed, fundamental to the future of our children, but by taking advantage of it we are slowly killing it.

"The teaching profession is practically the only occupation which has not received, within the past six years, proper recognition for services rendered. Salaries in this profession have not at all kept pace with the increased cost of living as has occurred in most occupations or professions.

"Teachers in the high schools in 1914 were receiving, according to the schedule, a minimum salary of $980 and a maximum of $2180. This schedule has been increased to a minimum of $1200 and a maximum of $2700, an increase of approximately 24 per cent. Salaries of high school principals since 1908 have increased from a maximum of $3600 to a maximum of $4200, an increase of only 16 2-3 per cent.

Says Minimum Should be $2000.

"The dollar of today is worth only about 40 cents as compared with the dollar of 1914. On this basis, teachers should be receiving minimum salaries of $2000 and maximum of $4400. In like manner, based on the same value of the dollar, principals should be receiving from $6000 to $7000 annual salary.

"With salaries as they are at the present time, it is impossible for a teacher even to live as the profession requires, not to say anything about laying something aside from year to year for possible periods of sickness and for certain old age. The direct result of this economic pressure is forcing the teachers out of the profession. No matter how great is their love of teaching, they cannot refuse to accept positions which will give them opportunities for increased financial returns.

"A recent report from Illinois shows that the normal schools in that State have approximately 60 per cent of the number of pupils they had three years ago. Conditions are the same in all sections of the country. Attendance at the normal schools is rapidly decreasing. Furthermore, there are practically no young men or young women in our big universities taking teacher training courses.

Disastrous Results Inevitable.

"This cannot but bring about very disastrous results in the entire public school system of the country within a very few years. Young men today are everywhere leaving the profession to better their financial situation. Several teachers have already left the high schools of St. Louis and more are certain to follow unless adequate salaries are assured teachers beginning with next September.

"It is necessary, therefore, that steps be taken at once by our Board of Education to arrange a schedule of salaries before the close of the present school year in order to relieve the strain and uncertainty existing at the present time. The wel-

COMPLETE OUTFIT OF CLOTHING FOR $3.75

Salvation Army Store Sells Coats at 35 Cents, Trousers 25 Cents a Pair.

An entire outfit—hat, suit, shoes, collar, tie, everything—for $3.75. That's the price of a change at 13 North Third street, where the Social and Industrial Department of the Salvation Army conducts a clothing store. It is not especially for the down and out. Many a family man, and his wife and his children, buy there.

You can get a good coat for 35 cents, a pair of trousers for 25 cents, a vest for 10 cents, shoes for 50 cents, a shirt, just as good as new, for 20 cents; a hat for as low as a dime; socks at 5 cents a pair, a necktie for a dime, and a highly starched white collar thrown in to make the outfit complete.

You can get anything in the clothing line you want and the price is within reach. And if you happen to be without funds and in dire need of the clothing, it's yours for the asking.

Charge to Cover Overhead Expenses.

The charge placed on the clothing by the army is to cover overhead expenses, such as rent, cleaning and renovating, mending, hauling and the meager salaries of the few aged or lame persons employed in the store. The clothing is donated by St. Louis families.

The Salvation Army store, which has been an institution in St. Louis for more than 15 years, has helped thousands of families. Today business is on the increase at the little store and the stock is not as large as it has been at other periods.

The reason for the apparent shortage is that many persons who in the past gave clothing to the army, are withholding it.

The army has maintained a bureau for years for obtaining discarded clothing and shoes, wagons making the collections.

The store is operated under the direction of Maj. C. A. Soderholm, the blind staff officer of the Salvation Army. Soderholm, who has been a Salvation Army officer for 30 years, lost his sight two years ago but has refused to give up his work as director of the clothing store, the Salvation Army Industrial Home, the Salvation Army Hotel on Broadway and the army's furniture store.

The records of the clothing store show that in the last 15 years the establishment has been self-sustaining each year, with two exceptions, when the deficit was met by borrowing funds from one of the other institutions conducted by the Salvation Army in St. Louis.

ACT QUICKLY OR SCHOOLS ARE LOST PRINCIPAL SAYS

fare of our schools demands this. Discord and personal prejudices should be forgotten at such a time as this and every effort be made to keep the St. Louis schools up to the high standard which has characterized them during the past years.

"But just what is to be done? My study of existing conditions and the causes of these conditions satisfies me that our people have been neglecting their duty for the last few years. If they do not deal with the situation as citizens, our schools are lost.

"Groups of citizens, civic organizations, every individual citizen, must get to work immediately to remove the shackles from the schools. They must see that the charter of the Board of Education is amended and that other legislative changes are brought about to make possible larger revenues for the erection of buildings and the salaries of teachers. If broadminded citizens will not look ahead and immediately initiate action calculated to provide for the present emergency and for the years before us, who is to bear the reproach of the great host of children."

Three Others Resign.

W. C. Guy, a first assistant instructor at Grover Cleveland High School, also left the school yesterday, taking advantage of an opportunity to better himself financially. E. V. D. Wallace, who was president of the High School Teachers' Association, and Harry A. Cochran, are other Cleveland teachers who recently resigned for financial reasons.

Hoch will probably be temporarily succeeded by the assistant principal, Charles H. Slater, although no announcement has been made. The next regular meeting of the Committee on Instruction, which would act on the resignation, will be held April 7, and that of the Board of Education, April 13.

Hoch was born near Kalamazoo, Mich., and was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1895 with an A. B. degree. He taught in Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois schools for eight years, then came to St. Louis. He has been principal of Cleveland High since it was opened in 1915. He lives at 435 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves.

STONE THROWERS TO CONTEND

JOPLIN, Mo.—Every section of the country has its favorite sport, but here they have evolved a brand-new one in stone throwing. The game has become so keen that plans have been made for a contest to determine the championship. Joplinites are offering a prize of $1000 to the winner.

The contest, which is believed to involve the world title, will take place here within the next few weeks between Joe Henry of Avilla, Mo., and C. A. Thomas of Rogers, Ark. Sportsmen concede that the winner will throw a rock more than 530 feet, although a baseball has never been thrown more than 426 feet 9 inches. Henry threw a stone across a 40-acre field in practice.

Teeth Are Whiter
Millions of Them—Note Them Everywhere

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Wherever people meet now you see white, glistening teeth. It is clear that some change has occurred, for white teeth were never so common.

Millions of teeth are being cleaned in a new way—in a way you'll adopt when you know it. This is to urge you to test it.

They remove the film

Teeth become coated with a film. That film becomes cloudy and the teeth grow dim.

Film is that viscous coat which you feel with your tongue. It clings to teeth. It not only dims their luster, but it works their ruin. Most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve film. A soapy tooth paste even makes it more clinging. So old cleaning methods have proved disappointing. Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing, until very few people escape them.

How the film destroys

This film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Careful people, twice a year, have dentists remove the film and tartar. But in the meantime, between the teeth and on the teeth, it may do a ceaseless damage. The need is for a daily film combatant.

Science now combats it

Dental science, after years of searching, has found a way to combat this film. Convincing clinical and laboratory tests have amply proved its efficiency.

The method is now embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. With it are combined two other modern requisites. So in three ways this tooth paste brings unique results.

Now leading dentists everywhere advise it. Already millions of people have seen the results of it. And in every community these users are urging other folks to try it.

Offered to every home

Now to every home we offer a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Get it and watch the results, then read the reason for them. Judge for yourself what this new-day method means to you and yours.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

But pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. So this method long seemed impossible. Science, however, has found a harmless activating method. Now active pepsin can be daily used, and forced by the brush where the film goes.

Pepsodent brings two other results, to accord with modern dental requirements. It fulfills every need. But constant film destruction is its all-important action.

* * * *

Compare this method with the method you employ. It will give you new conceptions of what clean teeth mean. Then you will not return, or let your children return, to the ways which have proved so inadequate. The result may be life-long protection, such as former methods never could afford.

Filmless teeth will glisten

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how the teeth whiten, how they glisten, as the fixed film disappears.

The results are quick and apparent. Your mirror will show them.

Then remember that those glistening teeth mean far more than beauty. They mean cleaner, safer teeth. It means that film—the chief tooth enemy—can be effectively combated.

This is too important to delay. Cut out the coupon now.

The tenth dog show, to be held in the Coliseum three days, opening tomorrow under the auspices of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club, will be second in importance in the United States, being surpassed in number of entries only by the Westminster Show in New York. American bred class—open to dogs bred in the United States, champions now eligible.

Open class—all dogs over 6 months of age.

Winners' class—open only to undefeated winners of first prizes.

Winners of 15 points—under three different judges. Winner shall thereby become a champion of record.

Miscellaneous class—open to all dogs of recognized breeds not otherwise provided for.

Field trial record—applies only to public trials where competition is open to all.

Field trial classes at bench shows—confined to dogs that have been placed at a recognized field trial.

Unclassified dogs—including dogs not otherwise entered and embracing many champions for exhibition purposes.

Cash Prizes Offered.

A cash prize of $25 is offered for the best dog, also $25 for the best novice dog, any breed, $10 cash prize for the best "toy," any breed, $10 cash for the best sporting doy, $10 cash for the best non-sporting dog, and $50 cash to the owner or handler entering the greatest number of dogs.

Dan Cupid Encounters a Broil Paradox of Success Through Failure . . .

NOW

by FREDERICK ORIN BARTLETT

COPYRIGHT 1919 BY F. O. BARTLETT

A Story of Love and Business With an Unexpected Ending . . . . .

DEAN BRADLEY came to New York grimly. He came like a young athlete, stripped to the waist, jaws clenched, fists doubled, ready to fight hard, ready to fight long, ready to make sacrifices. He labored under no illusions. He expected to have a bad time of it for a good many years and he was prepared. A man cannot eat his cake and have it, too, and cake was what he desired—lots of it, made of the richest materials. He had always had bread enough and now he was after something more. To fulfill that desire in the future he was willing to live on crusts for the present. And that was what he was doing.

Through a friend of his father, who for 25 years had been cashier of the savings bank in the small town where Bradley was born and where he lived until he was graduated from the high school, the young man secured a modest position with the brokerage house of Sears & Pettingill on a salary of $20 a week. This was not much, especially after taking out five of this every week and depositing it toward the future in a bank account he established at once. Of the remainder, $10 was spent for a barren looking room with a very indifferent breakfast and dinner included. This left $5 a week for lunches, clothes and car fares. Bradley certainly stood in no danger from the temptations of Broadway.

And yet every now and then he wandered down that thoroughfare of sly glances and dubious beckonings in the evening. He enjoyed the lights and the color and the snatches of music from the crowded cafes. Often enough, too, there were young woman who turned to look back at him, for he was rather a handsome chap in an unspoiled way. He might have been mistaken for a gentleman prize fighter of the middleweight class in good training, except that his gray-blue eye were too thoughtfully serious, his clothes too modest. Also, it was quite evident that he was out of his element down there. He was a mere onlooker. At times he was even disconcerted when some young lady bolder or hungrier than her kind ventured to speak to him. He always raised his battered slouch hat politely, but hurried on alone at a faster pace as soon as that was decently possible—sometimes regretfully, because it was no fun to be alone among so many people.

But that was part of the cost he was paying out of the present for the stake of the future. He must conserve all his resources—all his energy. Even within the office itself he was obliged constantly to remind himself of that—particularly when he met the eyes of Miss Babcock, Sears' confidential secretary. She was a pretty girl, this Helen Babcock, with fine features, brown eyes, reddish-brown hair, and a full young mouth, rather timidly displayed.

From the first day she had interested him more than anyone on the staff and in the next six months a sort of unexpressed friendship had grown up between them. He had never met her outside the office and never exchanged more than perfunctory greetings with her inside, and yet he felt as though he knew her intimately and that she knew all about him. Sometimes on a trying day their eyes would meet as she hurried by his desk and they smiled back reassuringly at each other.

Once it had even been his privilege to be of some slight service to her in the matter of a young cad who laid in wait for her at the curb when she was on her way home. It had not been so much of a party as Bradley would have relished, because when he meant business he looked very much like business. So at the very start the young cub backed off the sidewalk and lost himself in the crowd, while Miss Babcock only stopped long enough to smile her thanks and then disappeared herself.

For a long while after this Bradley remembered that smile—even took it back to his room with him, where it showed to still better advantage. That was just a matter of contract. The kind of surroundings a man can get for $10 a week, two meals included, are not apt to be especially cheerful. Bradley did not expect them to be. He did not growl, only one of the pleasantest of his reveries ran something like this: Some day—probably not much short of 15 or 20 years from now—he would inquire his way to a hardware store. There he would purchase a medium-weight ax. Then he would come back to this room, remove his coat and proceed to make kindling wood of the pine bureau with the blotched mirror. The washstand would come next, then the two chairs which were furnished him, and finally the wobbly bed. Before the police arrived he would settle with the landlady for twice what she asked and then quietly depart.

But with this smile in the room everything appeared different. The place seemed quite cheery, because nothing but the smile mattered. The pine bureau with the blotchy mirror and the marks of previous tenants recorded all over it in scratches might not have been there at all for what he saw of it when he was thinking of Miss Babcock. The wall paper and the carpet, heavy with greasy stains, suggesting hair oil or a blind drunkard's waistcoat, vanished utterly from sight when she was around. That was curious, too, because she was the sort of girl a man would delight to place in a setting of delicate niceness—the sort of choice luxury to which he looked forward and which Sears, the junior partner was now enjoying.

Sears began, so gossip had it, as Bradley was beginning. He came into the office as a young man 20 years ago, accepted a small salary, and then further handicapped himself by marrying. He had a hard time to make both ends meet, but persevered until he was finally admitted to the firm. Today Sears was reported to be worth a quarter of a million dollars, a large part of this having been cleaned up in the last few years as a result of the firm's ventures in war stocks.

He looked his part. Bradley used to watch every morning for the big, shiny limousine to roll up to the office for the pleasure of seeing Sears step out of the luxurious interior while the military looking chauffeur held wide the door. Spick and span from head to foot, with that air of tailored niceness that today only a man with a real bank account can have, the junior partner always aroused afresh Bradley's ambition. Life as a man in his circumstances lived it was something worth working for—something worth waiting for.

Bradley compared it with his father's pettily monotonous life. The latter was bound as with chains to the dull routine of a desk in a country bank, living one jump ahead of actual poverty and lying awake nights in fear of losing even that little. It made Bradley grip his jaws the harder. He must not allow the glamour of that pretty little smile to delude him. He must never consider it a feature of his daily life, but merely as something extra—like a gold piece found on the sidewalk.

Yet as time went on he came perilously near making that very mistake. Spring arrived, as it has a way of doing annually. It reached even New York City—even Wall street—though here among these angular stone buildings it did not have much to work on except the mellow air and the hearts of the people. Still, it did what it could and though it could not supply green grass and apple blossoms and nestling birds, it managed to get the heat turned off in the radiators and the windows opened to the sun-warmed air and the costumes of the women considerably brightened and to gain some recognition of the blue sky overhead. This little had a perceptibly beneficial effect upon the temper and spirits of everyone.

Bradley was keenly responsive. He had lived most of his life in the country, where spring meant a great deal. It was like the opening of a locked door. Now he craved the open places and in this mood sought at the end of the day the parks that were within walking distance. So one evening he chanced upon Miss Babcock wandering alone among the green things that bordered the gravel paths. She looked somewhat as though she were on a tour of her private estate and he an intruder. He raised his hat uneasily and was about to go on when she smiled and then it was as though instantly he became her guest.

"Are you alone?" he asked.

She studied his serious young face a moment and then answered confidently:

"Yes."

"Then may—may I walk with you?"

"If you'd like," she nodded.

So they went on together instead of separately, and that was all there was to it. That was all there was to it, and yet to Bradley it made the difference between being alone and not alone. That in a way is just pure mathematics, like saying one and one is two, but it also involved a great many other differences entirely outside the sphere of pure mathematics. With her by his side the mild air seemed to be full of golden motes and the western sky towards which they strolled like some rainbow's end within easy reach. The whole world became suddenly filled with color—even her cheeks. They were of a very soft texture, those cheeks, and palpitatingly alive. She made everything around him alive—the grasses, the trees and the lilac bushes just beginning to burst forth into fragrance and color, and even the ground beneath his feet. She made him so much alive that the present became an acute reality.

The period between the close of one day's work and the beginning of the next was, to him, ordinarily, scarcely more than a shadow interval. He waited impatiently for it to pass and welcomed sleep because it made the hours slip by more rapidly. Even when he strolled downtown among the gay lights and passing figures and listened to the snatches of song in the background he still felt as though he were in some puppet world. He had no more part in it than a man in the gallery looking across the footlights at the stage. The people who passed him were as nameless to him as he was to them. With an empty pocket he was like some lonesome ghost and, had he tried to mix, would have been about as welcome. But he did not try to mix. It was not yet his turn. Some day that turn would come and then, though his taste might not bring him down here, he would no longer be a shadow. In the meanwhile he could always look forward.

She was a pretty girl, this Helen Babcock, with fine features, brown eyes, reddish brown hair and a full, young mouth rather timidly displayed.

But tonight he was not looking forward. There was nothing for the moment that seemed more worth while than this hour he was now enjoying. It was almost as though some part of his future had already come true—some intangible part of it which had nothing whatever to do with dollars and cents.

They talked of little things—mostly of what met their eyes. He was anxious for her to see all that she saw. She grew excited over a bird darting through the shrubbery and he exclaimed over a bit of blue seen through the tree tops. Then they laughed in a friendly way over the odd-looking couples who passed them and doubtless were laughed at in their turn. But that did not matter. Nothing mattered except the moment and the marvelous world of little things in which they found themselves—little things that seemed as important as big things.

Bradley always remembered the shock of surprise he experienced when the end of the path they had chosen aimlessly brought them face to face with the noisy turmoil of a street bounding the park and she held out her hand to say good-night.

"You aren't going now?" he exclaimed.

"Yes, I must get back."

"Back where?"

"To my room."

"But"——

He was trying to protest. He did not want her to go. Yet for the life of him he could not think of any rational grounds upon which to base an objection. He only made her uneasy. His thoughts leaped forward.

"Will you be out here tomorrow?" he asked eagerly.

She hesitated.

"Perhaps," she said, finally.

"At the same place?"

"Perhaps."

"At the same time?"

"Perhaps," she laughed.

"I shall wait for you."

She hurried away and he went back to his room alone. When he entered the place looked more cheerless than ever. He turnd off the gas and threw himself on the bed. He was strangely excited and yet as he reviewed the episode he found it lacking in all the details of dramatic adventure. Compared with his dreams it was extremely trivial.

Those dreams—he had forgotten them for the moment. He gripped his jaws. He had heard this morning that Sears was planning big. He was plunging in oils with the prospect of doubling his fortune. There had been considerable gossip about it around the office and sums bordering on a million were said to be at stake. Bradley had watched Sears almost in awe as he went out. He had thought he looked a little tired. But who wouldn't be willing to look tired for such stakes as those?

Lord, how easy it was to make money once fairly in the big game! And the only way to get in was to sit tight and plug hard and save. Rockefeller or someone had said that it was harder to make the first thousand than the next hundred thousand. That was true. The first thousand stood for sacrifice, penny upon penny, out of a salary that was scarcely big enough to live on. There were few who could stand the gaff. It meant stripping life to the bone. It meant forgetting the present and concentrating on the future.

That was what Sears had done. Today Sears was 40 and he could make his dreams come true. He could watch them materialize in brick and mortar as he had actually done in the beautiful home he had built in Scarsdale. Bradley had taken a trip down there one day just to look at the place. Up a graveled driveway and sheltered behind trees it stood—a thing of beauty and an emblem of success. It had made his own heart leap for joy like a promise. What lay behind the walls he could only guess, but what he himself would place behind the walls he knew, perhaps—perhaps it might include Helen.

Only he must sit tight and keep steady and patient.

"FORZA DEL DESTINO" 58-YEAR-OLD NOVELTY

St. Louis to Hear Verdi's Musical Tragedy for First Time Next Week.

Chief interest in the San Carlo Opera Company's engagement at the Odeon next week centers in the announcement that Giuseppe Verdi's musical tragedy, "La Forza del Destino" ("The Power of Destiny"), will be produced on Wednesday night, April 7. So far as runs the memory of the oldest inhabitant, this work has never been performed in St. Louis, although it saw the light at Petrograd 58 years ago, and had its first New York production in 1865. After a lapse of many years, the opera has recently been revived by the Metropolitan Opera Company, and has proved, with Caruso and Rosa Ponselle in the cast, one of its big and sure-fire box office attractions.

Although a newcomer here, as an opera, "La Forza del Destino" has provided excerpts which are universally familiar on the concert stage. No season passes that one or more sopranos do not offer to the public their versions of the aria, "Pace, pace, mio Dio." Scarcely less popular is another soprano air, "Madre, pietosa Vergine. Caruso and Scotti never sang a more successful phonograph record than that of the duet in the third act—the finest number in the opera—"Solenne in quest' ora."

The libretto was adapted by Piave from a Spanish drama by the Duke of Rivas, entitled "Don Alvaro, o la Fuerza del Sino" ("Don Alvaro, or the Power of Destiny"). The characters are: The Marquis of Calatrava, a Spanish patrician, bass; his children, Donna Leonora and Don Carlo, soprano and baritone; Don Alvaro, a noble East Indian youth, tenor, and the abbot of the Franciscan Friars, bass. The two chief roles, those of Alvaro and Leonora, will be sung by the company's star tenor, Manuel Salazar, and its dramatic soprano, Buda Ray Shull. The scenes are laid in Spain and Italy, about the middle of the eighteenth century, and the chorus represents muleteers, peasants, soldiers and friars.

Story of the Opera.

The popular overture begins with a trumpet blast signifying the martial and tragic theme of the work, and much use is made of the beautiful prayer theme, afterwards appearing as the melody of the "Madre, pietosa Vergine" aria. The single scene of the first act takes place in the drawing room of the Marquis of Calatrava. We learn that Don Alvaro and Leonora are in love, and that her father vigorously opposes the match. The sweethearts are about to elope, when the Marquis intervenes and is accidentally slain by Alvaro.

The first scene of the second act shows a village inn, and Don Carlo, son of the murdered Marquis, announces his determination of avenging his father's death by killing his sister and her lover. Leonora, who has escaped from home in male attire, arrives at the inn, and flees in terror of her brother to the Convent of Hornacuelos.

The second scene takes place before the convent, and Leonora, kneeling in the moonlight, implores the Virgin's protection in the prayer song, for which the monks, singing the "Venite" behind stage in the chapel, supply an impressive background. Leonora is admitted by the abbot, who gives her a nun's robe and lodges her in a cave. She expresses her gratitude in another fine air, "La Vergine degli angeli," while the priests again chant their solemn anthem.

The third act is situated in a Spanish military camp in Italy. Don Alvaro and Don Carlo, who are both under assumed names and who never met each other in Spain, become devoted friends and swear eternal amity. Don Alvaro is wounded in battle. Believing himself dying, he entrusts to Don Carlo a package of Leonora's letters, asking him to destroy them. The passage in which the friends take farewell is the famous duet, "In This Solemn Hour." But Alvaro does not die. His identity becomes known to Don Carlo, and in the second scene they fight a duel, in which Alvaro leaves his enemy for dead. The unhappy victor resolves to end his days in a monastery.

A Catalogue of Horrors.

In the fourth act the locale returns to the Convent of Hornacuelos, where Don Alvaro has taken the tonsure and the name of Father Raphael. Don Carlo, recovered from his wound, seeks his enemy out and taunts him until the monk, goaded past endurance, consents to fight to the death. They retire to the desolate vicinity of the cave where Leonora, unknown to either, is in hiding.

This is the place of the fifth act. Leonora, pale and worn, comes forth, and in the air, "Pace, pace, mio Dio," asks heaven to let her die, as she is unable to forget her lover. She re-enters the cavern just before the duellists arrive. Don Carlo falls, this time mortally wounded; Leonora rushes out, recognizes her brother and embraces him; but he, true to his vow, with a dying effort stabs her to the heart. Don Alvaro hurls himself from a cliff, as the monks arrive singing the "Miserere," and the curtain falls upon the conclusion of this doleful catalogue of horrors.

The season will open on Monday night of next week with "Rigoletto," in which Salazar will sing the part of the Duke, and the role of Gilda will be taken by the company's brilliant young coloratura soprano, Queena Marie. The other operas scheduled are "Madame Butterfly," "Faust," "La Boheme," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "I Pagliacci," "Tales of Hoffman" and "Il Trovatore."

Miss Myrna Sharlow, soprano of the Chicago Opera Association and former St. Louisan, has been engaged as "guest" artist, and is expected to be heard in "Faust" and "Madame Butterfly."

For the Little Ones

To Keep Their Digestion Perfect Nothing Is So Safe and Pleasant as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

An experienced observer in charge of a large office said it was a waste of words to tell most people to eat plain foods. They prefer the food that delights the eye. Checking up on the after effects the usual distresses of gassiness, sour risings, water brash, lôginess and so on may be avoided by following the meal with one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These supply the stomach with an alkaline effect thus promoting normal conditions as in health. This puts the O. K. on so-called rich food. Men and women are but children of a larger growth when it comes to eating the foods that satisfy, even though they may cause indigestion.

Indigestion is not necessarily confined to those who live high. It may follow so simple a process as the flavor of a bay leaf, thyme, garlic, sage or any of the other savory flavorings so universally used in soups, roasts, dressings, etc. As a rule if the stomach balks at such things, it will be disturbed by cheese, milk, coffee, pies and almost anything that most people like so well. Such conditions as these are met quite adequately by following the meal with one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They digest food and at the same time supply the stomach with an alkaline effect that prevents gassiness, heartburn, sour risings, drowsiness after eating and such distresses so familiar to those susceptible to indigestion or dyspepsia. Get a box of these tablets at any drug store in the United States or Canada, price 50 cents, and then note how comfortable the stomach feels. Your most excellent cook may use garlic without a protest.

WAR PICTURES ARE RELEASED

Official War Photographs Taken From the Archives of the Army War College at Washington, D. C.

LIKE A MOVING PICTURE

Army, Navy, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., K. of C., Salvation Army, Jewish Relief and Civilian Activities All Represented — Portfolio of 1000 Is Edited by Former Army Officers.

At last the plans which have been dear to the heart of many army officers since the armistice are bearing fruit.

The official pictures of the war, which have been kept at the War College in Washington, D. C., are now released en masse. One thousand of the best have been selected for a portfolio which is being privately published as an authoritative permanent record of the war. It will be the most lasting authentic souvenir for soldiers and civilian workers.

Story of the War in Official Pictures.

Portfolio of Selected U. S. Army Pictures Edited by Captains Moore and Russell. Official Maps and Official Reports.

America's Photograph Album Is Ready.

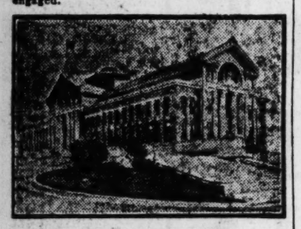
"Oh, for a camera ——" the little group of tired soldiers looked about the wrecked streets of the village, so recently won, and longed for some means of making a permanent record of their victory.

Each one at home had albums full of snapshots commemorating fishing trips, camps and ball games, but this biggest adventure of all could live, as they thought, only in their memories because of the military orders which forbade cameras at the front.

Official Pictures Taken.

Later they learned that a unit of the United States Signal Corps, consisting of photographers, moving picture men and necessary aides, made careful photographs of every step of their advance. These were for the records of the War College at Washington. Tens of thousands of these pictures are kept there for future generations to see, an absolutely accurate, absolutely authentic history of America's part in the Great War.

One thousand of these official pictures, the most interesting, representative and significant, have been assembled in the portfolio entitled "The U. S. Official Pictures of the War," under the direction of Captain W. E. Moore, who had direction for the General Staff of the 600 Signal Corps men who made up the army's photographic section, and of Captain J. C. Russell, who was attached to the War College at Washington, D. C., as chief censor of all still and moving pictures in the United States Army. The portfolio also contains official maps of Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel, the Argonne and other sectors where American troops were engaged.



Released by War College.

Many of the pictures taken on the field were held back during the war for military reasons. The private publication of official pictures, made by Captain Moore of the A. E. F., and Captain Russell, former censor of pictures at the War College, can now be obtained from Sears, Roebuck and Co.

The Signal Corps men who took these official pictures were volunteers, most of whom had enlisted for this service, although a few were transferred from other branches when it was found that they were photographers or moving picture men. They shared the dangers of the combat troops, for they kept step steadily with their advance. They have done for this war what has never been done before. Other wars have come down to us through a mist of tradition. For a record of this war historians will turn to actual pictures of actual deeds.

Entire Service Included.

Of the forty-two divisions of the American Army, twenty-nine are combat divisions, and to each one of these was attached a photographic unit. There were, besides, special units scattered about at different headquarters and points of interest.

The work of our army and navy is faithfully portrayed in a way that only the camera can do. The Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Jewish Relief and civilian activities have here also an absolutely authentic record of their work.

Captain Moore was appointed by the General Staff for the special work of securing these pictures and they were taken under his personal supervision. He and Captain Russell have now personally selected and arranged the most representative for the public—a tremendous task.

Official Notes and Maps.

For example, the section on St. Mihiel as given in the official portfolio contains a brief survey of the battle—just enough to make the pictures absolutely clear. It is plainer and more definite than newspaper accounts because it is written by a man who helped plan and direct the attack—Brigadier General Fox Conner. A large map makes every maneuver absolutely clear, besides locating the exact position of every division.

Photos a Living Reality.

The photographs which follow make a living reality of the information which the map and survey contain. You realize what wire means when you see the little, up-ended tanks plowing through. You know the meaning of preparation when you see the enormous prison pens, erected weeks before the attack began.

A desolate field, over which a group of men creep from shell hole to shell hole, only a little part of the general advance, gives an idea of modern warfare which no words could do. A soldier is tapping out orders on a typewriter on a cracker box, dangerously near the heels of a mule.

In one picture American troops returning victorious from a successful maneuver are seen streaming across a bridge with the American flag above. It was one of few occasions in the war when the colors were uncased on a battlefield. The men were winning and therefore "feeling their oats."

Show Every Phase of War.

These are pictures which will be thumbed over, and over with reverence and never falling interest by all of us who have lived through the war and by our children's children. The war as a whole is presented in the one form which is absolutely trustworthy and supremely interesting, and the 1,000 Government Official Pictures, in private portfolio, are now available through Sears, Roebuck and Co.

"Jones, you lose your five spot on that bet. I've looked up the official facts in this portfolio. The third liberty loan was $4,158,599,100 subscribed and $3,000,000 allotted."

"Here's where we dug the practice trenches at Camp McArthur. I didn't get across, but here's, where you and dad fought at Belleau Wood, and here's the official map—shows just where you laid in the mud, shooting."

"Here's where the —— Division marched toward Sedan in November, 1918." Your grandpa walked right on this road. Right here—for he told me he was No. 4 front, walking.

Official Army and Navy Air Service Photographs taken by the United States Government over here and over there, giving with each picture exact location and position by number of every American Division, Regiment or Company concerned in that picture. Supplemented by Official Maps of the United States Army General Staff showing operations in all zones of advance, indicating where troops marched, noting topography, campaign plans and executions thereof. Also Official Story of the Meuse-Argonne Battle by Captain Arthur E. Hartzell, General Staff Officer at General Headquarters, appointed by General Pershing to write the official story. This official story has been pronounced by military men the most thrilling account of the Argonne Battle yet written, being absolutely clear, graphic, complete and authoritatively correct.

Civilian Work—Officially recognized work both here and abroad and reviewed in Official Pictures, as follows:

Red Cross, Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., Y. M. H. A., Salvation Army and others.

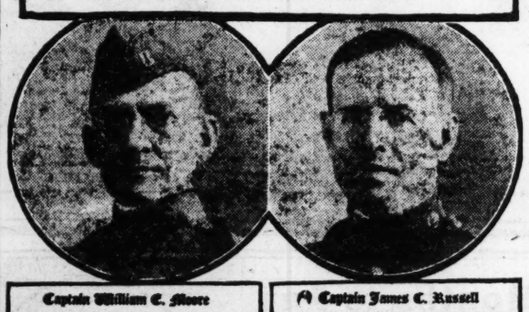
The major portion of this book is taken up with the thousand official pictures chronologically arranged as follows:

Section 1—Photos of the training camps. (Some unofficial pictures have here been added because of their special interest.) Scenes at points of embarkation of various divisions. Section 2—Scenes of convoys. Section 3—Landing of troops in France. Marches to and through Paris. (Remember! Every place in which a division, regiment or company has had any part is given by number and individuals are mentioned by name.) Section 4—Training camps in Great Britain and England for American troops. Section 5—Cantigny; America's first entry into battle. Photos from airplane by Signal Corps officers in the midst of battle. Section 6—Chateau Thierry. Second and Third Divisions in action. Section 7—St. Mihiel. Especially the Twenty-Seventh and Thirtieth Divisions, the latter being National Guardsmen from the South. Section 10—Americans in Italy, Siberia and North Russia. Section 11—Victory and the armistice. The censorship is released from pictures taken at 10:58 A. M., and official pictures taken at 11:02 show how the United States Signal Corps caught luckily a few phases of the first celebration. Section 12—The S. O. S. (Service of Supplies). Section 13—American Army in Germany after the armistice. Section 14—Peace Conference. Pictures of all notables. Section 15—Activities of soldiers after armistice. Homeward bound.

Excellent Pictures The pictures are all reproduced by the famous roto-gravure process, the most expensive method of making reproductions. Gives the soft tints much better than the original photographs and blends the shades of color so that each picture seems absolutely lifelike. You must see the portfolio to realize the beauty of rotogravure pictures.

Size of Portfolio Portfolio contains 500 pages, size 9¼x11¾, bound in ornamental cloth, with cover design in gold and colors.

Special Picture in Colors Besides the official maps, official records, official reports and the 1,000 rotogravure reproductions, we send with this portfolio a reproduction in full colors of the painting "Street Fighting," made by the artist Captain Harvey Dunn for the United States Government, under the direction of Captain Moore.



Captain William C. Moore — Captain James C. Russell

THE names of these editors speak for themselves. These two captains are the two men from the United States Army qualified to undertake this great work.

Captain Moore was appointed by the General Staff Chief of the Division of Official Pictures for the A. E. F. He had charge of all the pictorial work outside of the U. S. A., including both still pictures and "movies." Also of the eight official army artists who painted battle scenes for the Government.

Every picture before reaching the United States or any other country had to be released by authority of Captain Moore, the censor in the A. E. F. being his immediate assistant.

Captain Moore often was under shell fire. He personally directed in the field the taking of pictures at Chateau Thierry and later in St. Mihiel salient.

During his fifteen months' service in the A. E. F. Captain Moore also had charge of pictorial propaganda in foreign countries, releasing to the Committee on Public Information what photographs that organization circulated in allied and enemy countries. After his return to America he was attached to the Historial Branch of the General Staff at Washington.

Captain Russell, during the war, was a member of the Military Intelligence Division, General Staff, of which Brigadier General Marborough Churchill was the Director. He was on station at the Army War College (now called the General Staff College) dedicated for the most part to the uses of the War Plans Division, General Staff. While hostilities were in progress the Army War College was the scene of those activities which included studies as to policies for defense and the organization of the military forces in general, the supervision of training, the adoption of inventions and the compilation of written and pictorial data concerning the war. Certain sections of the Military Intelligence Division were also lodged at the Army War College. Among them was the sub-section having to do with the censorship of still and motion pictures of which Captain Russell was in charge. Every official war film or photograph you saw last year had been censored, edited and O. K.'d by Captain Russell.

How the Official Pictures Were Obtained.

First, some of the pictures were taken over here at camps, at ports of embarkation, and then at ports of debarkation. Later came the orders for the photographers to advance to the front. Six hundred United States Signal Corps men thus risked their lives daily like the men in infantry or artillery.

No risk was too great, no chance too desperate, no task too difficult for the Signal Corps photographers. One picture in this collection was made from a plate developed after the photographer, Lieutenant Estep, had been killed. You will find that picture in the Argonne group in the portfolio. Pictures on pages 147, 148, 149 and 150 show our men of the 26th Division advancing under fire to attack. Capt. E. H. Cooper, Sergt. Eckelberry and Private Painter, who made these photos, were with the charging troops. Sergt. Eckelberry had his right hand shot off while taking pictures. Other such thrilling experiences of the photographers are narrated in this portfolio.

Many of these pictures were kept secret. Some of these Captain Moore, while over the censor, could not afford to release for this country. Others, after they were sent here, were held back as a matter of military policy by Captain Russell while he was censor. Now they are all available for the public. Many pictures which for good reasons had to be kept secret by the censors are now yours, together with simply written explanations to read, to study and to understand.

Its Value, Many Times Its Cost.

This portfolio of pictures, unlike a book that is read and then laid aside, will live with you and grow in value as the years go by.

Today you look through the pictures and the maps and get the final authoritative information regarding points on which you have heard only guesses.

Tomorrow you show the portfolio to a friend and spend an interesting hour. You recall the names of young men you know and you trace the places they saw and what they did.

Next year, and ten, twenty, thirty years from now you show the portfolio to your children; they show it to their children—the record of your family's participation in the World War.

If this portfolio were offered at the price of 50 books it would have earned its cost fifty-fold, would it not? That is, if we compare cost with use. For you'll enjoy this portfolio fifty times as often, fifty times as long as almost any book you ever have read or will read.

At Last-the Authoritative

Gripping Story

THE first authoritative story of the war!
No censorship!
No guesswork or newspaper "yarns."

The gripping story of the war told in this portfolio of official pictures as taken by the United States Army Signal Corps.

From peace scenes in U. S. A. to war with the A. E. F. and back to Peace. Chronologically arranged. Few words—1,000 pictures! Easily grasped. Quickly understood.

Supplemented by Official maps and Official records—

Reports by Pershing and others.

This means the facts—the facts—the FACTS about the war.

And

An imperishable record of what your boy or your friend did on his division or his company or his regiment. The most lasting authentic of all souvenirs of the war.

To the Soldiers and Sailors.

These pictures show where you were in camp over here in November, 1917. They show where YOU marched over there in April, 1918, with your division.

They show where YOU were marching in May, 1918, with your regiment.

They show where YOU (if you were in the Navy) were watching and sinking submarines.

They show (if you got under fire) where you fought in June and July, 1918.

And they show your division, your regiment and perhaps your company and, perhaps, you, yourself, in the most thrilling days that you ever lived or ever will live; in the days when patriotism inspired us all; when the man with a gun was the man to whom all America looked up. If you are the parent or the family friend of a soldier, what would be a better souvenir for that soldier boy than this portfolio showing him where he was and where his pals were during those great days in a lifetime? If you are the soldier, the man who was in uniform, whether over here or over there, do you want a more wonderful momento to hand down to your children or children's children?

To All Other War Workers.

And if you were a war worker of any kind, these pictures will show you what you and what your associates did in Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Jewish Relief, K. of C., Salvation Army, etc., over here and over there.

With the frontispiece of the portfolio you will find a letter from the Secretary of War to the editor in part, as follows:

"Any enterprise which attempts fairly and faithfully to spread before the country the facts regarding the participation of America in the World War is entitled to all the encouragement and approval it can receive from any source."

Today the United States Army has no secrets to hold back. The original pictures are no longer held secret by the war college and belong to the people. The people have a right to see them and to understand them. Every fact of the war is public property for public information. That is the policy and the aim of the Government.

In order that the facts may be known to the public and the public may get the facts whenever they wish, the United States Government has plainly stated its attitude toward the private distribution of these official photographs.

You Get the FACTS.

We are through with propaganda—through with censoring, through with putting things so-so. The United States Government wants you to know. You have a right to know, as an American citizen. So here you get the facts!

Not the dry facts, not the technical facts, but the facts vividly, wonderfully told, the real story of the war pictures with just enough reading matter to make it clear and thorough and absolutely a complete authoritative record.

Is it then not a fair statement that Sears, Roebuck and Co. are performing a public service by thus helping the sale of this authoritative portfolio?

This lasting patriotic souvenir belongs in every true American home.

JUST THINK OF CADOMENE

When You Find You Are Losing Out in the Game of Life.

Worn-Out, Nervous Men and Weak, Bloodless, Anaemic Women Have Found New Strength and Vigor in Taking Cadomene Tablets.

A well-known writer on physical culture says: "You cannot run a high-powered engine without fuel. You cannot get up much steam without plenty of coal and a perfectly working furnace (body). Similarly, in your own case, the internal 'works' must be sound and working properly."

That tired feeling—do you know what it means? It means that digestion and nutrition are lacking. It means that your blood and nerves are impoverished. It means that slow but sure decline in your vitality will surely ensue and real sickness will overtake you, unless you bestir yourself in overcoming the weakness of the organs responsible. This is not written to frighten. In reality it expresses logical facts. Cadomene Tablets, the favorite prescription of a great physician, are made, and sold by druggists for people who need help for nature's forces, owing to ignorance, neglect or dissipation of one kind or another. Every package is guaranteed to please or money back.

JOSEPHINE CLUB FOR GIRLS TO BE RENT FREE EASTER

House in Benton Place Will Be Formally Presented to Co-operative Organization by Owners.

The Josephine Club at 28 Benton place, a co-operative boarding house for 30 working girls, will celebrate Easter, next Sunday, rent free. Mrs. C. Marquard Foster and Mrs. Caroline Seitz, who furnished the club when it was established on a smaller scale at 1767 Mississippi avenue in 1915, have bought the house in Benton place, and will formally present it to the club on Easter. It has housed the club since 1916.

Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Seitz furnished the club as a memorial to their mother, the late Mrs. Josephine Schlosstein, and the building will be a further memorial. It was purchased for $6000. The club's founder and president is Miss Daisy E. Nirdlinger, who is vice president of the Fisher-Brown Advertising Agency, having been connected with that company for 15 years.

The freedom from the rent payment of $60 a month will mean the establishment of a fund for a summer camp where the girls may spend their vacations without cost, Miss Nirdlinger said. It will take $1000 to establish such a camp, which may be started on Miss Nirdlinger's 10-acre farm, "Daisyland," near Kimmswick, Jefferson County, on the Mississippi River bluffs, or on the Meramec River in St. Louis County.

Club Free From Irksome Rules.

The Josephine Club is free from irksome rules. No girl may live at the club whose income is over $100 a month, nor who has relatives living here. It happens that among the 30 clerks, factory girls and telephone operators at the club, the highest salary now is $80 a month.

Each girl pays $4 a week for her board and lodging to Miss Nirdlinger. Should sickness or temporary unemployment occur, payments cease, and are not charged as future burdens. Thus $120 a week or less is the sum with which Miss Nirdlinger and her coworkers feed and house the young women.

February, the last month for which bills were paid, is an example of the process. It had practically four weeks, so that the income then was $480. Here is how that was spent:

Rent, $60; meat and lard, $57.55; groceries and canned milk, $57.70; vegetables and fruit, $26.50; margarine (butter prices are prohibitive), $29.70; bread, $33.24; gas, $18.61; electricity, $21.65; house mother's salary, $28; total, $332.95.

The remainder, besides paying for incidentals, must furnish its share of the annual contingent fund to pay a $27 water license, a furnace man for six months, buy coal and kerosene for the furnace and stoves, carry insurance and depreciative, and allow for the weeks when some of the girls cannot pay their share.

Similar Clubs Advocated.

"We are able to do it through the perfectly wonderful way the wholesalers from whom we buy have treated us," Miss Nirdlinger said. "I think we have proven to be a success and there is no reason why any group of girls cannot form a similar association and have the same benefits.

"The club is an outgrowth of the Big Sister movement. There is a need for a place where the girls are not hampered by unjust rules."

To gain admittance to the club from the long waiting list a girl need only give a character recommendation. She is free to have all the young men friends and "dates" she may wish. Because working girls must arise early they are asked to return home by 11:30 p. m. and the boys, on whose calls there is no other restriction, must leave by that hour.

"I want the girls to have the same privileges I always enjoyed," Miss Nirdlinger said, in telling of a certain social worker who ordained girls in her care might have but one beau.

Most of the girls are young, the youngest being 16 years old, but there is one "girl" who is 55 years old. They form a happy family, and three weeks ago today they were excited guests at the wedding of one of their number who had planned a church ceremony until her mates insisted on having it at the club.

The young woman was Miss Agnes Bush, 19 years old, a clerk, who married Roy Schweikert, 24 years old, an automobile mechanic and former soldier overseas. They had been sweethearts in their home at Ironton, Mo., and now live at 3634 Lindell boulevard.

Girls Trade Party Dresses.

Jewesses, Protestants, Catholics, Christian Scientists live amicably together at the club. The spirit is such that the girls trade party dresses so that all may have a share of good times.

Mrs. Mary Tieman, 42 years old, is the house mother and does the cooking. She likes the work, she says, in spite of the small salary it is possible to pay her, because, as she explains, she is her "own boss."

The board has been $4 a week for only a few months, having started at $3 and risen to $3.50 a year and a half ago.

The board of directors comprises Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Seitz, a daughter of the latter, Miss M. Seitz; Mrs. E. V. Papin, Mrs. Robert Barnes Walsh and Mrs. Edwin Walsh, who is the chairman. Miss Nirdlinger is president, Mrs. Papin vice president, and Mrs. R. B. Walsh treasurer. Miss Nirdlinger is known as "mother" to all the girls, a number of whom are orphans.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

WASHINGTON AV. WILL BE FINISHED JULY 1

Director of Streets and Sewers Talbert announces that Washington avenue, widened and smooth-surfaced, will be open for traffic by July 1. This report was to contradict the rumors that the street would not be ready for use before October. Talbert, co-operating with the Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association, the Automobile Club and the Truck and Team Owners' Association, is taking steps to see that all of the one-half a cent a gallon tax on gasoline assessed by the city will be used for the reconstruction and maintenance of streets.

FEDERAL SALES INCREASE

That the St. Louis truck operators appreciate the new Federal sales plan is shown according to D. A. Livingston, Federal sales manager, by the sale this month of 38 Federal trucks at retail.

The Federal Truck Co. of St. Louis recently announced that they would guarantee 300 days of transportation service with each Federal truck sold. In this way they elliminate the chances of delay and tie-up when the truck is most needed.

13-INCH BRICK WALL FAILS TO STOP DRIVER

Driving a car through a 13-inch brick wall with practically no damage to the car itself was the unusual experience of E. Schroeder, 1408 Cates avenue.

A short time ago he received delivery of a Chandler Six. Schroeder had been accustomed to the planetary transmission of the Ford, and the first time he drove into his garage, he put his foot on the accelerator, it being placed similar to the brake on the Ford car.

The car was in low gear and went forward, taking a section of the brick wall with it. The miraculous part of the whole accident was the little damage which the car received.

The lens in the headlights were not broken, and the fenders ware not even scratched. Falling bricks slightly dented the hood, and the top covering was somewhat torn, but careful measurements showed that the frame, which must have carried the brunt of the shock, was still in perfect alignment.

J. D. Perry Lewis, president of the Lewis Automobile Co., is very emphatic that this one accident does not set a precedent for other owners to expect to drive their Chandler through brick walls.

KOKOMO ANNOUNCES NEW CORD CASING

The Kokomo Rubber Co. has made announcement to its distributing organization of the production of a new Kokomo Cord tire. These casings mark the silver anniversary of pneumatic tire production on the part of the Kokomo Rubber Co.

The Kokomo Cord possesses a distinctive twin grip tread. Automobile weight is supported on a center rib to make the tire easy running. On either side is a row of pavement gripping wedges to stop the tendency of moving motor cars to yield to lateral forces.

The outward appearance of the tire readily classifies it as a member of the Kokomo group of motor car pneumatics. The tread is made of white rubber relieved by gray sidewalls.

VOGEL JOINS NEWMAN

Harry Newman announced last week the appointment of A. J. Vogel as wholesale sales manager. Vogel for several years has been connected with the wholesale department of the Mound City Auto Co. He will give his attention to the perfecting of a dealers' organization for the Commonwealth and R. & V. Knight lines.

AUTO CLUB WILL FATHER PLAN TO STOP STEALING

Motor Car Theft Bureau to Become Important Part of Activities of the Club.

Plans are under way for the Automobile Anti-Theft Association of St. Louis to become a bureau of the Automobile Club of St. Louis. Secretary Ernest Reeves of the Automobile Club has visited a number of associations and civic organizations recently, making them a proposition that individuals of those associations who may join the Automobile Club will be assured that almost the full amount of their dues will be put into the anti-theft bureau treasury for use by the Police Department and by a representative of the club in detecting and bringing to conviction men who steal automobiles, tires or accessories.

More than 1200 automobiles were stolen in St. Louis, and of these 300 have not yet been recovered.

Under the plan it is proposed to employ an expert newspaper man accustomed to the criminal courts, whose duty it will be to watch every case of automobile stealing and to see that technicalities and continuances and dismissals are not permitted, and to get publicity about the great frequency of paroles for chronic criminals.

LEWIS, FAMOUS RACER, TO VISIT ST. LOUIS

"Dave" Lewis, the noted automobile racing driver, is scheduled to visit this city within the next few weeks, according to word received from Detroit today by R. G. Frampton of the Hudson-Frampton Co.

Lewis, who holds every world's track record from one to 100 miles, is driving an Essex roadster from Detroit to the Mexican border via Dallas, Tex. He is making the trip by easy stages and may spend some time here.

During the past few years Lewis has become known as one of the most daring and fearless of the younger generation of racing drivers. His victories at Santa Monica, Tacoma, Oklahoma City and Sheepshead Bay have made racing history.

His most recent achievement was his part in setting a new world's long distance record with an Essex stock chassis on the Cincinnati Speedway, covering 3037 miles in 50 hours at a speed of more than 60 miles an hour for the entire distance.

WILL ENFORCE LAW ON FIRM NAME REGISTRY

According to P. H. Sheridan, who is attorney for the Motor Accessory Trade Association, there is every probability that the State law enforcement officials will begin the active enforcement of a law that was passed by the last Legislature and which became effective in May.

This law requires that any person or persons doing business under a name other than that of the individuals in the firm must register with the Secretary of State, giving particulars of the ownership of the business under oath.

The purpose of this law was to prevent the "Magnificent Automobile Co." from going into business without being incorporated, getting credit, and then closing up between two days, leaving behind no record of the real ownership of the business.

A heavy penalty can be assessed against any company not incorporated which fails to register, according to Sheridan.

TRUCK MEN PLAN JOINT USED CAR SALES

A meeting of the Commercial Car Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association, presided over by Chairman L. H. Amrine, was held at the City Club, Friday night. Practically every commercial car handler in St. Louis attended the meeting. One matter which was discussed was the formation of a corporation to sell trucks taken in exchange on new trucks. There was also a discussion of another truck tour during "Ship-by-Truck Week," recently set for the early part of May by Gov. Gardner.

HEADS OLDS SALES FORCE.

Charles A. Tucker has been appointed general sales manager of the Olds Motor Works, and will in that capacity direct the destinies of Oldsmobile sales throughout the United States.

Mr. Tucker brings to this important position an unusual training and a rare measure of selling and executive ability. For a number of years previous to his appointment to his present post he has been president and general manager of the Nebraska Oldsmobile Co. of Omaha, from which he has now severad his connections.

When asked today to confirm this report from Lansing, Mr. P. H. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Auto Co., local Oldsmobile distributors, said, "we feel very much gratified by the selection of Mr. Tucker for the vacancy at the factory office. I have been intimately acquainted with him for several years, and know him to be a man of unusual ability and purpose."

AUTO TRADE DEMANDS FULL STREET BUDGET

Joseph A. Schlecht, P. H. Brockman and Robert E. Lee, representing the five automobile trade associations of St. Louis, appeared Friday morning before the Board of Estimates and Apportionment at the office of the Mayor in the city hall to urge that the board make a full apportionment of funds for the repair and maintenance of streets. It was argued to the board that the streets of St. Louis were never worse than at this time, and that every cent that could possibly be spared should be appropriated for the streets, in order that traffic and heavy hauling be not interfered with.

Others representing automobile and traffic interests at the hearing were S. S. Pingree, president Automobile Club of St. Louis; S. Stein, secretary Missouri Automobile Club, and President Noble and Secretary Engel of the Truck and Team Owners' Association.

Arnold A. Weiss Tire Co., formerly Double Tread & American Tire Co., 4334-36 Olive street, are now located at 3334 Olive street, where they maintain a service station for U. S. and Goodrich tires, and handle firsts and seconds of all makes.

NOMINATIONS MADE FOR ASSOCIATION'S OFFICERS

The Nominating Committee of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association met Saturday at noon at the City Club and selected 18 names from among the membership of the association which is to constitute the two tickets of nine names each for officers and directors of the association. The election, on April 12, will select from these two tickets a president, vice president, treasurer and six directors. The secretary is appointed by the board of directors.

The Nominating Committee consists of A. G. Ross of the Franklin-Ross Automobile Co., Conrad Welling of the Welling Motor Co. and H. G. Brouster of the Leach-Brouster & Co. The selections made by the committee will not be made public until they are mailed to the membership the latter part of this week.

Ernest E. Reeves, secretary of the Automobile Club of St. Louis, drove through from Omaha to St. Louis in an automobile reaching St. Louis Tuesday. The purpose of the trip was to trace a route from St. Louis to Omaha.

THE OLDSMOBILE ECONOMY TRUCK satisfies, for it has a strong, sturdy Frame and Rear Axle to carry the heavy load without yielding; and powerful Valve-in-Head Motor to pull through mud and climb the steep hills with ease. These are points that satisfy—they widen the margin of profit.

Faith

The greatest word in any language is—Faith. It is the fundamental principle of all religion—the foundation of all business.

Without faith all would be chaos. Governments, courts, banks, and the institution of the family would go down in ruin.

Washington had faith at Valley Forge—Lincoln at Gettysburg—Roosevelt had boundless faith in the American people.

To believe in something with all your heart—to be absolutely without fear of obstacle, courageous in the face of envy and smiling at defeat until it turns to victory. That is faith.

To every man and woman in the world whose confidence and good will we enjoy, we owe an obligation—to safeguard their faith.

To every person whose good fortune depends upon our good faith we are gravely responsible.

Abuses Reduce Tire Mileage.

Experts estimate that nearly 50 per cent of all automobile tires manufactured are discarded before they have delivered maximum mileage because of the neglect and ignorance of motorists. Underinflation, wheels out of alignment and other abuses cause damage that could easily be fixed if cared for at the time incurred. Maximum mileage is built into tires and will be delivered if motorists learn conservation from booklets being issued by most manufacturers.

AUTO TRADE WILL PLEDGE EMPLOYES TO BOND ISSUE

Letter to 350 Firms Asks That Signature for the Bonds Be Secured From Every Man Working for Them.

As chairman of the Automobile Committee of the Citizens' Municipal Bond Committee, P. H. Brockman has sent to the entire automobile trade of St. Louis a forceful letter calling upon them to give their earnest support and activity to the passage of the bond issue at the election, May 11. Brockman's letter encloses a sample of card to be filled out, and asks that every firm in St. Louis secure enough of these cards to secure the signature of every employe of its business. One paragraph of the letter says:

"As a citizen of St. Louis, each of us is vitally concerned in the progress of the city, so that we must look at all but two provisions of the bond issue with the eye of the citizen who wants his city to be worth-the-while.

"In the other two provisions we are selfishly concerned in a vital way. One of these is for money enough to make good streets in St. Louis—good streets make for more automobile sales, more accessory sales, more tire sales and more battery sales. The other provision is for the building of a great convention hall—a place in which an automobile show, worthy of and in keeping with the greatness of this city, can be held."

Those to whom the letter was sent are requested to send to Robert E. Lee, vice chairman, at the office of the Chamber of Commerce, for a supply of cards.

TRAILERS CUT LUMBER DELIVERY COST IN HALF

It is estimated that the cost of haulage is the biggest single item in the production and selling of lumber.

The Hine Lumber Co. of Detroit, Mich., kept a careful check of the single haulage item of delivery of lumber from the yard to the customer. They found that this one movement of the lumber by horse-drawn trucks cost 7 per cent of the gross selling price of their lumber stocks. Later they adopted trucks and a carefully kept cost account showed the cost to be 4 per cent of the selling price.

A few years ago they experimented with trucks and trailers, and a few months' experience showed a greater movement of lumber by the use of trailers than had been possible with motor trucks alone, yet the operating cost of their delivery department was not increased.

The Hine Lumber Co. now uses three Fruehauf four-ton semi-trailers and three Fruehauf six-ton semi-trailers. For all six trailers they have but two three one-half tractor trucks. Each tractor handles three trailers—one trailer is being loaded while the second is on the way with the tractor and the third trailer is being unloaded at the job.

Five thousand feet of yellow pine lumber is frequently hauled on each of the four-ton trailers, and 8000 feet of the same kind of lumber on the six-ton trailers. The large load weighs approximately eight tons, which is delivered in one trip when three trips would be required if trucks alone were used.

Thus, each tractor is not only handling three times as much lumber as it would carry without the trailer, but it is able to make two or three times as many trips.

SHIFT GEARS AND SAVE THE MOTOR

Motorists who bear in mind that the three sets of gears for forward driving are primarily to provide different ratios of power rather than different ratios of speed, stand the best chance of getting longest service from their engines.

E. P. Musler of the Rex Motor Co., local distributors for the Davis Six, tells of a number of remarkable hill climbing feats of the Davis Six on high. Despite this, however, he advises against attempting impossible feats on hills and over bad roads.

"Intermediate and low speeds provide greater power, although at less speed, than high gear and should be used when conditions necessitate," says Mr. Musler. "This does not mean a motorist should not get the benefit of the economical driving in high gear if conditions warrant, but does mean that no unnecessary strain should be put upon the powerplant. In the long run it is the owner himself who will profit most from such a course."

OFFERS FREE SERVICE.

The Hill-Tromley Spark Plug Co., Missouri distributors of Kant-Break spark plugs, have announced a policy of giving free spark plugs service to all users of Kant-Break plugs, embracing inspection, cleaning, adjustment of points, and other attention which a spark plug may require.

This service is rendered at present at the Hill-Tromley company's two stores, at 3434 Locust street and at Walton avenue and Olive street. Negotiations are under way for locations in South and North St. Louis, and Kant-Break service will soon be convenient to a motorist in any part of the city.

The Kant-Break plug is made in St. Louis by the Kant-Break Spark Plug Co., whose new plant at King's highway and St. Louis avenue has a capacity of 40,000 plugs a day.

DUPLEX ENGINEERING IN LATEST SAXON SIX

A little study of motor car buyers shows that without exception, the man who is looking at cars expects certain definite things from whichever car he picks, said Mr. C. L. Fox, sales manager of the Saxon Motor Car Corporation.

"He expects certain trouble as well as certain motor merits. He expects to nurse the car through its first thousand miles to limber up the bearings of the motor. He takes it for granted that every so often his valves will have to be reground, his cylinders cleared free from carbon, and his spark plugs renewed.

"That's why the new Saxon has given motorists such a surprise. Ready for the worst gruelling you can give it the moment you get behind the wheel, no pampering necessary. Duplex engineering, a tested, proved engineering principle, has been applied for the first time to a motor car, in Saxon.

The ONLY Aero-EIGHT

THE world has produced great masters—geniuses all—but in the minds of men there will remain always but one Michael Angelo. And though there may be countless eight cylinder cars—all worthy contributions to the science of automotive engineering and designing—there is only one Aero-EIGHT.

An Exclusive Creation

It is distinctive, original, exclusive. There is something indefinable about it that vests it with an inherent quality of goodness, worth and ability which is peculiarly its own—which eludes imitation.

The Cole Aero-EIGHT has an air of unconcerned power—a complacency that takes for granted its mastery over every emergency and inspires confidence in its ability to reduce the extreme to the commonplace.

Its beauty of lines, its wealth of energy, its speed when desired, its comfort always, its unparalleled economy, its luxurious completeness form a combination of virtues rarely encountered in such perfect balance and harmony.

The ability of the Cole to transcend all present accomplishments by instilling a note of futurity in all that it achieves gives the Aero-EIGHT a character humanly individual.

W. L. Patterson, well known in the automobile trade, has opened an office at 3215 Locust street as an automobile engineer and inspector, and adjuster for firms, individuals, and insurance companies.

The Modern Auto Repair Co. has ordered and will shortly install at its place, 4601 Olive street, $50,000 worth of automatic machinery for automobile work, particularly for crankshaft work and cylinder grinding.

Thomas Kelly has opened a salesroom at 3132 Locust street for the distribution in this territory of the Alemite Lubricator System.

Herman L. Schnure, president of the Velie Automobile Co. of St. Louis, has just returned from a visit to the Scripps-Booth Corporation of Detroit and found them located in their new factory where they have a production capacity of 50,000 cars a year. Deliveries will be good as soon as the railroad situation clears up.

L. E. Newell of the Newell Automobile Co., was in Cleveland last week where he arranged for a shipment of Stearns cars. The only railway equipment obtainable was five flat cars which will be used to bring the shipment into St. Louis.

An open air quick service station has been established in the rear of the Newell Motor Car Co. quarters. They have taken a lease on 5000 square feet of ground space which they are covering with cinders.

PUZZLING RATTLES

When something seems to rattle around the body of your machine and you don't know just what it is, get someone to hold the doors tight while you drive, says American Motorist. If that stops the rattle, get some anti-rattlers for the doors and apply them; or fasten a small piece of rubber on your door to fill out the vibrating space.

WORLD AUTO MARKET FOR 40 MILLION CARS

The United States, with 106,000,000 people, has 7,602,000 automobiles—one for every 14 persons.

In the rest of the world there are 1,565,000,000 people owning a total of 717,000 automobiles, or one for every 2182 persons.

The United States, with one-sixteenth the population of the entire world, has 10 times as many automobiles as the balance of the world.

These startling facts are cited by Harry W. Anderson, general sales manager of the Templar Motors Corporation, Cleveland, in refuting a popular expression that "the point of saturation has been reached" in production of passenger automobiles.

"This talk about the point of saturation being reached is a dream of the uninitiated," says Anderson, dean of America's automobile sales managers. "The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce estimates that the greatest production of the industry during 1920 will not exceed 1,600,000 passenger cars. This is insufficient to take care of our home demand.

"In Iowa there is one automobile for every sixth person. Suppose this were the case in the rest of the country, which will be the case some day. We will then have 9,500,000 cars.

"Foreign countries are begging for American cars. Africa has 138,000,000 people and 24,000 automobiles; Asia has $19,000,000 people and 27,000 automobiles; Oceanica, including Australia and New Zealand, has 54,000 automobile and 65,000,000 people; Europe has a population of 449,000,000 people and 427,000 automobiles; this hemisphere, exclusive of the United States, possesses 94,000,000 people and 175,000 automobiles.

YOUR FRIENDS judge your car on its appearance. A glance tells them whether its body style is modern or ancient. Right now the distinction is clear—in new cars, too.

A few makers set the style: others trail along one, two, three years later. When a new style comes out, older styles become ancient from that hour.

Buy a style that is going out and your investment is wasteful. Buy a style coming into vogue, and it will be three years before it grows common, and five or six before it passes.

See the newest Winton Six and you'll agree that it has set a style decidedly worth investing in. May we show you? Simply telephone.

GAS TANK IS OUT OF SIGHT IN NATIONAL

What to do with the unsightly gasoline tank that disfigures the rear end of so many otherwise attractive motor cars has been cleverly solved in the new National sextet.

In this latest of National models H. P. Federspiel of the Southern Motors Co. points out that the gasoline tank has been concealed behind a neat apron of sheet steel similar to the splash apron that adorns the front of most modern motor cars.

Access to the tank is had by a filler spout that extends to a convenient point at the right of the car near the curb, while the gasoline gauge is visible by means of a sliding cover in the apron. For night inspection the dial of the gauge is covered with a luminous substance that makes it as easily read as in the daytime.

An additional feature of the National gasoline tank worthy of note is found in an emergency compartment that is tapped by a special valve on the heel board of the rear seat when the main tank is empty, giving an additional supply sufficient for from 15 to 20 miles of travel.

Anyone who has ever run out of gasoline on the road will appreciate this novelty, which is doubly valuable because of the fact that it requires no special attention, the reserve reservoir being automatically the first to be filled when the fuel supply is replenished.

Overland Exports Increase.

Export orders on the books of the Willys Export Corporation, which is a subsidiary of the Willys-Overland Co., are reported to be more than three times as large as the total foreign shipments of Willys-Overland during any preceding year.

This great growth of the Willys-Overland company's foreign business is indicative of the fact that the new Willys-Overland product is proving as successful in foreign countries as at home.

It is stated that the Willys-Overland Canadian Co. has been reorganized during the past year with increased capital, and is now turning out more than 50 cars per day.

It is also stated that the Willys-Overland company's plant in Manchester, England, will have a capacity for manufacturing 25,000 cars per year by the end of 1920.

Production at the Willys-Overland plant in Toledo is now in excess of 600 cars per day, and that production it is expected will reach 800 cars per day within a short time.

Inasmuch as the demand for the new product is increasing steadily, and is in excess of present production facilities, the Willys-Overland company is now taking far-sighted steps to provide facilities for greater economies in connection with present production, and greater production on an economy basis in the future.

65 MILLION PAID FOR ROADS BY OWNERS

The passenger car and truck owners of America contributed $65,522,259 to good roads during 1919.

This represents money received from license fees from the various states, according to figures sent in to the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. Highway authorities say that over 90 per cent of this amount goes back into good roads work.

The 1919 total transcends that of 1918 by $15,000,000—enough money to construct a 500-mile commercial highway. Approximately one-fourth of the national total was paid by car owners of three states with totals as follows: N. Y., $911,394; Penn., $5,090,645, and Cal., $4,468,732.

GARDNER PRODUCTION REACHES 30 PER DAY

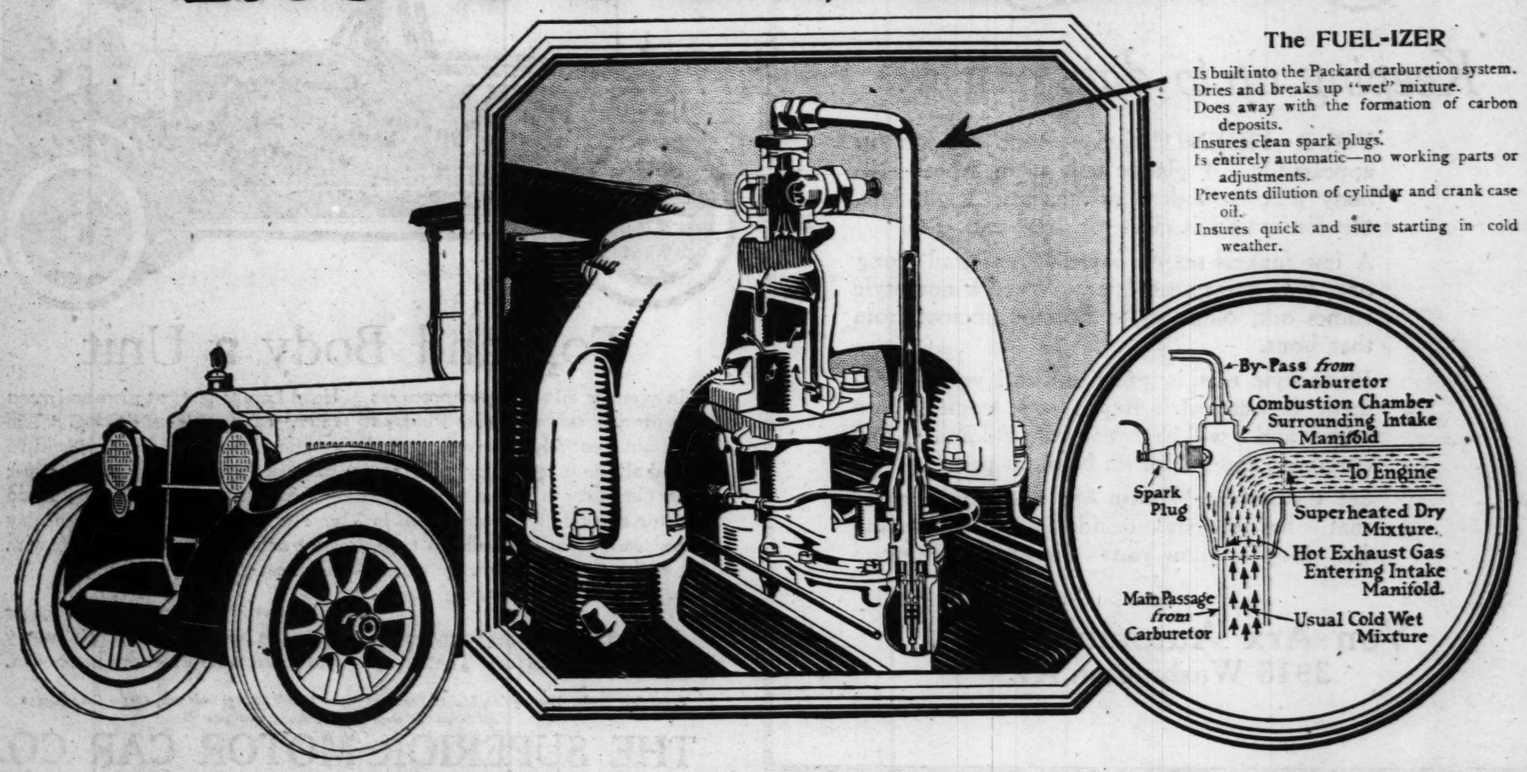
The week ended yesterday, which was the fourth in its permanent and mammoth home at Main and Rutger streets, brought high-tide production by the Gardner Motor Co. The daily average was put at 30 light four cars, or 180 for the six days, by Russell E. Gardner Jr., vice-president for sales, though it was slightly better than that. On one of the days there was an output of 36 cars and on another 35, but these were exceptional and needed to make the average a trifle better than that stated.

The steady progress being recorded by the company in the production volume follows enlargment of the skilled help army as rapidly as it can be accomplished, and the increased smoothness of machinery operation under well-directed activity. Results already achieved in this direction lead Vice President R. W. Gardner, in charge of production, to feel that the plant will have reached its maximum capacity of 150 cars a day before June 1, if normal conditions in the materials market are not disturbed.

Of the 180 cars turned out by the company, 10 were delivered to St. Louis buyers through the Schlafly Motor Car Co., local distributor.

Marvelous Achievement of Packard Engineering

The "FUEL-IZER"



The FUEL-IZER

Is built into the Packard carburetion system.
Dries and breaks up "wet" mixture.
Does away with the formation of carbon deposits.
Insures clean spark plugs.
Is entirely automatic—no working parts or adjustments.
Prevents dilution of cylinder and crank case oil.
Insures quick and sure starting in cold weather.

This Exclusive Packard Feature now Standard Equipment on every new Packard Car

WITH the development of the Fuelizer, the engineers of the Packard Company have reached the goal for which motor car interests all over the world have been striving for many years.

In short—they have achieved perfect combustion of all grades of gasoline.

To the Packard owner, at least, the inefficient carburetion of gasoline is no longer a source of worry and expense.

Quick starting—with a temperature of 11° above Zero, the Packard engine equipped with Fuelizer responds perfectly to the throttle in 10 seconds.

About 20 seconds after starting the engine may be operated perfectly on a normal mixture—no need of choking motor.

Tests made at 5° below Zero show that the engine is able to pull on high gear almost immediately.

Freedom from carbon—not one single case of foul spark plugs or valves, combustion chamber walls or piston rings, developed in the months of testing after the perfection of the Fuelizer.

Complete combustion of fuel is shown by the absence of oil dilution in the crank case. The Fuelizer does away with this main cause of wear on engine bearings and scoring of cylinder walls. It does away with sticky valve guides and valve stems.

Freedom from smoking was demonstrated by the clean exhaust, due primarily to the fact that the Fuelizer works at the maximum when engine is starting and idling.

The Fuelizer is about the simplest invention anybody ever saw to mean so much.

It consists essentially of a pipe, a chamber and a spark plug. It weighs less than two pounds.

It is automatically regulated by the varying degree of suction exerted by the engine as the throttle is opened or closed. Not a moving part—not an adjustment anywhere.

A Packard feature. Exclusively Packard.

In every way an achievement that must strengthen the appeal of the Packard Car to the practical-minded man who is looking for passenger transportation on the basis of performance, economy and value.

Ten Minutes with this Elegant New Chalmers Tells You the Story

Quality First

YOU find it starts at once; that it is running with amazing sweetness in a few seconds. You note no vibration. You call for speed and you get results. You tone it down and you detect a willing and perfect servant obeying every wish.

Ten minutes gives you a recast opinion on motor cars.

Your admiration for a Chalmers deepens. You search for the cause and you find it in Hot Spot and Ram's-horn.

You may or may not know that "gas" is worse this year than last, that it is becoming heavier and heavier and harder and harder to "burn."

Few engines have met this serious condition.

The great Chalmers engine has. It takes the low grade "gas," throws it against the Hot Spot, which vaporizes the "gas" into a "cloud," and makes it "fine for fuel."

Ram's-horn, minus sharp corners and abrupt bends, rushes it to the cylinders at a velocity of 100 miles an hour.

Thus the cylinders get a fuel that they can "burn," can "digest," instead of "lumpy" or "rainy" kind of "gas."

Not only can you note results in a distinguished smoothness of action, but in your repair bills.

For Hot Spot and Ram's-horn provide against thinned out lubrication and consequent burned bearings, scored cylinders, frequent fouling of spark plugs, and wasted "gas" through the exhaust.

Ten minutes will tell; and then you, too, will say Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

—truly a remarkable comparative test!

And yet this record is not at all extraordinary. Many of our trucks, we know, have completed many more thousand miles of service without ever going into the repair shop.

This is one of the reasons why Paige Trucks are so attractive from an investment standpoint. There is but little increase in the original investment through expenditures for repairs. Generally speaking, first cost represents final cost.

HOPE FOR ACTION ON NATIONAL HIGHWAY ACT IN CONGRESS

Townsend Bill Creates New Federal Department to Take Over Work of Making Permanent Highways.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Now that the peace treaty is out of the way, so far as the Senate is concerned, Congress is expected to rapidly dispose of other measures which have been held in check since last May.

One of these measures is the National Highway Act, which provides for the creation of a Federal Highway Commission to take over from the Department of Agriculture the highway work now being conducted as a branch of that department. The creation of a new department to administer the highway affairs of the United States is necessary, it is claimed, because of the growing demand for increased transportation facilities. The movement to satisfy this demand, as expressed in the proposed National Highway Act, has been indorsed widely by civic and commercial organizations throughout the country.

As Congress approaches definite action upon the measure now in the hands of the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads, a few highway officials and others in some states are expressing opposition on the ground that the act proposes to take over all highway work as a Federal function, and that Federal aid as now operating will be jeopardized. It is reported that in some instances efforts are being made to create the impression that even State Highway Departments will be eliminated.

To combat these unfounded statements, Senator Townsend, author of the proposed measure, and chairman of the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads, calls public attention to the fact that the National Highway Act does not propose to supersede the Federal aid plan, but on the other hand it seeks to extend that plan and go even farther in helping states work out their highway problems by taking over as a Federal burden the construction and maintenance of such routes in each State as may be designated as links in a national system. The percentage of a national system within each State will approximate, it is estimated, about 1 per cent of the State mileage, so that the claim that the work of State highway departments will be encroached upon and interfered with, falls to the ground.

During the period of a threatened railway strike recently, an officer of a prominent State Chamber of Commerce wrote the Federal Highway Council as follows: "There are certain highways which must be national in their character. The need of a network of national highways may be forced upon us by the imminence of a nation-wide railroad strike. In England the situation was saved by the use of motor cars. We could not save the situation in this country in like manner at certain seasons of the year because of the lack of highways. If, however, there was such a network of highways extending between the principal cities, every motor vehicle in the country could be requisitioned in such a crisis and the people fed and kept warm."

This suggestion comes from a State where millions of dollars have already been spent in highway development, but where the necessity is also seen for the establishment of a national system that will tie the states together and furnish the backbone for a definite system of national, State and county highways. To achieve this result, backers of comprehensive highway work are insistent in their position that it will be necessary to take the Bureau of Public Roads out of a department where it is one of 16 bureaus, and owing to the importance and responsibility of this bureau in spending millions of dollars, place it in a separate body whose sole duty will be the full development of the public highway as one of the nation's greatest assets.

Vesta Factory Reorganizes.

The Vesta Battery Corporation, formerly the Vesta Accumulator Co., has announced through F. B. Hitchcock & Co., a Chicago investment house, an issue of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock to the amount of $450,000 and 30,000 shares of common stock.

The Vesta Battery Corporation is the outgrowth of a business started in 1897 with a capital of $1000, the steady expansion of the business up to the present having been financed entirely out of the earnings.

In connection with the issue the corporation announces that all employes will be permitted to purchase shares, and already a majority of them have taken advantage of this opportunity to share in the future of the company. This action is in line with the corporation's long standing policy of always looking after the employes' interests.

Approximately 80 per cent of the Vesta Battery Corporation's business is represented in the manufacture and sale of Vesta ignition starting and lighting batteries. Other products are headlights, lamps, generators, etc.

The corporation has an especially strong distributing organization operating more than 1200 service stations for the convenience of the motoring public.

The same management which was responsible for the growth of the Vesta Accumulator Co., will continue in charge. This consists of D. P. Perry, president; Ward S. Perry, vice president and general manager; Lee J. Perry, vice president; Fred S. Armstrong, secretary, in charge of sales and advertising, and Frank Freitag, treasurer.

NEW BUILDINGS TO BE ADDED TO NASH PLANT

Increasing demand for products of the Nash Motors Co. is reflected in substantial additions to the great plant at Kenosha during the past year. It is in this factory that Nash six-cylinder cars and Nash trucks are built, the new plant in Milwaukee, now under construction being planned for the exclusive production of the Nash four.

In addition to new buildings that have been added to the Kenosha plant in the past 12 months, thousands of dollars' worth of additional machinery also has been installed. As a result the factory of the Nash Motors Co. is regarded as one of the largest and most thoroughly equipped plants in the automotive industry.

An important addition to the factory is found in a building 120x120 which was added to the large foundry. There also has been constructed a foundry warehouse and pattern storage 80x100 feet. Other new buildings include a new roller bearing tool room and pattern shop, 100x600 feet and an addition to the sheet metal shop measuring 32x236 feet.

There are in operation in the Nash factory over 1500 productive machines and over 2000 factory maintenance machines; one plant embraces 1,011,232 square feet of floor space and in the power plant which keeps the machinery in operation, 120 tons of coal are used every 24 hours.

In a Ship's Hold— and Your Cylinders

The stoker in a ship's hold can't tell from conditions below whether it's Summer or Winter.

The oil in your cylinders is similarly situated. When the engine is warmed up, it's just as hot in the cylinders in Winter as in Summer. Therefore the conditions under which the oil has to do its duty are exactly the same. If oil of a certain consistency is needed in Summer, that same oil is necessary in Winter.

The only problem is the selection of an oil of the right consistency for your engine that will flow in zero weather. That oil is

1,600,000 AUTOS BUILT IN 1919

An Increase of 22 Per Cent Over Output of 1918.

Motor car production for the present year will not exceed 1,600,000 cars, says Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. He recently made a tour of inspection among the factories in Michigan and Indiana, where, despite the labor and fuel situation, he found conditions materially improved over a few months ago.

"Motor vehicles are now being turned out at the rate of approximately 2,000,000 vehicles a year," he said, "which was about the 1917 average. This includes both passenger cars and trucks, the latter figuring about 12 per cent of the total number. The demand for closed cars is far beyond the supply and there is also a continuous demand for passenger cars and trucks. Because of the need for conserving time, the whole country is buying automobiles, thus offsetting the poor service which is being given by trolley lines and railroads. Important road improvements are going on in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio."

As the great majority of the factories were making a very limited number of automobiles a year ago, many being wholly absorbed in war work, it required several months to return to reasonably normal conditions, and to these facts are due the estimated output of only 1,600,000 motor vehicles for the current year.

There is an increasing demand for motor buses for use in cities where car service is poor and a growing demand for all types of trucks.

Records recently compiled from all the states in the country indicated that there will be 7,602,000 automobiles, passenger and commercial cars, officially listed on Dec. 31.

This will be a new high record, and compared with the tabulation of 6,225,192 cars at the end of 1918 means an increase of 22 per cent.

Registration of motor trucks will total from 700,000 to 800,000. Motor truck traffic has assumed record proportions. Production of trucks this year is expected to be slightly under 300,0000.

That the absorptive power of the country is still ahead of production is indicated by the fact that if the nation as a whole had Iowa's automobile "density," there would be 17,500,000 cars on the road today, or nearly 10,000,000 cars more than the 1919 registration.

Exports are increasing, the products of the automobile industry now going to some 81 different countries. At present it is not more than 5 per cent of the total business, but the future holds possibilities of rapid increases.

EUREKA PARTS ADDS BIG PRESS TO PLANT

It is the consensus of opinion among men well versed in automobile affairs that St. Louis is destined to become the automobile center of the United States in the next few years.

To keep abreast of the times, the Eureka Auto Parts Manufacturing Co., the largest manufacturers of automobile radiators west of the Mississippi, have added to their equipment for manufacturing radiators the biggest press in St. Louis. It is a Bliss 407 press, 18 feet high, with a space between the uprights of 54 inches and with a ram pressure of 150 tons. It required two freight cars to bring this big press to St. Louis.

It will place this firm in a position to do all kinds of deep drawing work, not only for automobile manufacturers, but in any line where deep drawing work is necessary. In the past, the manufacturers in St. Louis territory have of necessity had to send this work to other cities because St. Louis lacked the necessary equipment.

GAS ECONOMY IMPORTANT

The following table shows how much it costs for gasoline to run an automobile 10,000 miles with gasoline costing 26 cents per gallon provided the mileage per gallon is known:

10 Miles per gallon	$260 00
12 Miles per gallon	216 58
14 Miles per gallon	185 64
16 Miles per gallon	164 58
18 Miles per gallon	144 30
20 Miles per gallon	130 00
22 Miles per gallon	118 04
24 Miles per gallon	108 16

This table shows the great importance from an economical point of view of getting the best mileage possible. For instance, if the mileage is increased to say 16 miles per gallon from a former 12 miles per gallon the saving in 10,000 miles would amount to $95.42. If increased from say 16 miles to 24 miles the saving would amount to $56.42.

The above table was prepared by L. B. Tebbetts, distributor of the U. & J. carburetor.

Spring Overhauling Needed

"There's economy also satisfaction in giving your car the once-over in the spring, then if it needs replacements or anything else to bring it back to perfect form, have it done as quickly as possible," advises H. F. Fuhrenking of the Kardell Motor Car Co.

"Naturally winter's toll is most severe and generally there is a reminder or two. This is where the old 'stitch in time' principle works out. When the car is restored to its best shape, almost as good as the day it was brought, riding in it is far more enjoyable, also it will fetch a much better price if you care to sell, or expect to trade it in on a new car.

A. A. A. CAMP MANUAL

With a finger on the pulse of the automobile touring traffic, the American Automobile Association has in course of preparation an official Manual of Motor Car Camping, the first book of its kind ever published. The object of its publication, according to American Motorist, is to encourage and increase the desire for camp life among automobilists, and to furnish the specific knowledge which is essential to its complete enjoyment.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A Feature of the Shows

It is no exaggeration to say that our new "Glenbrook" model has been a sensational feature of both the national and local automobile shows.

Its fame has traveled from state to state, city to city, and it now occupies an unchallenged position of leadership in the field of five-passenger cars.

In our long experience as manufacturers, we have never produced a model that has so quickly won its way to public favor.

Everyone, apparently, recognizes in the "Glenbrook" an engineering and designing achievement of the utmost importance.

Designed and built in the Paige shops—and powered with our new six-cylinder motor—it surpasses every standard heretofore accepted as the best in five-passenger motor cars.

The "Glenbrook" is now one of the fastest selling cars on the American market and the demand is increasing with each succeeding day.

Already our production schedule has been sorely taxed and orders for spring delivery will undoubtedly result in an oversold condition.

Compare it with any five passenger car that the market affords and determine whether it is not, indeed, the greatest dollar-for-dollar value in the light six field.

Tells How Thin Folks Can Put on Flesh and Get Strong

People who have tried it—and hundreds of folks right here in St. Louis have done so—say that if you are weak, thin, nervous, rundown and can't sleep nights, the quickest, surest and best way to get strong, put on flesh, have nerves of steel and be able to sleep well, is to take a 5-grain tablet of Blood-Iron Phosphate with every meal. The almost invariably remarkable benefit following the use of Blood-Iron Phosphate is said to be due to the fact that it does two things—feeds the nerves and supplies iron to the blood. So uniformly successful are the reports from those who have used it that Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., as well as all other leading druggists, now supply Blood-Iron Phosphate under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Inasmuch as three weeks' treatment costs only $1.50 if you like it—nothing if it fails—every weak, thin, nervous, rundown, anaemic man or woman should begin the use of Blood-Iron Phosphate today and get back on the road to health, strength and happiness without delay.

Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.: I was afflicted with a very severe sore on my leg for years. I was a teamster. I tried all medicines and salves, but without success. Applying This Paste Actually Removes Hair

(Beauty Notes)

Merely applying an inexpensive paste to a hairy surface, say beauty specialists, will dissolve the hairs. This paste is made by mixing a little water with some powdered delatone; after about 2 minutes it is rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple method not only removes every trace of hair, but leaves the skin free from blemish. To insure success with this treatment, be careful to get real delatone.

MOTOR TRUCK TIPS

Driver Education.

The motor truck operator who undertakes to educate his drivers must remember that all instructions should be couched in the simplest terms. The drivers are, as a rule, not above the average run of intelligence and they must be told what to do in such a way that it easily sinks home. Further, they must be given an incentive for doing their best and this means some sort of a system of bonuses.

Spark Advance.

Wear in the spark advance linkage and consequent mal-adjustment is frequently the cause of remarks as to the falling off in engine speed. The simple fact is that it is not possible to get full spark advance because of wear in the linkage.

Inspection vs. Overhauling.

The truck operator who makes a practice of giving his trucks a rigid inspection every few weeks, followed by such adjustment and repair as they need, escapes the necessity for the periodic overhauls that are otherwise necessary.

Brooming of the Clutch.

Faulty action of the multiple disc clutch is frequently caused by what is technically known as "brooming." That means that the sides of the keyways of the edges of the disk become so frayed that the plates do not make a proper contact. In chronic cases of faulty clutch action it is well to look for this trouble.

Time Checks.

Every truck should be equipped with some form of time and movement recorder. There are any number of them on the market today, entirely automatic in operation, giving a complete record of the movements of the truck, showing the length of stops and the time in operation as compared with distances traversed. The truck driver is not under supervision while on the road and no matter how faithful a man may be he needs some check in his movements.

64 PER CT. OF TRUCK WORK DONE BY THREE SIZES

In designing the Bethlehem motor truck with its present alignment of sizes, including the ¾-ton, the 1½, 2½ and 3½ ton models, the Bethlehem Motors Corporation believes and states that figures will bear it out, that they have an excellent dealer's proposition from the standpoint of sales possibilities.

H. F. Harris, president of the Bethlehem, points to the fact that trucks produced in the first nine months of 1919 by the leading truck makers of America, whose reports he has summarized, show that 23 per cent were of the ¾-ton model, 17 per cent were 1-ton, 18 per cent 2 ½-ton and 6 per cent of 3½ tons, giving a total of 64 per cent concentrated in these sizes. "When one stops to consider," says Mr. Harris, "that only 1 per cent were of 4-ton and only 3 per cent of 5-ton, it seems logical to deduce that over 3½-ton is a fallacy.

All but 2 per cent of the business in the 5-ton model is divided between four companies. Making big investments in the larger sizes on the part of dealers is called for when makers have these large models in their list. Therefore, I believe that the Bethlehem range in sizes is the correct foundation for a successful business, that it is a low first investment and the means to a quick turnover in capital."

FRONT WHEELS SHOULD BE PROPERLY ALLIGNED

"One of the greatest sources of tire wear is that resulting from the improper alignment of the front wheels," says a Federal Tire official. "Almost invariably rapid tire wear on front wheels can be charged to misalignment of the wheels. On nearly all cars the front wheels are set to 'toe in' perhaps a quarter of an inch. They run parallel when in use, owing to natural road resistance, which has a tendency to spread the wheels a fraction.

"But there is danger in the aligning of wheels. If the wheels 'toe in' too much, tires are subjected to a shearing wear so violent that the wear is amazingly rapid. If only one wheel is out of line, the wear comes on that one tire. If the wheels 'toe out' or allowance is not made for the natural spread due to road resistance, the wear is just as terrific."

"CROSS AT CROSSINGS" IS LATEST CAMPAIGN

The "cross-at-crossings" campaign in Philadelphia is going steadily forward and every few days some new phase is being developed. Innovations in the last week were admonitions from the pulpits of various churches, and the guarding of streets by boy and girl scouts who signaled persons whom they saw about to cross streets at other than crossings.

PLAN ELGIN ROAD RACE.

Application for sanction for the 1920 Elgin road race has been made to the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association by Charles P. Root, chairman of the Contest Committee of the Chicago Automobile Club, which, with the Elgin Road Race Association, will conduct the classic.

If the A. A. A. chairman grants permission the race will be a national championship affair, at least a factor in determining the champion for the year. Under this condition the race will be for the new size racing cars, 183 cubic inches piston displacement, such as will be used at the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, Decoration day. The distance will be approximately 250 miles and $15,000 will be put up for the competing drivers.

There is a plan to limit the number of entries to 33, to assure only the cream of talent, including the many foreign drivers who will compete at Indianapolis.

Saturday, Aug. 21, has been selected as a tentative date, which will sandwich between the July 4 and Labor day meets throughout the country and will precede the starting of the big Glidden tour about Sept. 1.

GUESSWORK IS EXPENSIVE

"Guesswork puts a great many storage batteries out of business," says Mr. G. C. Fisher of the local Willard service station. "The car owner knows that his battery is not working just right and feels that he ought to do something. So he goes ahead and often does the wrong thing.

"The only safe course for a car owner to follow is to go to a man who knows batteries and ask him to remedy the trouble. If everybody would follow this method instead of tinkering with the battery at home, the average life of batteries in service would be much longer."

How Nuxated Iron Helps Fight the Grim Spectre of Anaemia—Lack of Iron in the Blood

Which So Often Follows in the Wake of Grippe and Influenza

Lowering the Vitality of Its Victims and Leaving Them Weak, Nervous and Rundown—Physician Explains Why

Iron Is the Red Blood Food

Thats Aids in Rebuilding Wasted Tissue, Increasing Physical Endurance and Giving Renewed Health and Strength.

Will Nuxated Iron Prove a Mighty Power in Helping to Drive Away Anaemia—a Blight of Modern Life?

Weakened in physical strength and power, robbed of the vim and energy they possessed before the dread attack which pulled them down, there are thousands who today find themselves in that condition of being neither sick or well, yet who are nervous and broken in health simply because their power of resistance has been too heavily drawn upon and their blood is starving for want of iron. Once the iron is supplied numerous symptoms disappear, say physicians below who explain why they find Nuxated Iron of such valuable aid at the present time as a means of building up the red-blood, strength and endurance of their weakened and run-down patients.

"Perhaps at no time is the necessity for safeguarding health and building up increased strength and power brought home more forcibly than at the present moment, when the whole country is seeking to combat the weakening and depressing after-effects of an appalling epidemic," says Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of the City of New York. "Pale, thin, watery blood, weakened by the germs of disease, have little or no power to send energy and power through the body, and as a result many a man and woman who have suffered from these dread maladies are unable to rid themselves of their depressed, nervous state simply because their blood is literally starving for want of iron. Iron is the red blood food that aids in restoring wasted tissues, and increasing the red blood corpuscles, thereby enriching and fortifying the blood against the ravages of disease. Today, more than ever, when such scourges as the influenza and grippe have left so many victims in their path, I believe physicians should prescribe at every opportunity organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to their weak and run-down patients, for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."

Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of many years' experience and formerly of the British Naval Medical Service, says: "I do not make a practice of recommending advertised medicinal products, but I have found Nuxated Iron so potent in nervous, run-down conditions that I believe all should know of it."

Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly Physician in the Baltimore Hospital and a Medical Examiner, says: "Throughout my experience on Hospital Staffs and as a Medical Examiner, I have been astonished at the number of patients who have doctored vainly for various diseases, when in reality their delicate rundown state was simply the result or lack of iron in the blood. Time and again I have prescribed organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—and surprised patients at the rapidity with which the weakness and general debility was replaced by a renewed feeling of strength and vitality. I took Nuxated Iron myself to build me up after a serious case of nervous exhaustion. The effects were apparent after a few days and within three weeks it had virtually revitalized my whole system and put me in a superb physical condition.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or walk. See how long you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is readily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Volpert Drug Co., Faulkner Drug Store, Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Merker's 3 Stores, East St. Louis, and all other druggists.

The Hine Lumber Co., Detroit, Mich., adopted Fruehauf Trailers after years of experience with horse-drawn trucks and motor trucks.

A check of delivery costs showed that it cost 7% of the sales to deliver with horses; and 4% to deliver with motor trucks alone.

The Hine Lumber Co. now uses three Fruehauf 4-ton Semi-Trailers and three Fruehauf 6-ton Semi-Trailers. They use only two 3½-ton trucks for the six trailers.

They haul 5000 ft. of Yellow Pine on each 4-ton trailer and 8000 ft. on each 6-ton trailer.

That is the experience of lumber dealers everywhere. Trailers keep the tractors on the move and cut down the lost time.

Fruehauf Trailers have proved remarkably successful in the South and West. Their sturdy construction is an insurance against breakage and their operating cost is almost nothing, for every truck is able to pull far more than it can carry.

Let Sunny California Yield You a LIFE INCOME FROM ALMONDS

Today California Offers the Most Remarkable Opportunity for Financial Independence From a Small Investment That Has Been Presented in Many Years

We make this statement advisedly. It is the positive conviction of men whose ripe horticultural experience and thorough knowledge of California's marvelous resources together with their keen practical business judgment entitle them to speak with authority.

This opportunity lies in growing almonds in the wonderfully fertile Paso Robles district which for years has produced the finest almonds in California. And that means the finest grown anywhere in the United States, because 99% of all the almonds grown in the country are grown in California.

Moreover, this opportunity opens the way for your owning a home in this wonderful state of sunshine, flowers, fruit and scenic grandeur. Paso Robles is about midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco and only 16 miles from the coast. An hour's ride—and beach bathing and deep sea fishing to your heart's content! An hour's tramp into the woods—trout fishing, and game shooting galore! Nowhere does Nature smile more kindly and offer such a variety and abundance of the things that make life worth the living than in the picturesque Salinas Valley, in the heart of which lies Paso Robles.

These things are within your reach. And California WILL yield you an income to enjoy them for life if you will but invest a part of your surplus earnings NOW before it is too late, in one of our almond orchards in the Paso Robles district.

$2500 to $3000 a Year From Only 10 Acres

Yes, 10 acres is all you will need to yield you a life income of from $2500 to $3000 a year.

This may seem incredible, but in reality it is a very conservative estimate, based upon the selling price of Paso Robles Almonds in 1918, which was 25c per pound.

We plant 700 of the finest pedigreed almond trees that horticultural skill can produce to each 10-acre tract. Our Field Manager, Mr. G. A. Nehrhood, who is the acknowledged almond authority of the Pacific Coast, estimates a yield of 20 pounds per tree when the trees are eight years old. Yet on January 10th of this year Mr. Nehrhood appeared before C. D. McFarland, Notary Public in and for San Luis Obispo County, California (in which Paso Robles is situated) and made an affidavit as follows:

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I hereby make affidavit that I have planted and now own young orchards, which are annually producing in excess of the estimates set forth in the booklet gotten out by the Associated Almond Growers of Paso Robles, entitled, "A Life Income Plus California."

I not only have orchards that are producing more than the said estimate, but there are other orchards in the district which also surpass the estimate in question.

I attach hereto and desire to make a part hereof, the tabulation referred to in said booklet.

(Signed) G. A. NEHRHOOD.

As we have said, we estimate net returns of from $250 to $300 an acre on a basis of 25c per pound. But last year the price paid to Paso Robles almond growers was 30c to 32½c per pound. Now just figure the very moderate yield of only 20 pounds per tree and multiply that by the 700 trees comprising a 10-acre orchard—a total of 14,000 pounds—at last year's lowest price (30c) and see what the returns actually are—$4200! Allow $50.00 an acre for EVERY POSSIBLE expense of cultivating, pruning, harvesting and marketing the crop and deduct this $500 from the 10-acre yield, and there still remains a net profit of $3700.

How Your Interests Are Absolutely Protected

One of the largest Trust Companies in the United States acts as custodian of the development fund created by the money sent to us by buyers and not a dollar of this fund can be used for any purpose except for orchard development—cultivating the ground, furnishing and planting the trees, pruning, harvesting, marketing. Upon completion of your contract this Trust Company will deliver to you the deed and title to your orchard.

A Safe, Wise Investment

Our Association is composed entirely of men of the highest standing and business integrity. They are men who saw the opportunity of developing the valuable almond land of the Paso Robles district and invested their money in the enterprise. They are making big money from their orchards and are recommending and selling tracts to their best friends. They know that the development of the Paso Robles district and the cultivation of almonds will increase the value of every orchard there and mean big profits for every investor. That is the purpose of our Association.

We want you to get all the facts about this wonderful investment opportunity, so that you may intelligently decide as to whether or not it is one that you can conveniently go into.

So call at our exhibit and get full particulars. Let us show you our magnificent collection of large colored photographs of the almond orchards at Paso Robles in all stages of development from the one-year-olds up to the full bearing stage.

Let us show you samples of the remarkable sea-marl adobe soil which is found in quantities only in certain sections of the Paso Robles District.

Let us explain fully our monthly payment plan which makes it so easy to own one of these big profit-making almond orchards. Let us more fully explain how completely your interests are safeguarded by our ironclad trust agreement.

Come prepared to ask questions. We want to satisfy you fully in every particular before you even think of investing a dollar. Come any time that suits your convenience.

Your Crops Pay Half

A moderate payment down and partial payments as low as $25.00 a month puts you in possession of one of these big profit-making 10-acre orchards of 700 almond trees. But you pay only half the price out of your pocket. We will accept payment for the balance from the sale of the almonds after the trees are in bearing. We must see that the orchard "makes good" for you before we can fully be paid. It is to our own interest to keep your property in the best possible condition. We willingly make this arrangement because we know that nothing obtained from the soil is surer than Paso Robles almond crops.

Additional Profits From Increase of Land Values

Your profit of $2500 to $3000 a year is only part of the revenue from one of these ten-acre almond orchards. From the day it is planted the land value begins to rise. If it continues to increase in value at the rate of about $100 an acre for from 12 to 15 years. If, therefore, after the completion of your contract, you should at any time wish to sell, you could do so at a big advance over your contract price.

Your Surest Safeguard

is the real experience of the men who have already invested in Paso Robles land—men who have orchards in the same soil that you are buying and know its value. These men know that their orchards produce. There is no question of that. This actual experience is not only your safeguard—it is ours.

Money Back Guarantee

If you visit our property, or have some one representing you do so, and do not find this investment to be exactly as presented in our book—and you will have thirty days in which to make your investigation—we agree to refund the payments you have made, together with your railroad and Pullman fares paid to inspect the property.

BREWSTER AND LEWIS INDICTED IN ALLEGED COAL CONSPIRACY

WOMAN BLINDED BY LIQUOR SUES MAN FOR $150,000

Atlanta Man Alleged to Have Sought to Kill Her With Wood Alcohol, Following Girl's Death.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 27.—Charging that she was given wood alcohol with murderous intent, to prevent her giving damaging evidence, Mrs. Catherine Bristol of Baltimore, formerly of Atlanta, has filed suit here against John Kelley of Atlanta, for $150,000 damages.

Mrs. Bristol alleges that as a result of having drunk the poison she is permanently injured, being totally blind. In her petition she alleges that the defendant gave her the poison to prevent her from testifying that he had made threats against the life of Miss Lucile Sharp, former Atlanta girl, who died several months ago in Baltimore.

Suit Aftermath of Supposed Brandy Drinking in Baltimore Apartment.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, March 27.—The suit of Mrs. Catherine Bristol of Philadelphia, in Atlanta, against John Kelley, is the aftermath of a tragedy in Baltimore last November. Miss Lucile Sharp died on Nov. 23, after drinking what was believed to have been brandy in the Kelley apartment in Eutaw place. Mrs. Bristol drank some of the liquid and for nearly two months hovered between life and death at John Hopkins Hospital. She finally was able to leave the hospital, but is blind.

The death of Miss Sarp, an Atlanta girl, and the blinding of Mrs. Bristol caused a stir. The women, with Kelley and Allie Osman, a young Turk, were occupying an apartment at the Eutaw place address. Osman and Miss Sharp had been in New York City the week prior to her death and had purchased several quarts of alleged brandy. It was later discovered that the Brandy contained a large percentage of wood alcohol.

Mrs. Bristol, a former friend of Kelley's, had come from Philadelphia the Saturday night before Miss Sharp's death.

Kelley and Osman were held in jail for several days. Miss Sharp's body was sent to Winston-Salem, N. C., for burial, it having been thought that she died from Brights disease. Coroner Smith and Dr. Branham, city physician, went to Winston-Salem, performed an autopsy and declared that wood alcohol had caused the woman's death.

WILSON MAY SOON GO YACHTING

Mayflower Reported Being Prepared for Trips Down Potomac.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—President Wilson may soon resume his week-end trips down the Potomac and on Chesapeake Bay if the present perfect weather continues. Rear Admiral Grayson, the President's physician, would neither deny nor affirm a report current today that the presidential yacht, the Mayflower, is being put in readiness for such trips, but the physician was enthusiastic over the rapid convalescence of his distinguished patient.

While the President takes automobile trips daily, he has not shown himself to the public other than when seated in a car, but the presence at the White House today of the Rev. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, gave rise to rumors that Mr. Wilson would attend Easter services at the church.

Police to Warn Children Against Playing in Streets

POLICEMEN Monday will will begin the second lesson to be taught the public in the ways of "safety first," the first lesson in warning against the danger crossing streets not at the regular crossing having been started last Monday and continued throughout the week.

The lesson Monday will deal with the children.

"Walk your beat constantly," reads the instructions for the second lesson, "and warn all children found playing, roller skating, riding bicycle or otherwise found in the streets of the danger thereof. Also instruct the children in the danger of crossing at any but the regular designated place. Make the children feel that the policeman is their friend. It will help them to avoid danger."

CLOCKS SET AHEAD ONE HOUR IN 31 EASTERN LOCALITIES

Change in New York Affects Nation's Brokerage Houses—Through Trains Not Changed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Residents of New York State and of at least 30 communities in other States, mostly in the East, set their clocks ahead one hour before going to bed tonight. This adoption of daylight saving time, unlike last year, which was universal, through Federal legislation, was effected through a State law and local ordinances.

The legislatures of New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut have daylight saving measures pending and are expected to act upon them this week.

Brokerage houses throughout the country are affected by the adoption of "summer time" by the New York curb, stock, cotton and other trade exchanges.

Railroads entering New York from New Jersey and Connecticut have changed their suburban schedules to conform to local time, but through trains will continue to run on the standard time schedule. Several ocean steamship lines have announced that they would observe standard time in their sailing schedules from this port.

The cities and towns which have adopted daylight saving ordinances are as follows:

New York—New York City, Buffalo, Cohoes, Troy, Utica, Syracuse, Yonkers, Gloversville; New Jersey—Plainfield, New Brunswick, Hoboken, Jersey City; Massachusetts—Clinton, Lynn, Worcester, Marbor); Pennsylvania—Pittsburg, Corry, Allentown, Harrisburg, Easton; Connecticut—Hartford, Putnam; Maine—Portland, South Portland; New Hampshire—Manchester; Michigan—Detroit, St. Joseph; Colorado—Denver; Ohio——Columbus; Delaware—Wilmington.

SHODDY "ALL WOOL" POSSIBLE

Congressman Makes Assertion in Plea for "Truth in Fabrics" Bill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—That "all wool" spring suit you bought may be an old horse blanket, the castaway suit of a United States Senator or both. So declares Representative French, Republican, Idaho, whose "truth in fabrics" bill is under consideration in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. He thinks the public ought to know what it is buying.

The suit may be "all wool," and yet be shoddy—a suit made over from woolen garments. His bill would make it imperative on dealers to describe their goods, so the buyer would know whether he is getting shoddy or virgin wool.

POST-DISPATCH

5-YEAR-OLD GIRL RUN OVER BY AUTO TRUCK AND KILLED

Eileen Westenberger, Struck While Playing in Street, Third to Meet Death in That Manner in 3 Days.

DIES BEFORE REACHING HOSPITAL

Negro Chauffeur Ordered Held After Inquest in Death of Edgar Timmerman on South Seventh.

Eileen Westenberger, 5 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Westenberger of 1403 East Grand avenue, was crushed under the wheels of a motor truck on Von Phul avenue, near Obear avenue, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and died while being taken to a hospital.

She was the third child killed by a truck in the streets of St. Louis in three days. Edgar Timmerman, 4, of 1303 South Seventh street, was killed Friday, and Frank Cudakiewicz, 9, of 1517 North Ninth street, was killed Thursday.

The truck which ran down the Westenberger girl is owned by the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation, 5200 North Second street, and was driven by Harry Reaper, 21 years old, of 1103 Obear avenue. He said afterward that he was driving east on Obear, near Von Phul avenue, when he saw several children playing in the street. He said he shut off his power and that the children ran to the sidewalk.

Says Girl Become Confused.

He said that, as he turned on his power again, the little girl, who was standing at one side of the street, out of his way, became confused and ran in front of the truck, falling under the right front wheel. The truck was stopped before the rear wheel reached her.

The driver and another man picked up the child, and carried her on the truck to a private hospital, where she was found to be dead. Reaper then drove to the Angelica police street station, and was held for the Coroner. A witness supported his story of the accident.

Twenty-Two Deaths This Year.

Yesterday's death was the twenty-second fatality due to motor vehicles since Jan. 1. Nine persons have been killed so far this month, among them the Rev. John F. Cannon, of 5236 Waterman avenue, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church. He was killed in front of his home March 12.

Last Monday the police department began an educational safety first campaign, causing policemen to warn all pedestrians of the danger of crossing in the middle of blocks. During the week the department issued 50,000 circulars laying down 30 rules for "safety first" for children, motorists and pedestrians.

The Cudakiewicz boy was killed when he ran from behind a street car at 907 Cass avenue, into the path of a truck driven by Harry C. Hanebrink, 727 Thrush avenue. Hanebrink was exonerated by a Corner's jury. He was operating a truck of the Metropolitan Service Co.

Following an inquest yesterday in the case of Edgar Timmerman, who was killed in front of his home at 2 p. m. Friday by a trailer attached to a motor truck, Nezar Campbell, 26 years old, 2319 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, a negro chauffeur, employed by the American Cordage Co., 1430 South Ninth street, was ordered held by the police for further investigation.

Not Named in Verdict.

There was not sufficient evidence submitted at the inquest to warrant the naming of Campbell in the verdict which stated that the boy was killed by an automobile truck, the chauffeur of which was unknown to the Coroner's jury. Campbell was informed that he would be required to furnish a manslaughter bond in the sum of $2500.

Witnesses testified that after the boy had been knocked down they saw a motor truck with trailer attached proceeding north on Seventh street from the scene of the accident. Clara Kiphart, 4 years old, of 1312 South Seventh street, with whom the boy had been playing, said that he was knocked down by the trailer and that a negro was driving the truck. She could not identify Campbell.

Campbell admitted that there was a trailer attached to his truck, and that he drove north on Seventh street Friday afternoon, but he insisted that he heard nothing of the accident until he reported for work yesterday morning and found policemen waiting for him. Referring to a time-sheet which he himself had made out, he said that he left the plant of the American Cordage Co., two blocks south of where the accident occurred, at 2:15 p. m. Friday, 15 minutes after the accident.

WOMEN ROUT REED MEN IN BUCHANAN COUNTY MEETING

Aid in Making Up Quorum After Senator's Friends Gavel Through Slate and Declare Meeting Adjourned

ANOTHER LIST OF DELEGATES NAMED

Contest Will Be Carried to State Convention at Joplin —Denunciation of Reed Avoided.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 27.—Women delegates to the Buchanan County Democratic Convention, acting concert with the anti-Reed element among the men delegates, today wrested control of the convention from the pro-Reed forces, and elected an anti-Reed contesting delegation to the State convention at Joplin April 22.

Before this action the chairman, a Reed supporter, had arbitrarily declared the election of a pro-Reed delegation, and then had immediately arbitrarily declared the convention adjourned. The convention had been organized by the pro-Reed forces who had outlined a plan of running rough shod over the anti-Reed delegates.

The convention was almost a riot during the entire time the regular organization was in control, but was harmonious after the anti-Reed men assumed charge. The pro-Reed delegates refusing to remain in the convention.

Owing to the complexities of the local political situation in Buchanan County, there is a difference of opinion as to the effect the action of the convention will have upon the campaign of Charles H. Mayer, St. Joseph's candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Farris Charged Deal.

Friends of Frank H. Farris, also a candidate for Governor, had circulated a report that Mayer had entered into a deal with Tom Pendergast, Democratic boss in Kansas City, to elect a Buchanan County delegation to the State Convention which would vote for Reed for delegate to the National Convention, and that in exchange Pendergast would give the support of his organization to Mayer for Governor.

There is no indication here that there was any truth in the report, though there are plenty of indications that Mayer was sidestepping the Reed situation and willing to accept any advantage he could get from it. If he participated in the selection of pro-Reed delegates, he would incur the enmity of the big mass of Democrats throughout the State who are against Reed. On the contrary, if he had a hand in defeating the pro-Reed slate, he could hope for little sympathetic support from Pendergast. Consequently, Mayer found it convenient to deliver a speech today in Chillicothe, Mo., and not be near the convention.

According to information here Senator Reed sent word a week ago that he wanted a Buchanan County delegation which would stand by him at the Joplin convention. John G. Parkinson, son-in-law of the late Senator Stone, former Judge Lucien J. Eastin and others of Reed's friends started out to get the delegation for him. They worked quietly and even last night the anti-Reed men, of whom the leaders are Judge R. E. Culver, Senator Thomas J. Lysaght and Joseph Garvey, had no intimation that a fight for Reed was to be made. The mass meetings to select delegates to the county convention were held last night and the pro-Reed men were successful in all but three of the 10 wards in St. Joseph.

Rural Delegates Anti-Reed.

Because of the widespread anti-Reed sentiment in the county outside of St. Joseph no effort was made by the pro-Reed men there, and the 40 county delegates were anti-Reed.

When the convention convened this morning Parkinson and Eastin were in full control. They rushed through the selection of C. A. Buddy, a wholesale merchant, for chairman on a pro-Reed ticket and gave Buddy the power to appoint the Credentials, Resolutions and Order of Business Committees. When the committees were appointed a recess of two hours was taken.

The recess ruined the pro-Reed forces. During that time Culver, Lysaght and Garvey sent out hurried calls for the women delegates, many of whom had not attended the morning session, but had been induced by the pro-Reed leaders to permit men to vote their proxies. It developed when they were all gathered in that the women were almost unanimously against Reed. It had not been anticipated by Parkinson and Eastin that the women they had

CENT A QUART CUT IN RETAIL PRICE OF MILK PROMISED

Charge of 15 Cents Probably Will Be Put Into Effect by Large Distributors Thursday.

The retail price charged for milk by the larger St. Louis distributing firms probably will be reduced from 16 to 15 cents a quart Thursday.

This was announced last night by W. C. Connett, president of the City Dairies Co., following the action of the Southern Illinois Milk Producers' Association, at its meeting in East St. Louis, fixing the wholesale price at $3 a hundred pounds (11.63 gallons) for April.

The present 16-cent price is the same which prevailed in January, when the wholesale price was $3.825 a hundred pounds. The wholesale price for the first half of March was $3.25, and the price since March 15 has been $3.05.

At yesterday's conference between the producers and distributors, held in the East St. Louis Railroad Y. M. C. A., the distributors asked that the $3 wholesale price be fixed for the first 15 days of April only, and that there should then be a reduction, if the pasturage conditions by that time should materially reduce the cost of feeding cattle.

D. A. Brooks, of Marine, Ill., president of the producers' organization, replied that the members would not bind themselves to cut their price as soon as a few blades of grass appear. He said that, even if the organization should make such an agreement, the members would refuse to deliver their milk at a lower price than $3.

FIVE WINNIPEG STRIKE LEADERS FOUND GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Disorder in Courtroom Follows Announcement of Verdict and Crowd Is Driven to Street.

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, March 27.—Five of the leaders of the Winnipeg general strike last year were found guilty of seditious conspiracy at the close of the long trial here today. One of the defendants was found guilty of committing a common nuisance, but not guilty of conspiracy, and the seventh defendant was found not guilty on all seven counts.

Those found guilty are W. A. Pritchard, John Queens, William Ivens, George Armstrong, R. J. Johns. Queens is a former City Alderman and Ivens a former minister. R. E. Bray was found guilty of committing a common nuisance and A. A. Heaps, another former Alderman, not guilty on all counts.

Serious disorder marked the announcement of the verdict. The crowd in the courtroom received the verdict with derisive cries and hisses and when Justice Metcalf ordered the courtroom cleared by a squad of Constables, the crowd voiced its disapproval with loud shouts. One of the deputies was struck in the face by a man in the crowd and two Constables attacked his assailant. After 10 minutes the crowd was driven into the streets and the demonstration ceased.

BLAINE'S BODY TO BE MOVED

Will Be Taken to Spot Near Former Home in Maine.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The body of James G. Blaine, former Secretary of State, which has rested in Oak Hill Cemetery here for 37 years, will be removed early in the summer to a spot near his former home in Augusta, Me. Arrangements for the removal are being made by his daughter, Mrs. Truxton Beale of Washington.

Mrs. Beale a year ago presented the Blaine estate at Augusta to the State of Maine as a memorial to her son, Lieut. Walker Blaine Beale, who was killed in action in France. In accepting the gift the State Legislature asked the privilege of removing the bodies of her parents from Washington to Maine.

7-FOOT MESSAGE STARTS INQUIRY

Congressmen Made to Pay for Telegrams Sent at Public Expense.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—An average of $500 a month is being collected by the House Committee on Accounts from members who sent personal telegrams at public expense, Chairman Ireland said today. Discovery a few weeks ago of a telegram seven feet long was followed by an investigation of messages filed since May 19, when the Sixty-sixth Congress convened. Several telegrams have been found rivaling the seven-footed, but none quite so long.

The total of back collections will amount to about $5000.

PAROLED PRISONERS FOR FARMS

Tennessee Governor Will Drain Prisons to Relieve Labor Shortage.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 27.—The shortage of farm labor will be relieved in part in Tennessee by the parole of prisoners from the penal institutions, Gov. Roberts announced today that so many appeals have reached him for assistance that he had decided to parole to farmers every inmate of the State prisons who could comply with the parole requirements.

Farmers attribute the shortage of labor to high wages being paid in cities, which have drained the rural districts of young men.

NEW GERMAN CABINET HEADED BY MUELLER; OLD LEADERS RETAINED

SLAYER OF HUSBAND GETS 3 MONTHS IN JAIL

Mrs. Smithson, Convicted of Manslaughter— Testifies Husband Beat Her.

Mrs. Lelia Smithson, 35 years old, of 4402A Manchester avenue, who shot and killed her husband, Harvey Smithson, a railroad engineer, in their home, June 21 last, was found guilty of fourth degree manslaughter last night by a jury in Circuit Judge Garesche's court, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and serve three months in jail.

The verdict was read at 10:30 p. m. after the jury had deliberated for four hours, and when the defendant heard it she threw up her hands and exclaimed in a voice audible throughout the courtroom: "There's no justice in the world any more."

Later she became hysterical and was quieted only after her attorney had assured her that he would file a motion for a new trial. She was released on a $1500 bond pending the court's action on the motion which was filed last night.

Mrs. Smithson, testifying in her own behalf yesterday afternoon, said that after their marriage in Exeter, Ill., in 1905, her husband frequently beat her. She declared that on the day preceding the shooting he demanded that she associate with other men and threatened to give her "the beating of her life" if she failed to comply.

"I remember," she said, "that he lay on a couch in the dining room the day I shot him. He fell asleep and I started to dress to go out, but in passing through the room I stumbled against the couch and awakened him. He swore at me. There was a revolver on the buffet. He started toward it, and I remember that I beat him to it. He commanded me to 'come to order' and I shot him. That's all I remember."

Neighbors corroborated her story that Smithson had beaten her. The prosecution asserted that she shot her husband while he was asleep.

The charge was first degree murder.

JAVELIN PIERCES MAN'S NECK, JUST MISSING JUGULAR VEIN

By the Associated Press.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 27.—Harry A. Stansbury, athletic director of the University of West Virginia, suffered a peculiar accident on the athletic field here late today when a javelin hurled by a member of the track squad struck him in the neck. The javelin's head pierced his neck on the right side and came out directly beneath his chin, having passed between the jugular vein and the carotid artery.

Stansbury walked almost a quarter of a mile to the nearest physician's office with the head of the javelin still in his neck. Upon its removal Stansbury was taken to his home, where it was said the wound would not prove serious.

The javelin had been hurled from a distance of 100 feet during a workout of the track squad.

Herr Plunck was a member of the old Reichstag. He is a Hamburg attorney and assisted Mathias Erzberger in drafting taxation measures when Erzberger was Minister of Finance. Herr Hermes was a departmental chief in the Prussian Ministry of Agriculture.

Herr Gessler, who succeeds Gustav Noske as Minister of Defense, is the chief burgomaster of Nuremberg. Up to this time has has not participated in politics.

The labor federation has expressed its approval of the Cabinet. The Democrats wanted Count von Bernstorff in the ministry, but were opposed by the majority Socialists. The latter proposed their leader, Otto Landsberg, for a Cabinet position, but his selection was bitterly opposed by the Democrats.

Message Sent by Airplane.

Wesel's communication with the outside world having been cut off, the garrison there has sent an airplane to Berlin in conveying information to the Government regarding the situation, says the Deutsche Zeitung. The newspaper says the position of the town is unchanged. The workmen are making no attempts at attack, but the Government troops have made successful sorties, inflicting heavy losses on the workers.

An extensive police raid was carried out in Berlin this morning and all foreigners who had not reported themselves were arrested.

Die Friheit says that among those taken by the police are numerous Russians who have been detained in Alexander Barracks. An order, it is understood, has been issued for the arrest of all Russians in Berlin.

Duisburg reports to the Vossische Zeitung say the Workers' Executive Committee has issued a manifesto demanding vigorous continuance of the struggles in the Ruhr district. All bank deposits and all unrationed foodstuffs are declared confiscated by the manifesto. The police and burgomaster will be dismissed and only workmen who favor the proletariat dictatorship will be allowed to participate in the elections.

LOWDEN DEMANDS ALL CANDIDATES REVEAL EXPENSES

Wires Senator Borah He Will Account for Campaign Funds if Other Republican Candidates Do So.

SUGGESTS INQUIRY IF THEY REFUSE

Offers to Have Manager in Washington April 5 to Make Statement on the Condition Specified.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 27.—Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois tonight sent a telegram to Senator Borah stating that he would accept the Senator's suggestion that he place in his hands a statement of campaign expenditures, on condition that other candidates would do likewise.

Should other candidates be unwilling to do this, Lowden suggested a prompt congressional investigation. The Governor's telegram was in reply to one he received today from Senator Borah suggesting that he would be glad to meet the Lowden campaign manager in Washington April 5 or 6 and would read into the Congressional Record any record of campaign expenses the manager cared to submit.

Gov. Lowden's telegram follows:

"Your telegram received. I stand by the proposition made in my telegram of yesterday. My manager can be in Washington April 5, the date suggested by you, if the managers of all other candidates will be there at the same time and be prepared to give full details of all contributions and expenditures. If the other candidates are unwilling to join I suggest prompt congressional investigation."

Senate Inquiry Likely if Statements Are Not Volunteered.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Developments today following the sensational debate in the Senate yesterday over the Borah bill to prevent the excessive use of money in campaigns for presidential nominations, justify the statement that if information as to expenditures now being made by certain candidates is not voluntarily submitted there will be a wide-open investigation of the entire subject by the power of Congress.

The most important event today was necessary agreement of Senator Dillingham, Republican of Vermont, to call a meeting early next week of the Committee on Privilegese and Elections, of which he is chairman, to consider the Borah and Pomerene bills, which are designed to prevent candidates for presidential nominations who are backed by fat bank rolls from securing an advantage over competition less fortunate in a financial way.

Senator Borah asked the Chairman of the Elections Committee to call such a meeting. Dillingham said he would consult his associates. Later he said he had decided to call the meeting. If he succeeds in rounding up a committee quorum, which is not at all certain, a number of Republican and Democratic Senators will indorse the demand made by Senator Borah in his speech yesterday that the managers of several presidential booms be invited to submit their list of contributions and disbursements in several states.

The offer of Gov. Lowden of Illinois to make public the financing of his presidential boom was hailed with joy today by Senator Borah, who sent to the Illinois executive a telegram saying:

"If you are so disposed and will send a party here who could give me details of contributions and expenditures I will take a stenographic report, place it on the record and make it public. As I am otherwise engaged next week I will fix the date for April 5 or 6."

Borah received a telegram from Edward L. Doheny, California oil man, denying that he contributed to any campaign fund. It characterized statements on that subject published in the New York World and quoted in the Senate yesterday by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, as "ungrounded, unwarranted and without basis."

The Senator sent this reply:

"Does your denial of contributions cover your business concerns or business interests with which you are associated? I am led to ask this for the reason that since receiving your wire I am again assured that the contribution was made (to the campaign of Gen. Wood), and that it was understood it came from you or your business concerns. Will be glad to make your statement public."

Herbert Hoover replied today to the inquiry as to campaign expenditures addressed to presidential possibilities by Labor, the Railroad Union's Weekly, by saying that "as I have no campaign I have no finance." He reiterated that he was not a candidate for the nomination to the presidency and was not seeking public office.

"A number of clubs . . . have sprung up doing me the honor of advocating my nomination," said Hoover in his letter. "I have no knowledge of their resources, which are probably very small. I have no doubt they would be only too glad to keep their books open for inspection at all times."

Hoover added that "as a citizen I advocate the accomplishment of full publicity and proper restrictions" on campaign expenditures.

Women Help to Rout Reed Forces at St. Joseph

put on delegations would insist upon serving as delegates.

They did insist, however, after the situation was explained to them by the anti-Reed leaders and the pro-Reed element found they were beaten when L. C. Gabbert, a candidate for the nomination for Congress, took the floor in opposition to the Credentials Committee report, and succeeded in having seated anti-Reed delegations which the bosses had directed should be thrown out.

Gavel Rule Adopted.

Eastin took a seat beside the chairman and directed him in all his rulings. Realizing that the convention had gotten away from them, Eastin directed the chairman to declare all motions by their forces carried.

Upon the selection of delegates, R. M. Dunn nominated the 22 men on the pro-Reed slate and Dr. Esther Leonard nominated the 22 women. Mrs. S. R. Selecman nominated the 22 women on the anti-Reed slate and Gabbert the 22 men.

The chairman overruled a motion by Gabbert that the anti-Reed slate be voted on, but put a motion to vote on the pro-Reed slate. Although the confusion was so great delegates shouting and running about the hall, that it was impossible to take a count, the chairman declared the pro-Reed slate carried.

"Declare the convention adjourned," Eastin said to the chairman.

"The convention is adjourned," the chairman shouted, starting to leave the rostrum.

Then a near-riot began. John A. Connett rushed down the aisle and climbed upon the table at which the chairman presided, shaking his fist, and calling upon all delegates to remain in the room. Gabbert joined him. The chairman and nearly all the pro-Reed delegates departed from the hall.

New Chairman Named.

Gabbert offered a motion that Culver be chosen, to act as chairman, the chairman having vacated the chair. The motion carried.

Culver, to make certain the record, showed that a majority of the delegates remained after the chairman had declared the convention adjourned, had the roll called. It showed 112 of the 160 delegates present.

Gabbert then offered his motion for the election of the anti-Reed delegation, which was carried, the chairman announcing it carried unanimously.

The Parkinson-Eastin convention had become so interested in electing a pro-Reed slate that it forgot all about its intention to indorse Mayer for Governor. Its Resolutions Committee had prepared a resolution for Mayer and a general indorsement of the Democratic party, but had decided not to indorse the Wilson administration or the League of Nations. It had been agreed that there should be neither indorsement nor repudiation of Reed.

When the anti-Reed men gained control they offered and passed the resolution indorsing Mayer and the national, State and city administrations, but in order that the convention's action might not work to Mayer's disadvantage with the Pendergast faction in Kansas City, it prevented the introduction of a resolution specifically indorsing the League of Nations and denouncing Reed.

Anti-Reed Men Confident.

As the matter stands the fight will be thrown into the Joplin convention through contesting delegations from Buchanan County. The anti-Reed men are confident the State convention will be anti-Reed and that their delegation will be seated.

The effect on the Mayer candidacy is to be decided from these facts:

Both the anti-Reed and the pro-Reed elements are friendly to Mayer, who, seemingly, did nothing to aid either party to the fight. The pro-Reed element elected delegates who would vote for Reed as a delegate to the National Convention, though to keep from antagonizing the anti-Reed men and women and to protect Mayer, they decided not to adopt pro-Reed resolutions.

The anti-Reed element elected anti-Reed delegates, but, to keep from antagonizing the Pendergast faction and such other friends as Reed may have, did not adopt an anti-Reed resolution.

It would seem to an observer of politics that Mayer proposed that nothing should be done by either element which would injure his chances as a candidate.

Dent County Delegates Are Instructed Against Reed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SALEM, Mo., March 27.—The Democratic convention of Dent County met here today and unanimously instructed its delegates to the State convention to vote against Senator James A. Reed as a delegate to the National convention and unanimously indorsed the administration of Woodrow Wilson and the league of nations. The convention also indorsed the administration of Gov. Gardner. Frank H. Farris of Phelps County was indorsed for Governor.

The following delegates and alternates were elected to the State convention at Joplin, Mo.: Sam Bradford, John M. Stephens, L. L. McGee, Mrs. W. R. Peck, Mrs. C. H. McIntosh, T. J. Peck; alternates—E. W. Bennett, J. W. Duckworth, G. D. Addison, Mrs. William Flett, Mrs. A. T. McMurtrey, Miss Connie Holman. The convention was addressed by Judge L. B. Woodside of this city.

BREWSTER AND LEWIS INDICTED IN COAL CONSPIRACY

Field, President of the Pittsburg Coal Company, Pittsburg.

A number of men were indicted who could not be identified.

The charges include 10 overt acts, among them a charge that from January to August, 1919, Indiana operators refused to sell coal and held coal for prices above that quoted on the market. The last seven of the 10 overt acts specifically charge Indiana operators with closing down their mines, with inserting clauses in contracts allowing excessive charges for coal and with employing what is known as the "check off" system in mines. This system is one in which the operators deduct from the miners' pay the amount of dues owed the local unions and in turn pay the money to the union.

Thomas T. Brewster, 10 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves, vice president and general manager of the Mount Olive and Staunton Coal Co., could not be reached for a statement last night. At his home it was stated that he intended leaving the city last night.

Lewis Predicts Wage Agreement without Suspension of Work.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Satisfactory agreement will be "speedily reached" in making new wage contracts for the mine workers in both the anthracite and bituminous industries, John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, predicted tonight. He expressed confidence that there would be no suspension of work in either of the coal regions, adding that "common sense will rule" in these negotiations. Although the bituminous agreement may be disposed of next week, Lewis said that the hard coal workers' negotiations probably would extend "well into April."

Lewis commended the action of the anthracite miners in deciding to remain at work pending the negotiations of a new contract.

Arrangements for the conference of bituminous mine workers and operators' scale committees to be held here Monday were made today by Lewis.

President Lewis of the Mine Workers declared in a statement tonight that "there are no proper grounds" for the indictment of himself or his associates. He added that he does not "fear investigation by any court of competent jurisdiction."

"The miners' officers have always conformed to the law," he declared, "and have adhered to all its precepts so far as official acts are concerned. I am confident that when trial of the cases is held it will result in showing their innocence."

Fifteen carloads of sand will be used for the "beach." A number of pretty girls in bathing costumes will decorate the beach.

A varied assortment of articles have been prepared by the women interested in the spectacle to be sold at the shops, which will extend along the board walk. The proceeds from these sales will go to the endowment fund. The articles range from popcorn to horse blankets.

FLARES AT ARTILLERY EXHIBIT ATTRACT FORMER SOLDIERS

Red, Green and White Lights Are of Type Used to Guide Oncoming Guns in Battle.

Hundreds of former soldiers of the A. E. F., passers-by and others were attracted to the exhibition of field artillery and equipment at Twelfth and Market streets last evening by the glow of red, green and white flares, which to the ex-service men was reminiscent of the Vosges and the Marne. The lights each burn about a minute and are impervious to the weather. They were started at 7:45 p. m. and burned for a half hour.

The flares are known as position lights of the type used by advance artillery parties as guides to the oncoming guns in battle. They emit sulphurous fumes and give a bright glow, which last night was visible for several blocks on Twelfth street.

The repair truck with the unit was open last night, its electric generator running and supplying lamps which aided the men of the unit in demonstrating the equipment. The truck, which cost $20,000, has a lathe, a drill press, a special emery wheel, a pump and other apparatus.

Many housewives were attracted to the rolling field kitchen, and prospective automobile tourists were envious of the 12-passenger reconaissance car.

The unit, which is traveling in the interest of recruiting for the Third Field Artillery Brigade of Camp Pike, Ark., will be here until Wednesday.

SINN FEIN MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT ARRESTED

Prisoners From All Parts of Ireland Taken to Dublin Under Heavy Guard.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, March 27.—Prisoners from various parts of Ireland have been arriving all day at Mount Joy jail. Heavy military guards accompanied them.

Philip Shanahan, Sinn Fein member of Parliament and prominent in local Sinn Fein activities, was arrested tonight.

Laurence Ginnell, Nationalist member of the House of Commons for the North Division of Westmeath, was arrested today by the military and police. Ginnell was arrested in 1907 for contempt of court and on conviction was sentenced to six months' imprisonment. He served the term at the jail in Dublin.

A formal verdict that death was due to bullet wounds caused by some persons unknown was returned by the Cononer's jury which investigated the murder of Magistrate Bell yesterday. The members of the jury expressed abhorrence at the crime and tendered their sympathy to the widow.

Attorney Ford, representing the relatives of the magistrate, characterized the crime as "cold, heartless and savage." He declared Magistrate Bell was destroyed "with less regard than if he had been a dog," and said the murder was obviously the result of a conspiracy.

Situation in Ireland Described as Being Near to Anarchy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, March 27.—"The gravest danger in the whole Irish history," is the description applied to the present situation by the Dublin correspondent of the London Times in reiterating that Ireland is fast drifting into anarchy.

"The Irish public views current events with profound dismay and sickness of heart," he says, "and is amazed and frightened at the Government's failure to recognize the facts of the situation."

Public officials, it is said, live under the shadow of murder; some are unable to leave their homes day or night. Murder societies are completely organized and are aware of the movements of all officials, who on their part are equally cognizant of their dangers. Knowing that the sympathies of the telegraphers in the state service are largely with the conspirators, they dare not use the wires to transmit official information.

The news columns of the London morning papers are dominated by the Irish trouble; they give the greatest prominence to accounts of the murder of Magistrate Bell. While some treat the case of William O'Brien, a Dublin Alderman, who is on hunger strike, as equally serious.

The Daily News denounces the treatment of O'Brien as "criminal lunacy," and, referring to Andrew Bonar-Law's statement in the House of Commons, imputes to him the same spirit as actuated Magistrate Bell's murderers.

The Times also condemns the Government's attitude toward O'Brien as calculated to inflame that body of Irish opinion, whereon, it says, the salvation of Ireland must ultimately depend. The paper declares itself forced to believe that the situation has passed entirely beyond the Government's control, and thinks that Irishmen have begun to accept with sullen acquiescence open war upon the Government.

The Daily Chronicle and Morning Post, on the other hand, defend the treatment of O'Brien. They contend that the Sinn Fein has shown itself to be essentially a murder society, and as O'Brien is a Sinn Feiner, they argue that he is involved in the murder conspiracy, which neither he nor the other leaders have ever denounced.

The Post again sharply scores the failure of the administration to govern Ireland. It advocates stringent methods and maintains that the position has now become such that Great Britain must either grant Ireland complete independence or reconquer her.

All Police Accounted for on Night of Lord Mayor's Murder at Cork.

By the Associated Press.

CORK, Ireland, March 27.—A full and complete investigation of the whereabouts of the police on the night of the murder of Lord Mayor MacCurtain has proved that none was off his beat or at his home at the critical hour, the Government counsel, Mr. Wyllie, told the Coroner's jury which is conducting an inquiry into the murder today.

Mr. Wyllie said that a system of books was kept which showed it to be impossible that the crime was committed by a policeman. Numbers of police rifles had been taken in raids, so that it was possible they were used by others than the police, Wyllie said.

POLES PROPOSE DATE FOR MEETING RUSSIANS

Suggest That Peace Negotiations With Soviet Envoys Begin April 10 at Borysen.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, March 27.—Poland has sent a wireless message to the Russian Bolshevik Government proposing April 10 as the date for meeting Soviet delegates with a view of negotiating for peace. Borysen (Brozozow, 50 miles southeast of Lemberg), is suggested as the place for the meeting.

The Poles say that if the Bolsheviki agree to this date and place the Polish army will cease fighting for the time being.

GERMANY FOUND TO HAVE 12,000 3-INCH GUNS AND 6000 PLANES

Treaty Allows Them Only 204 Guns and No Aircraft—Deliveries of Coal Fall Short.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 27.—Three thousand five hundred three-inch field guns has been found in the vicinity of Berlin alone, and altogether 12,000 of these guns have thus far been discovered throughout Germany, as well as 6000 airplanes intact.

According to the terms of the treaty of Versailles, the German army should now have only 204 three-inch guns and no airplanes whatsoever.

Particular significance is attached by the French to the discovery of the guns in view of the fact that the Germans, in a communication to the allied commission to which their excess war material should have been delivered March 10, said that it made no difference whether this material be delivered of destroyed, and that they preferred to destroy it.

The allied commission had no knowledge of any such destruction.

Delivery of submarines has only been partly executed. The point on which the French are declared to be most sensitive at this time is the nondelivery of coal as provided in the peace treaty. The treaty fixed the maximum at 20,000,000 tons a year, but the Reparations Commission fixed the annual amount at 10,400,000 tons on the basis of Germany's production in the month of December. Deliveries, however, fell from 300,000 to 150,000 tons monthly.

ENGINEERS JOIN OTHER RAIL BROTHERHOODS IN WAGE DEMAND

Request That Same Increase Be Applied to Them as to Other Three Transportation Bodies.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., March 27.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers presented a wage demand to the Railway Wage Conference Committee in Washington last week, Warren S. Stone, grand chief, announced today on his return from Washington. The engineers' brotherhood hitherto has refrained from any wage movement, and Stone's presentation of the demand now completes the list of railway organizations, including all four transportation brotherhoods, asking for higher wages.

The engineers did not ask any specific wage increase, but requested that the same advance be applied to the pay of engineers as to other transportation employes.

Troops in Wesel Inflict Heavy Losses on Workmen

an intermittent shelling of the workmen.

Government troops made a sortie southeast of this city yesterday, drove besieging workers' forces from their posts, shelled their retreating columns and raised the siege of Wesel on both the east and southeast. Artillery forces dropped two shells into the city and then withdrew.

The workingmen's forces attacking Wesel regained later ground which they lost Thursday. As a result of an hour's hard shelling and machine-gun work, they recaptured Lippe Castle, advancing more than a mile from the south. Observers here, however, generally credit the Governmnt forces with sufficient strength to hold Wesel.

While a counter attack against the beleaguering forces was going on, reinforcements arrived here.

Allied Commissioners conferred with Gen. Kabitsch, and soon after the Belgian military authorities at Biderich began issuing passes for civilians to return to the city.

German Troops Still Excluded From Ruhr District by Allies.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 27.—The Allies have not yet given the Germans permission to send troops into the Ruhr District. The French continue to insist that military occupation of the neutral zone by Germans would further endanger execution of the Peace Treaty, declaring that there would be no way of getting them out again except by force.

Siege of Wesel Said to Resemble Comic Opera War.

By the Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, Friday, March 26.—The workmen's army which continues to besiege Wesel is undisciplined and leaderless and men are bleeding to death in the trenches for lack of doctors and nurses, according to the picture which the correspondent of the Handelsblad paints of conditions on the German rebel front, which he visited. The whole thing is suggestive of a comic opera war, he adds.

The correspondent, who is M. Nypels, the writer, who recently visited Russia for this newspaper, "induced the general staff of the workmen's army to permit him to spend two days with the left wing of the army.

The roads in back of the lines are packed with thousands of refugees, the correspondent telegraphs and scores of "nurses" dressed in the uniform of the Red Cross crowd motor lorries or ride horses which are badly needed at the front. The gunners have to pull their own ordnance.

"At the front before Wesel," says the correspondent, "the reds fired their big guns without preliminary observation and patrols went out without instructions. The troops were sent into the firing line without leaders, while other soldiers returned without orders, and still others died for lack of medical attention.

"While the food is plentiful at the front, the field kitchens are away to the rear. The lack of communication between the various sections of the army resulted in troops firing on each other."

There is the utmost confusion at the front, and a total lack of discipline. One angry, but sincere spartacist commander told the correspondent that "it was no longer a red front, but a Red Cross front, there being four women to every man."

Sparse-Haired Little Man With Glowing Eyes Boss of Falkenstein.

By the Associated Press.

FALKENSTEIN, Saxony, Thursday, March 25.—Workers have taken over control in towns and cities of Lower Saxony, but there is an impression their ascendency will be shortlived, as they are not sufficiently organized in a military way to resist pressure successfully. It is noticeable that the nearer one comes to districts where Government troops are in power, the weaker is the workers' hold on affairs.

In this little town, tucked away in a pretty valley, 15 miles from Plausen, Max Hoelz, whose regular work is lecturer in a moving picture theater, is directing affairs. Widespread reports he had established a Soviet republic here made him famous throughout Germany a few days ago.

One hundred workers under the direction of Hoelz entered Plauen in motor lorries Sunday night and kidnaped City Attorney Hubert and held him as a hostage until he had given up data he had gathered for the prosecution of trade unionists and communists accused of political agitation. Herr Hubert's wife came to Falkenstein and secured the release of her husband after he had been a prisoner for five hours.

Hoelz has established headquarters in the castle of Freiherr Falkenstein, who has fled from this region. The red flag waves from the tower. It was in a room of this castle that the Associated Press correspondent interviewed Hoelz tonight. He is a small, young appearing man, with a thin face and sparse hair, but with glowing eyes. He talked freely, saying in part:

"The time is not ripe for the establishment of a Soviet form of Government. The agriculturalists would not approve of it and we would be quickly starved out. We recognize the absolute helplessness of workers in case of armed conflict and we will not attempt physically to resist military occupation of Falkenstein. If the troops appear we will again call a general strike."

U. S. Not Opposed to Sending of German Troops to Ruhr Valley.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The American Government, it was learned today, has informed the allied Powers that it will not oppose the sending of additional German troops into the Ruhr Valley if necessary to restore order there provided they remain only until normal conditions have been restored and there will be no further occupation of German territory by the allied forces.

COLLECTION OF SPECIAL SEWER TAX BY COUNTY PROHIBITED

Judge McElhinney Upholds Objections of Residents in Northern Part of County.

St. Louis County is prohibited, under a judgment granted by Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton Friday from collecting a special tax for the construction of a new sewer system in the northern half of the county. Henry A. Cornet of Berry road, near Algonquin lane, Glendale, brought suit, with others, to test the legality of the law under which the tax was proposed.

The special tax bill was passed at the last session of the Legislature, after a dispute between opposing factions. Soon after its passage a restraining suit was brought by Cornet and other residents of the territory affected. Two weeks ago a demurrer was filed by the defendants. In a counter action the plaintiffs contended that the law was invalid, in that the property would be taxed by the square foot instead of by acreage. The objection was sustained by the Circuit Court.

While the fight on the bill was pending in court, county authorities, acting in accord with the action of the House of Representatives, condemned property valued at $35,000 in the section where the proposed sewer was to be built. In addition more than $17,000 was collected for a new project.

The estimated cost of the proposed sewer system is nearly $500,000. It would afford foul water sewerage to Glendale, North Webster Groves and Shrewsbury, emptying its contents into the River des Peres at the St. Louis city limits.

Judge McElhinney said his decision did not necessarily affect the entire district as he had ruled only in the action brought by Cornet. He said there still existed the right of the county authorities to appeal in an effort to test the constitutionality of the law.

LITTLE OFFERS $2000 FOR ARREST OF SON'S ABDUCTOR

Lexington Capitalist Also Says He Will Pay $5000 for Proof That He Owes Anyone.

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 27.—A reward of $2000 for the arrest and conviction of the kidnaper of his 12-year-old son, Paul, was offered tonight by E. R. Little, Lexington capitalist.

"I will also give $5000 to any man who will prove that I owe him any money or have done anything to him that would warrant his revenge," the statement of Little continues. "If there is anyone who believes that I have wronged him, I want him to say so, and I will guarantee his release in case he is arrested as the kidnaper of my son. I do not know of anything that I have ever done which could possibly make an enemy such as the man who sent the note demanding $25,000 ransom made himself out to be."

"I am not afraid of any bodily harm," Little declared. "My conscience is clear. I am convinced that the kidnaping was the work of professionals."

The note, made public yesterday, declared that Little had wronged the unknown abductor and that the kidnaper was taking this means of "getting even."

Detectives and county officials who are working on the case have not yet found a trace of the kidnaper.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 27.—George Martin, 39 years old, was arrested here today and held for investigation, because, the police announce, he bore some resemblance to the person who kidnaped Paul Little in Lexington.

SURGEON'S CLAMP IN BODY

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 27.—An autopsy performed on the body of Mrs. Jennie Cholakian, who died at a hospital here under intense pain for which physicians could not account, disclosed the presence of a surgeon's clamp in the body, District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts announced today.

The clamp, five inches long, apparently was forgotten after an operation performed some time ago and was sewed into the body. The District Attorney said there was no evidence as to where or by whom the operation was performed.

DRY ACT ARGUMENT TO BE HEARD TOMORROW

New Attack Filed in Supreme Court Will Be Consolidated With Original Suit and Appeals.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Constitutionality of the prohibition amendment and parts of the enforcement act were attacked in a brief filed in the Supreme Court today by counsel for Christian Feigenspan, a brewer of Newark, N. J., who is appealing from Federal Court decrees dismissing proceedings to enjoin prohibition officials from preventing him from manufacturing beer alleged to be non-intoxicating, but containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol.

Arguments in this case as well as in the original suit brought by New Jersey and appeals from Wisconsin involving these questions, will be heard by the Court Monday.

The brief, which was prepared by Elihu Root and William D. Guthrie, contends the amendment is invalid because in reality it is legislation outside the scope of limitations imposed by Article Five of the Constitution; that it impairs the States' police or governmental powers, and that it has not been legally ratified by three-fourths of the states because the Constitution of several states require submission of the amendment to the electorate.

"It is submitted," the brief said, "that the destruction of the liquor traffic, even if desirable in some aspects, at the expense of ultimately subverting our Federal system and local self-Government, and turning our Constitution into a mere code of statutory enactments, or erecting a constitutional precedent which will afford legal justification for spoliation and the destruction of republican Government and of leaving every natural right, whether of life, liberty or property, wholly at the mercy of future constitutional amendment—may be too high a price to pay even the greatest reform, and such a misfortune should not be visited upon the people of the United States because a comparatively small minority of them are incapable of self-restraint in the use of liquor.

It may be the duty of Government to protect the comparatively few weak and degenerate among the people, but it cannot be its duty to remedy an even admitted evil if such remedy necessarily involves laying the foundation for the possibly ultimate overthrow of our Federal system of Government."

Replying to contentions in the Feigenspan brief, the Government defends both the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act.

U. S. APOLOGIZED FOR EXAMINATION OF MRS. BUSCH

Treatment Accorded Widow of Brewer at Key West in June, 1918, Termed Outrage by Gregory.

ATTORNEY HAWES ISSUES STATEMENT

Says He Does So at This Time to Answer "German Brewers" Allusion of the Rev. W. C. Shupp.

Maj. Harry B. Hawes, personal attorney of August A. Busch, yesterday made public a letter from former Attorney-General W. G[illegible]ory written before Gregory retired from that position, stating that the searching physical examination of Mrs. Adolphus Busch, by representatives of the United States Intelligence bureaus at Key West on her arrival in this country from Germany in June, 1918, which was reported in the newspapers at the time, was unauthorized, unwarranted and "nothing less than outrageous," and that those responsible had been disciplined.

The letter was embodied in a statement issued by Hawes and which he was moved to make by a newspaper interview with the Rev. W. C. Shupp, manager of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League, last Monday, in which the Rev. Mr. Shupp, discussing the possibility that Hawes would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, mentioned Mrs. Busch and her personal affairs, and asked whether the people of Missouri wished to turn their affairs over to "German brewers."

"The Rev. W. C. Shupp, Missouri Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, has entered into the private domicile of one of our citizens," Hawes said in his statement, "and, for political purposes, has sought to inject an issue which—both for the honor of our country and the humiliation of a home—had best been kept from public attention.

Object of Statement.

"As this indignity will undoubtedly be repeated again and again, I have secured the reluctant permission of Mr. August A. Busch to give the full facts to the public at this time, hoping that their publication may still for the future the voice of intolerance."

Hawes then reviewed Mrs. Busch's sojourn in Germany and her trip to the United States, most of which have been published in the Post-Dispatch and other newspapers. He said that she was in Germany visiting two daughters when the war began in 1914, and without thought that the United States would become involved in the war, she remained there. In the fall of 1917, after this country was in the war, he undertook the trip to Europe at the request of August A. Busch to bring her home.

Hawes said that in making the trip he had the encouragement of the State Department of the United States, and of A. Mitchell Palmer, now Attorney General, but then Alien Property Custodian, and that he was continually aided by the English and French governments.

He said that there were two erroneous impressions regarding Mrs. Busch's return, one was that her American citizenship was in question and the other was that it was necessary for her to return to the United States to obtain release of her property by the Alien Property Custodian. Her citizenship was not in question, Hawes said, and it was only necessary for her to go to Switzerland, a neutral country, to obtain release of her property.

Hardships of Trip.

Hawes recounted the hardships of the trip from Switzerland through France, Spain and Cuba to the United States. Mrs. Busch, who was 74 years old at that time, was ill nearly all the time.

"Arriving at Havana," the statement continues, "Commandder Cusack of the Navy and Col. Van Natta of the army again examined our baggage, persons and letters, and we were accorded courteous treatment by the United States Minister Gonzales and his assistants.

"From the day our party left Switzerland, the English, French, Spanish, Cuban and American officials, sympathizing with Mrs. Busch and acting in comity without Government, gave us the most courteous and kindly consideration.

"Mrs. Busch had been continuously in charge of a doctor until her arrival in Havana.

"Arriving in Key West at about sundown, after a journey of nearly 6000 miles, Mrs. Busch, her traveling companion and maid were pleaced under arrest, surrounded by marines and held in custody for over 48 hours.

"The officers who did this were not regular navy or army officers. They were new men, probably unfamiliar with the duties of their offices, and possibly affected by some of the articles of fanaticism which had appeared in the press.

Proceedings Described.

"Then there followed a proceeding which must bring a blush of shame to the face of every loyal American.

"Having been informed of the examination made on the Swiss, the French and the Spanish frontiers; having been informed of the examination by American officials at Havana, and requesting that a cable be sent inquiring as to the result of this examination; despite my protests and during my absence an examination of the three women of the party was made, unexcelled in brutality, an examination revolting to the decent instincts of every man and woman, an examination which is not perpetrated upon the poorest prostitute or the commonest female pickpocket, and an examination by a man doctor of two American women and one woman the citizen of a neutral country, which I cannot describe in details without violating the laws of modesty and decency.

"The result of this examination was the disclosure that Mrs. Busch had in her possession the following incriminating documents, and they were all that she had in her possession:

"First, a kodak picture of her husband's grave in Bellefontaine Cemetery, which had been erected during her absence.

"Second, a newspaper clipping containing a patriotic poem.

"Third, a receipt from Mrs. Billy Roosevelt, daughter of the American Ambassador at Madrid, for $1000 given by Mrs. Busch to the American Red Cross in Spain, and "Fourth, a prescription and directions by her Spanish doctor.

"This was the net result of the indignities perpetrated.

Wired to State Department.

"Finally I reached the department at Washington by wire, and the three women were released.

"Taking the first train to Washington on my return, I related the circumstances of this affair to Secretary Lansing, Secretary Daniels, Secretary Wilson and United States Attorney-General Gregory. They were all immeasurably shocked and horrified. The present Attorney-General, A. Mitchell Palmer, then Alien Property Custodian, joined with them in expressions of indignation.

"It was at once ascertained that the investigation at Key West had not been ordered by any of these departments of our Government, and so overwhelming was their feeling of outrage that the heads of these four great departments appointed a special commission to examine into and report upon this occurrence.

Gregory's Letter to Hawes.

"The following letter, signed by Attorney-General Gregory, gives the result of the investigation of this commission:

"'Office of the Attorney-General, Washington, D. C.

"'Nov. 16, 1918. Mr. Harry B. Hawes, attorney, St. Louis, Mo., Dear Sir:—

"'On July 2d you wrote me a letter setting out the facts in regard to the physical examination at Key West of Mrs. Adolphus Busch, her traveling companion, Mrs. Bauman, and a Swiss maid.

"'I have had the details of this matter gone into with the utmost care. Among other things, a commission with representatives from three departments of the Government has visited Key West, taken the testimony of a number of witnesses, and made me a very lengthy and exhaustive report.

"'The manner of the examination of these women was nothing less than outrageous; it was never authorized by any really important government official, and if anything of the kind has heretofore occurred it was without my knowledge or consent, and, I am sure, without that of any other official in Washington. Two subordinate government officials have been disciplined and orders have been given which I think will make it impossible for a similar occurrence to take place in the future.

"'I am under obligations to you for calling the facts to my attention. Respectfully yours,

T. W. GREGORY.
Attorney General.'

"These facts have not been heretofore disclosed in public print and would not have been presented now but for the wholly inexcusable dragging of Mrs. Busch's name into a political controversy.

"I hope that it will now be unnecessary for the Rev. Dr. Shupp and his associates to again invade the home; especially since a commission of our own Government has denounced the outrage at Key West and apologized for the conduct of subordinate officials who perpetrated it."

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL GRADUATES FORM TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

Last night, at a banquet at the American Annex, 33 students who have been studying the teacher-training curriculum for machinists in the local night schools, under the supervision of the Extension Division of Missouri University, formed themselves into a Vocational Teachers' Association. Twenty-five of the men were graduated Friday night at Central High School where a class has been held for the past 20 weeks, and were presented with diplomas by Dean J. H. Coursault, of the School of Education at the University of Missouri.

This extension work has been done in St. Louis since September, 1918, directly as a result of assistance from the Federal Government.

The only work in this line done so far by Missuri University outside of Columbia has been in St. Louis, where it has been conducting night classes to train men in teaching the machinist, the electrical, and the printer's trades. Each student is required to have a grammar-school education, and to have been employed at and to have a practical knowledge of, the trade which he wishes to learn to teach. He is then instructed in both the theoretical and practical side of teaching, and is required as a part of his training to teach one night a week in the local night schools. When graduated, he is offered a position either in some public school or university, or as civilian instructor of vocational work in the army. This latter position carries with it a minimum salary of $1800, exclusive of board, lodging, and clothes. In the army the $1800 is clear, and under certain cases of ability may be increased to $2400 a year. Even in the public schools, vocational teachers are paid more than the average instructor.

BODY IN RIVER AT PEORIA MAY BE THAT OF JEANNE DE KAY

POLICE FIND LOOT WORTH $2000 IN SHOE SHOPS RAID

Part of Goods Recovered From Isaac Novack and Simon Silverberg Stolen Last Sunday at Desloge, Mo.

With the arrest of Isaac Novack, 31 years old, proprietor of a shoe repair shop at 1239 Hodiamont avenue, and Simon Silverberg, 34, who has a similar shop at 1160 Hodiamont avenue, detectives of the Page boulevard station yesterday seized silks, shoes, ginghams, shirts, lingerie, etc., valued by them at about $2,000. Half of the recovered goods were later identified as part of $5000 worth of merchandise stolen by "truck burglars" in their second visit of the month to the dry goods store of J. L. Goff, at DesLoge, Mo., Sunday, March 21.

The goods had been shipped from St. Louis to Goff March 20. The following Monday, when he opened the store, he found the goods had been stolen in their original cases, which he had not had time to open.

Goff came to St. Louis yesterday and selected bolts of velvet, silks, shoes and other articles which was part of the loot stolen. He said it was the second time burglars had robbed him in a month.

Tags of Various Kinds in Goods.

Other bolts of goods not as yet identified had tags with various firm names attached. On some of the silks and ginghams the name of the Famous & Barr Dry Goods Co. was printed on tags. A hundred pairs of shoes are being held also, awaiting identification.

Seventy pairs of shoes, the velvet, gingham and other articles were found at Silverberg's home, 2833 Gamble street. Forty-seven pairs of shoes, silk lingerie and bolts of dress goods were found at Novack's shop.

In a confession to the detectives Novack is said to have stated that he bought the goods, knowing they were stolen. He said that last Monday, the day after the DesLoge robbery, Silverburg drove to his store in an automobile with two other men. He offered to sell petticoats, silk shirts, shoes and other merchandise cheap, he said. Silverberg, he said, unloaded the goods in gunny sacks.

Silverberg, he said, sold him the shoes for $1.75 a pair, adding that the next day the two men came back to the store and brought more goods. He gave them $185, he said, and promised to pay the balance, $815, later.

Shipped Lot of Silk Shirts.

Thursday, Novack said, the two men came to the shop and packed a lot of silk shirts they had left there in a trunk and shipped the trunk away by express. He said he did not know the destination of the trunk.

A hundred or more silk shirts were among the loot taken from the Goff store.

Silverberg denied to the detectives that he had ever visited the Novack shop, and also denied the sale of the goods mentioned.

The detectives, under Sergt. Roach, were led to the Novack shop first when they heard of the gunny sacks being carried into the shop in automobile loads, and had learned of the trunk being hauled away. They searched the Novack shop first, and when he told of buying the articles from Silverberg the latter's shop and home were searched.

Novack and Silverberg gave bond.

3000 SPECTATORS SEE 2000 ATHLETES AT COLISEUM FETE

Municipal Carnival on Order of Circus With Many Different Feats Going On at Same Time.

A show with 2000 performers was seen by those who attended the third annual track and field carnival of the Municipal Athletic Association, at the Coliseum last night—and 3000 attended. Thus there were two performers for every three spectators.

The program was as varied as could well be imagined, ranging from classic dancing to wrestling, and taking in such events as relay races, exhibition gymnastics, drills, hurdle races and volley ball, as well as many others.

Any spectator could get his money's worth. If he didn't like what was going on at one end of the arena, he could look at the other end, where entertainment of an entirely different nature was being offered. Perhaps all the people weren't entertained all the time, but some were pleased all of the time, and all were amused some of the time. There was something doing every minute.

Many Feats Mingled.

Feats of strength, feats of endurance, displays of discipline, tests of courage and exhibitions of the beautiful were mingled in one grand pudding, which, for all the spectator could see, was concocted without any recipe except that of somehow getting all the ingredients in, but which turned out so well as to prove that there was method behind the apparent confusion.

Among the unusual things to crop up was a relay race in which Loren Murchison, a sprinter who holds several championships, was a teammate of his father, Rod Murchison, who is 43 years old. As the father staggered in at the finish to give his son the touch of the hand to start him on the last lap, he gasped some sort of an apology for having lost several yards on the lap.

"That's all right, dad," called Loren, as he leaped forward in a burst of speed that brought even that diverted audience to its feet. His legs looked like the twinkling spokes of a buggy wheel, as he swept around the track. His team lost the race, but Murchison actually gained 50 yards on the man ahead of him, in a lap of 146 yards. It was perhaps the most thrilling moment of the evening.

Boy Without Legs Performs.

A squad of boys from Yeatman High School gave an interesting exhibition of gymnastics on parallel bars, and then stepped back and stood at attention while a schoolmate with both legs off at the knee, hobbled out on his stumps, was lifted to the bars, and went through the exercise. The entire hall fell silent. There was no cheering until he concluded. He is Michael Scott, 14 years old, who lost his legs a few years ago under a street car.

This was one of the few times when one event held the whole floor. Another was when the 50-yard invitation dash was announced. When the listeners heard the names of Mahl and Murchison (Loren again) they gave attention. The other performers wouldn't miss this, either. The stillness was rent by the pistol shot, five figures flashed down the length of the floor. The short form and blond head of Murchison drew just a pace ahead, and then the contestants plunged across the tape. A moment later it was announced that Murchison had tied the world's record, by making the distance in Scene Brilliant One.

The entire scene was brilliant with color. The striking uniforms of Moolah Temple and Alhambra Grotto drill squads, with their waistcoats of red and blouse breeches of white and yellow silk, were sprinkled through the balconies and boxes until their turn, which was the last number on the program.

One hundred girls of McKinley high school, clad as wood nymphs in blue, lavender, orange, yellow and old rose, made a pretty picture with their graceful evolutions, in which the members of groups were bound together with leafy vines.

Soldiers from Jefferson Barracks furnished a unique event. It was a relay race with the runners in full marching equipment, including 35-pound packs and rifles, which weigh seven pounds each. One doughboy collapsed at the end of a lap.

Relatives of the performers were a goodly percentage of the audience. "Oh, there's Walter! Oh, Walter, Walter, here we are," is heard from the balcony, but Walter, in his "gym" suit, wears the air of one weighted by matters of great concern, and cannot be disturbed by such a trifle as the family.

Girls Also Take Part.

"That's my Lillie, the end one in the second row," comes from another section, when the girl performers appear, and the neighbor, who has known Lillie since she was born, replies: "Oh, isn't she just too sweet for anything!"

In one corner the high jumpers are at it. A chesty youth rushes at the bar, knocks it down with his knee, and falls to the mat, where he registers bitter disappointment. A sad, lanky youth, with a large Adam's apple, lopes lazily up, contracts himself like an overweighted bedspring, and then uncoils with the startling motion of a jack-in-the-box, clearing the bar by six inches.

And so it went, until 11:15, when the entertainers and the entertained agreed that all had had enough, and so went home.

DWIGHT F. DAVIS OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN FOR U. S. SENATE; GIVES VIEWS ON PROHIBITION

Declares He Is Willing to Be Guided by Result of Referendum in This State on Ratification of 18th Amendment.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., March 27.—Lieutenant-Colonel Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis, a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, at the formal opening of his campaign in Cape Girardeau tonight announced on the subject of prohibition that he was opposed to "the principles underlying the Eighteenth Amendment," and pledged himself, if elected, to vote in the Senate in accordance with the will of the people as it may be expressed in November in the proposed referendum on ratification by Missouri of the prohibition amendment.

Statement on Prohibition.

His full statement on prohibition was:

They say that a man who goes around hunting for trouble usually finds it. There is trouble enough in a candidate's life without looking for more, goodness knows. But I do not believe in pussyfooting or sidestepping or dodging whenever a controversial issue comes in sight.

From the political standpoint I suppose it would be wise to dodge the ever-present prohibition question, but I do not care to play the game that way. I believe that a man should express his views as a candidate and should stand by them if elected. Just as I believe in free speech, so I believe in individual liberty.

Although I am opposed as the most ardent prohibitionist to the low saloons and dives as they have been conducted in the past, I am also opposed to the principles underlying the eighteenth amendment. If I am elected, I shall, of course, regard the will of the people as expressed in the referendum in November as binding on me. The Anti-Saloon League has filed suit to prevent this referendum, but I believe the people of this State have the right to be heard on this matter and have pledged myself, if elected, to carry out their mandate, as so expressed. To do otherwise would be to ignore the spirit of our democratic institutions and to set my personal opinion above that of the people I would represent. Let me read what I said in my platform on that subject:

"Although I recognize the evils of intemperance and of the saloon as it has been conducted in the past, I am not in favor of the eighteenth amendment, and will vote against it in the referendum in this State in November next.

"I also believe in the American principle that a representative is elected to carry out the wishes of his constituents on matters on which they have had an opportunity to express themselves, and if elected my vote would be governed in matters affecting prohibition by the will of the people of this State as expressed in the referendum in November. If the eighteenth amendment is upheld by the courts, it must of course be enforced, as individual opinion must yield to the majesty of the law or anarchy will result."

Davis did not discuss the Volstead law or the course he would pursue in the Senate on measures seeking to increase the legal alcoholic content of beverages above one-half of 1 per cent.

Other Issues Emphasized.

In addition to his remarks on prohibition, Davis outlined as the leading issues on which he was seeking the Senatorship:

Stamping out Bolshevism, but protection of free speech, free assembly and the right of criticism of public officials.

Creation of a National Budget system to do away with extravagance in governmental expenditures.

Repeal of the excess profits tax.

The tariff is not a pressing issue today, but it will become one. A tariff is needed.

Charges of Democratic extravagance in the conduct of the war, and in the conduct of the Government since the war.

Former service men should be treated generously. Indirectly approved a bonus for ex-soldiers. Urged they should be given preference in Civil Service, other things being equal.

A small army, a navy adequate for defense and for the protection of the merchant marine, and a reasonable measure of preparedness at all times.

Opposition to the league of nations as brought back by President Wilson.

Women should have equal rights with men.

Control of child labor and compulsory education.

Fair and impartial instrumentalities to protect the public in controversies between labor and capital.

Improved living and recreational facilities for farmers, improved marketing conditions, more efficient crop reports, better educational facilities in rural districts, good roads and liberal interpretation of the federal farm loan act.

Discussing Bolshevism, Davis declared that it must be stamped out, and that "force must be met with force, if necessary." He said that unlawful persecution only did harm, and that care must be taken to distinguish between those who advocate revolutionary violence and those who advocate changes in the system of Government by peaceful and Constitutional means.

Criticises "Autocracy."

While, he said, autocratic Government probably was necessary during the war, its need vanished with the war. "The despotic use of absolute power by the administration, and particularly by the President," he continued, "must be stopped. Autocracy and autocratic methods have no place in this country, and I hope the day will never come when any man, whether he be capitalist, labor leader or the President of the United States himself, can successfully demand that the Congress pass any measure regardless of whether the members believe it to be wise or just."

He did not enter into a discussion of the high cost of living, merely mentioning it as "an important factor in the present unrest." Extravagance by individuals as well as the Government, he said, had intensified the evils of underproduction and economic waste. Theorizing that the Government should assist in bringing conditions back to normal by setting an example itself, he advocated adoption of a budget system, and that Government expenditures should be limited to absolute essentials.

"The excess profits tax," he said, "has proven to be a failure. It has failed as a war measure because it did not reach the excessive profits due to war conditions. It is harmful to industry in peace because it encourages wasteful extravagance, puts a premium on overcapitalization and monopoly and a penalty on brains and energy, and is an important factor in keeping up the high cost of living."

He argued no relief could be expected from a Democratic administration, which, he said, 'has been throwing the people's money away with both hands in a mad riot of expenditure which makes the proverbial sailor look like a tight-wad."

He discussed international business conditions and urged that this country, for its own protection, should encourage the rehabilitation of European industries. He said in the changing business conditions it would be unsafe to trust the Democratic party on either a free trade or a tariff for revenue only policy.

Instances of "Extravagance."

Much of his speech was devoted to criticism of Government expenditures under the Wilson administration. As examples of extravagance he cited the following instances, which, he said, had been brought out in congressional investigations:

$150,000,000 spent for port terminals which were not used during the war.

$20,000,000 spent for terminals near Charleston, S. C., which could not be used until the river was dredged.

$120,000,000 for a nitrate plant which did not produce during the war.

$100,000,000 spent for plants in Alabama which were not available during the war.

$160,000,000 spent for powder plants from which no powder was used.

$70,000,000 spent for powder plant at Nitro which was later sold for $8,000,000.

$1,000,000,000 spent on shells and only 17,000 American shells were used before the armistice.

$1,000,000,000 spent on planes and no American fighting planes reached the front, only 213 observation planes being used at the front.

$100,000,000 spent on tanks, and the first American tank did not reach France until after the armistice.

$117,000,000 was spent for gas and no American gas shells were used by the United States artillery.

$1,200,000,000 spent for artillery and only 132 American-made guns reached the front before the armistice.

Charging inefficiency in smaller items, he said the requisitions of the Ordnance Department for shoes would have required more than 300,000 more hides than were produced in the United States; 945,000 saddles and 1,000,000 sets of harness were ordered although the maximum number of horses and mules in the service was only 392,000 and 195,000 branding irons were ordered, one for every two animals.

Discussing the obligation of the Government to the ex-service men, he said they were entitled to generous treatment, charged that the War Risk Insurance Bureau was inefficiently conducted, and that the service men were dissatisfied. "They feel," he said, "that the country has not given them the recognition which other nations have given to their defenders, particularly in the matter of adjusted compensation, misnamed a bonus. The administration has wasted billions of dollars, double the amount which would be required to pay a fair bonus."

Opposed to Large Standing Army.

He criticized the recommendation of Gen. March for an army of 567,000 and an appropriation of $900,000,000. "Personally," he said, "I believe that a large professional army is unwise and unnecessary. National safety with freedom from militarism is best assured by a system based on the American principles of equality of opportunity and obligation. A small professional army, supplemented by trained citizenry; a navy adequate for defense and for the protection of our merchant marine, and a reasonable measure of preparedness at all times, is in accord with these principles."

He quoted from Washington's farewell address the paragraph warning the country against entangling foreign alliances, which has been quoted by Senator Reed and by Republican opponents of the league of nations, and continued:

"Shall we abandon the policies of Washington, Monroe, Lincoln, Cleveland, McKinley and Roosevelt for those of Woodrow Wilson? Shall we enter into any obligations to send our boys to fight overseas at the behest of any foreign nations, regardless of whether or not the cause for which they lay down their lives appeals to the moral conscience of the American people as righteous and just? Shall we sacrifice in the slightest degree the sovereign rights gained for us by the blood of our forefathers in 1776 and reasserted and sanctified by those gallant boys at Chateau-Thierry and the Forest of the Argonne? The Republican party, through its representatives in the Senate and through state platforms, has answered emphatically, 'No.' And the people of the country by an overwhelming majority heartily indorse this patriotic stand.

"The President, and he alone, is responsible for the present unfortunate situation in regard to the treaty. The American people, in my opinion, will not and should not accept the peace treary and the league of nations in the form demanded by the President. If he desires to make it a campaign issue in the next election, we challenge Woodrow Wilson to go before the people on the platform of his own ualterable league of nations. The result will pierce the armor of even his overwhelming egotism."

Republican Record on Suffrage.

He gave statistics showing that a larger percentage of Republican members of Congress had voted for suffrage than Democratic members, and that a greater proportion of Republican states had ratified the suffrage amendment than Democratic states.

"When women's suffrage is finally attained," he said, "women should have equal rights with men. They should have direct citizenship, and not citzenship through marriage, and the naturalization of married women should be made possible."

Though asserting that the solution of the proper relationship between capital and labor will not come through Government action, but through better co-operation between labor and capital, he declared in favor of "fair and impartial instrumentalities, preferably on a regional basis, through which the parties to a controversy may come together and be assured of a square deal. Where there is a public interest in the controversy the public must be recognized, not only as a party to the controversy, but as the party whose interests are predominant."

After an appeal for better farm conditions, he closed with his statement on prohibition.

Davis spoke this afternoon in Jackson, the county seat of Cape Girardeau County.

$600 PRIZES OFFERED FOR OPERA SETTINGS

They Are to Be Used for Municipal Productions This Summer in Forest Park.

Six prizes of $100 each, for the best stage settings designed respectively for that number of operas to be produced this summer in Forest Park, are announced by the Municipal Theater Association through Tom P. Barnett, chairman of its Committee on Stage Setting. The competition will be held in co-operation with the St. Louis Art League, and will be supervised by the latter organization's Committee on Competitions and Scholarships, of which Robert A. Kissack is chairman.

The competition is open to members of the Art League and to all St. Louis artists, and the operas for which settings are to be provided are the followng: "Firefly," "Babes in Toyland," "Waltz Dream," "Woodland," "Mascot," and "Gondoliers." No artist may win more than one prize.

The design in each case, Barnett explains, should be submitted in the form of a stage model on the scale of one-fourth inch to the foot. The entries should be delivered at the Artists' Guild between 1 and 5 p. m., on or before April 27, when the contest closes. The jury will consist of three persons—an expert on stage settings, an artist not a member of the Art League, and a third judge chosen by the other two, with a view to both artistic and operatic experience.

Information required by contestants will be furnished by Miss Sarah Wolf of the Park Department, City Hall. David E. Russell, business manager of the Municipal Opera Co., will furnish books of the operas, and Ralph Toensfeldt, of the City Lighting Department, will supply information regarding lighting effects. Inquiries may also be made at the office of the Art League, Syndicate Trust Building.

PHYSICIANS WILL TAKE PART IN FAITH HEALING MISSION

Doctors to Inspect Those Seeking Treatment From J. M. Hickson to See That They Have Ailment.

NO COLLECTION TO BE TAKEN AT MEETINGS

Healer of Church of England Will Be at St. Peter's Tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday.

An interview recently given by J. M. Hickson, explaining his work, appears on the first page of Part Three of this issue of the Post-Dispatch.

Three or more physicians will take part in the Christian Healing Mission, to be conducted tomorrow morning, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings, in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Lindell boievard and Spring avenue, by James Moore Hickson, lay healer of the Church of England.

The physicians will not stand at the altar with Hickson, but will be at certain points in the aisles, and will inspect those who are admitted by card, before they are presented to Hickson for the laying on of hands. This is arranged with a view to excluding the merely curious, and those who have not a definite ailment.

In case of any sudden attack f fliness or hysteria, on the part of persons waiting to approach the altar, the physicians will treat such persons, and will try to prevent any interruption of Hickson's regular course of work at the altar.

Names of Physicians Withheld.

The Rev. Z. B. T. Phillips, rector of St. Peter's, said last evening that he was not ready to announce the names of the physicians. A number of physicians were in the large congregation at Friday night's preparatory meeting, when the Rev. Dr. E. S. Travers of Trinity Church, Pittsburg, spoke on Hickson's work, from his observation during a mission which Hickson held in his church last December.

Dr. Travers will preach at the 11 o'clock service in St. Peter's this morning. Hickson is expected to arrive today from Kansas City, but has no public appointment until tomorrow.

No collection will be taken at any of the Hickson meetings, Dr. Phillips has announced. There will be boxes near the entrances, in which offerings may be placed, but no one will be asked to give anything, and the amount of any person's contribution will be known only to the contributor.

The no-collection precedent was set at Friday night's meeting, when, with a gathering which filled the pews and choir seats and crowded the rear of the church, the costomary offertory was omitted.

"I would not, for any amount, have permitted the taking of a collection, after the impression that was made by that meeting," Dr. Phillips said. "In my judgment, one of the strongest points in Hickson's work is its entire freedom from the element of money-making."

Bishop Tuttle Takes Part.

A striking feature of the Friday night meeting was the part taken by Bishop Tuttle. In announcing that the Bishop would conclude the service, Dr. Phillips referred to the Bishop's deafness, which is of long standing, saying:

"He will not hear a word that is said here—he never does—but at the close, he will give us the benediction. The presence of this saintly man is a benediction in itself. No one is nearer the throne of grace than he."

The Bishop was asked later whether he would seek treatment for himself from Hickson. His reply indicated that he had not thought of doing so, and that his chief desire, in conection with Hickson's meetings, was to make them the source of benefit to others.

"Mr. Hickson is a modest, unassuming, simple, helpful, prayerful man," the Bishop said. "His sincerity and his judgment have won the highest praise. I extended the invitation for his visit here, and I expect to help in any way that I can. I believe in the healing power of God, but I cannot guarantee the results of this work in any given case, and Mr. Hickson does not guarantee them. I hope that these meetings will be a help to the largest possible number of persons. I have not thought particularly of my own infirmity in this connection."

Advised Not to Expect Miracles.

Dr. Travers, in his address at the preparatory meeting, advised his hearers not to look for miracles, but to ask for blessings and expect great things. "Care not," he said, "how incurable the doctors may say you are. With God, no hing is impossible. God loves, God cares, God will help, perhaps not in the way you think, but in His own way."

Those admitted to tomorrow's meeting will be the holders of tickets numbered from 1 to 800 inclusive. The second 800 ticket-holders will be admitted Tuesday, and the third group Wednesday. The church doors will open at 9 a. m. Dr. Phillips hopes to arrange for an extra meeting, or for an extension of Hickson's stay, to accommodate the many persons who have applied since the last of the 2400 tickets was issued.

Hickson Ministers to 1600 Afflicted in Kansas City

Ceremony of Laying on of Hands Continues Five Hours While Stream of Persons Passes Before "Healer" in Church.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, March 27.—The laying on of hands was administered to more than 1600 persons by James Moore Hickson, the Episcopal "healer" today. Starting shortly after 10 o'clock, a stream of afflicted persons knelt at the altar railing in Grace and Trinity Church. The final ministration was given at 3 o'clock, when clergymen and Church workers knelt before the "miracle man."

Scarcely was it dawn when the pilgrimage had begun toward the church. From all parts of the city came sufferers for the laying on of hands. By 8 o'clock, two hours before the "healer" was to begin his work, 1500 persons filled the church.

By 2 p. m. more than 1000 persons had been touched by the "healer." As soon as those who had been treated left others were there to take their places.

"God the Only Healer."

"This healing mission will be just what you make it," Hickson said. "There is only one healer—that is God. I am not a healer. I have not, cannot and never claimed to have healed any person. No man can give life any more than an electric light bulb can give light without the agency behind it."

Hickson stated that the cures resulting through him as an instrument of God were not instantaneous but were slow and steady. Those who had come on cruches, expecting to run home, and those who came riding in wheel chairs and expected to push them away, were disasappointed at this.

"There are soul diseases as well as body diseases," Hickson said. "You must not come to the Lord just to get your body cured. It was the soul Christ came from Heaven to cure. But when the soul is free and whole, the spirit of evil as manifested in disease cannot live. God drives the spirit of devils out to make a clean home for the soul reclaimed."

The "healer" told of the first cure of diseases by the laying on of hands, telling of Christ's cure of the maimed, the halt and the blind. He then outlined the requisites necessary to receive the cure.

"All He asks is. Do you believe the Lord can cure you?" Hickson said, "and all we ask is, do we believe He has the will?"

Hickson warned his listeners that the doctor, the physician and the surgeon are essentials, being, he said, other avenues of performance by the Lord, and should be used as regularly after the laying on of hands as before.

First "Patient" an Aged Woman.

Walking down from the pulpit to the persons in wheel chairs, Hickson went first to an aged woman, suffering from inflammatory rheumatism. He laid one hand on her forehead and one on the back of her head and prayed, asking for purity in her soul and peace in her body. Dr. Spencer, pastor, and Bishop Partridge repeated the procedure, they asking in prayer that the cure started should continue until complete. Hickson repeated the procedure until all in chairs had been visited, and the ill persons were wheeled out of the church and to their respective homes. Next the children were gathered at the chancel rail and as fast as he had laid hands on them they were carried or walked from the church.

Hickson departed for St. Louis at 10:10 tonight.

Mrs. Senseney came to St. Louis with her husband from their home in Winchester, Va., during the Civil War. Since the death of her husband she made her home with relatives.

Four grandchildren survive her, these being Dr. Eugene Senseney of 4401 McPherson avenue, Mrs. Joseph Allen Lee of Chicago, and the Misses Margaret and Harriet Senseney, daughters of Mrs. Edgar M. Senseney, the widow of her only son. The funeral will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow from a chapel at 3621 Olive street.

WOMEN CLAIMANTS OF BOY TO HEAR DECISION TUESDAY

Mrs. Constance Martin of St. Louis, and Mrs. George Thompson of Arthur, Ill., Ordered to Belleville Court

Mrs. Constance Martin of 4131 Maryland avenue, and Mrs. George Thompson of Arthur, Ill., have been directed to appear in the Circuit Court at Belleville next Tuesday, when Judge Crow will decide which is entitled to the custody of Mrs. Martin's 5-year-old son, Earl.

Mrs. Martin found her son at the Thompson home last Sunday, after a search of more than three years, and, failing to induce Mrs. Thompson to relinquish the boy, obtained a writ of habeas corpus. The case was set for yesterday, but Mrs. Thompson asked for time to employ counsel. She engaged two attorneys and they had the case continued.

Judge Crow would not permit either of the women to have the boy in the meantime and directed Sheriff Petri to care for him until Tuesday. The boy was willing to go to the Petri home when informed there was an automobile there for him to play with.

Mrs. Thompson is president of the Christian Endeavor Society at Arthur and her husband is a Sunday school superintendent. They refused to surrender the boy to Mrs. Martin when the latter called at their home and demanded him last Sunday. They said that they had adopted him and had formed such an affection for him that they regarded him as their own child.

Lost Trace of Child in 1917.

Mrs. Martin, who is a divorcee, placed the child, when it was two months' old, in the Mothers' and Babies' Home, then at 3000 North Taylor avenue. She paid regularly for its board up to the early part of 1917, when she fell into arrears. After a lapse of several weeks she was informed that the baby had been placed in a private home. No information was given to her as to the boy's whereabouts.

Friends of Mrs. Martin obtained the services of Harry Russell, an assistant to the Circuit Attorney, and he instituted habeas corpus proceedings in the Circuit Court here against Mrs. T. R. Ayars, 5210 Washington boulevard, president of the Mothers' and Babies' Home, now at 6600 Washington boulevard.

The case against Mrs. Ayars was dismissed on the defendant's plea that she did not control the affairs of the home. New proceedings were then instituted against the board of directors of the home and had the desired effect of disclosing the boy's whereabouts, as in their answer, filed a week ago, they stated that the boy was at the Thompson home in Arthur, Ill.

Mrs. Martin and Russell went to the Thompson home last Sunday. The boy was playing in the front yard. The mother recognized him at once and threw her arms about him. He did not know her and ran into the house. Mrs. Martin followed him.

While Mrs. Martin and the Thompsons were arguing over who was entitled to have the boy he disappeared. It developed that a daughter of the Thompsons had concealed him and she refused to tell where he was.

Last Monday Mrs. Martin applied Belleville and an order directing Mrs. Thompson to produce the boy in court was issued. The boy was brought to St. Louis Friday night by a deputy sheriff. Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Martin accompanied them in an automobile, but Mrs. Thompson would not permit the mother to fondle the child. The party spent the night at Russell's home, 4952 Page boulevard, the boy occupying a room with the officer.

Mrs. Thompson said that she was determined to keep the boy. Mrs. Martin said that she was equally determined to have him. She had been compelled to earn her own living and as she had an older son, now 8 years old, to support, she had found it convenient to place Earl in the home, but now she wants him with her.

HOME OF COUPLE ON BRIDAL VISIT STRIPPED OF FURNISHINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Weseman of Belleville Discover Clean Sweep Robbery on Return.

While Mr. and Mrs. Louis Weseman were spending the last week of their honeymoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas Mott of Second street, Belleville, their newly furnished home on West Main street was stripped of all its furnishings. The couple discovered their loss yesterday afternoon.

The loot, apparently transported from the home by truck, includes furniture, rugs, curtains, kitchen utensils and wedding gifts of cut glass and bric-a-brac, valued at $700. Except for the paint on the floors and the paper on the walls, the home is as bare as it was before Weseman started to prepare it for his bride-elect.

Entrance to the house apparently was gained by forcing a window. A putty knife is believed to have been used as a "jimmy."

Mr. and Mrs. Weseman had inspected their home Monday, on returning from a honeymoon spent away from Belleville, and found everything in order. Then they went to the home of Mrs. Mott, nearly a mile away, and did not visit their own home again until yesterday.

CONFIDENCE IN GOVERNMENT VOTED BY FRENCH DEPUTIES

Chamber's Expression is 518 to 70, After Debate of Interpellations on Foreign Policy.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 27.—The Chamber of Deputies today expressed its confidence in the Government by a vote of 518 to 70. The vote followed debate on interpellations on the Government's foreign policy.

During the discussion Deputy Bellet recalled that 125 American Protestant Bishops had declared they would never again shake a Frenchman's hand if France continued to take the bloodstained hand of the Turk.

Deputy Lenial denounced Prince Feisal, the newly proclaimed King of Syria, as menacing the independent poplations of whom France was the traditional protector. He said these populations had been martyrized by the Germans.

Former Premier Briand made a brief speech with regard to Syria. "If we were not in Syria and Cilicia who would be there?" he asked. "These populations before the war begged Europe to relieve them from the Turkish yoke. If France, victorious, cannot free herself economically, she will be defeated. Feisal would be the right prince as administrator under French control, but he has over-passed his role. If human difficulties arise between the allies, when the Government strongly presents its resolution it is not England that will dishonor its signature."

MISSISSIPPI WOMAN HELD BY POLICE AT HUSBAND'S INSTANCE

Comes to Investigate Termination of Wife's Visit to Relatives—"Tree Surgeon" Also Held.

Mrs. Alice Miller, 24 years old, was arrested at 4026 Delmar boulevard yesterday by Detective Sergt. Charles Kelly of the "morals" squad, and placed in the matron's room at police headquarters.

Later the police arrested Clifford L. Davis, 26 years old, who also lived at the Delmar boulevard address, and ordered him held for the Federal authorities. He said that he was a salesman, but Mrs. Miller said that he had represented himself to her as a "tree surgeon."

The arrests followed the arrival of Charles Miller, the husband, who, she says, is 19 years her senior, and who is chief clerk for a group of railroads at Meridian, Miss., where the couple lived until three weeks ago, when the wife disappeared. They have been married 11 years. Mrs. Miller says she came to St. Louis to visit relatives, but later went to work in a millinery shop and decided to remain here.

The husband said he came to St. Louis when he received letters from relatives with whom he supposed his wife was visiting, and who told him she had left their home and was living at the Delmar boulevard address.

SUIT TO PREVENT COLLECTION OF STATE INCOME TAX DISMISSED

Judge Slate Rules Assessment Under New Law Applies to Whole of Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 27.—Suit of Charles F. Smith of this city to prevent the collection of his income tax for 1919 under the new law requiring payment for the whole year was dismissed by Circuit Judge John G. Slate today on a demurrer filed by Attorney-General McAllister.

The Court held the act was legally retroactive, and that persons subject to the tax could not pay the rate under the old law for seven months, and under the new law for five months. He ruled the Legislature expressly provided that the tax under the new law should apply for the whole of the calendar year.

The suit will be appealed to the Supreme Court, it was stated.

BIG TOWBOAT FOR RIVER BARGE LINE SERVICE LAUNCHED

First of Fleet of Six Expected to Be Turned Out by Charleston (W. Va.) Builder Before June 1.

The first one of six 1800-horse-power towboats being built for the Mississippi River barge line has been launched at Charleston, W. Va., and probably will arrive at St. Louis for service before June 1, it was announced yesterday by M. J. Sanders, retiring Federal manager of the Mississippi-Warrior Waterways and his tentative successor, Theodore Brent, upon their arrival here yesterday.

A second towboat is approaching the launching stage at Point Pleasant, W. Va., and will follow about a month after the first one, they said. This will be followed successively by the completion of other boats, until the entire fleet of six towboats and 40 2000-ton barges will be in service before the last of the year, they predicted. Government operation of the river barge line then will have reached the full proportions toward which waterway advocates have been working for many years.

There remains one drawback, however. That is the lack of adequate terminals.

Adequate Terminals Lacking.

"We are now refusing south and eastbound freight offered along the river north of here because there are no adequate facilities at East St. Louis for transferring it to the railroads," said Brent. A transfer terminal at East St. Louis was authorized by the Railroad Administration before it went out of existence, but it is estimated that it will be only half as large as required. Transfer on the St. Louis Side is prevented by the bridge arbitrary. The East St. Louis terminal is necessary for freight consigned part way by water and part way by rail, as East St. Louis is the point of transfer.

"The volume of downstream freight shipped from St. Louis is increasing steadily," Brent added, "but still is not large enough to fill all our boats. On the other hand, upstream offerings are so great that we have been unable to accept all of them."

Why Sanders Resigned.

Sanders said that the demands of his private business, as New Orleans manager of the Leyland Steamship Line and in other fields, made his resignation necessary. He would not relax his interest in the barge line, however; on the contrary, he felt he could make demands in the capacity of a private citizen which would have been improper for an official of the line.

Reports of the grounding of a barge in the Memphis terminal during the heavy wind Thursday night, stated that about half the cargo had gone overboard. Most of it was canned syrup and bottled beverages, however, and the salvage probably will reduce the loss to about $10,000, he said.

Thirty Deaths From Pneumonia.

Births registered last week numbered 266 and deaths 237. Thirty of the deaths were caused by pneumonia and two by influenza. Heart disease was the cause of 27 deaths, Bright's disease 24, tuberculosis 22, and cancer 15. There were six accidental deaths; three homicides and three suicides.

City Will Be Advertised In National Periodicals

First of Series Will Appear in April Issues —Fund of $50,000, Half of Which Was Appropriated by City, to Be Used.

The campaign to advertise the advantages of St. Louis, in such a way as to attract industries, will be started in the April issues of a number of national publications.

This will be the first of a series to appear in national trade journals, magazines and foreign publications, and was made possible by the $50,000 municipal advertising fund, of which the city contributed $25,000. The balance was raised by popular subscription among the business interests of the city.

An Advisory Committee of eight members representing the Chamber of Commerce, Advertising Club of St. Louis and public officials has been appointed to supervise the expenditure of the fund and select the mediums in which the advertising is to appear. Members are: M. P. Linn, chairman; Paul V. Bunn, Max Koenigsberg, George M. Burbach, James A. Troy, Walter B. Weisenburger, secretary, representing the Chamber of Commerce; M. E. Holderness, president of the Advertising Club of St. Louis, and W. T. Findly, secretary to Mayor Kiel

To Contract for Advertising.

This committee is to be made the direct contact between these organizations and the advertising agency handling the campaign, and will contract for the advertising. A man to handle the follow-up work in connection with any inquiries resulting from the campaign is to be appointed, and will be under the supervision of this committee. The Advisory Committee is also authorized to approve all disbursements in connection with the campaign, which will be passed to City Comptroller Nolte for payment.

There still remains a deficit of $4000 to be raised in order to complete the $50,000 fund, but it was decided recently to start the campaign immediately after it was announced that the Chamber of Commerce would advance the money, which could later be paid back after the fund is completed.

Plans are now under way to strengthen the effect that this advertising will have on outside markets, by securing an additional fund of larger proportions to advertise the city next year.

$50,000 Nucleus Sought.

A committee of three, consisting of Linn, Weisenburger and Holderness, appeared before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment last Friday to request that an appropriation of $50,000 be made in next year's budget to form the nucleus of a fund totaling $150,000, the balance of which will be raised by the business men of the city. It is expected to increase this fund to $250,000, according to Weisenburger, who asked that a provision be made in the ordinance providing for the city's appropriation to be turned over when $100,000 had been raised by business men.

Weisenburger stated that the advertising would lose its value unless it was consistently and consecutively done for a period of years. "Our present fund is so small, and the field so great," said he, "that it makes it doubly imperative to continue the advertising for another year at least, in order to prevent a complete waste of the first fund, as far as effectiveness is concerned."

Weisenburger was optimistic regarding the raising of the business men's share of the second fund, should it be attempted. He pointed out that the obstacles encountered in the first campaign for funds could be largely eliminated, and that the business men who had subscribed to the $50,000 fund were heartily in favor of continuing the plan for advertising the city.

$100 FOR SLOGAN FOR CHILD WELFARE DRIVE

Requirements Are That Entries Express Moral, Mental and Physical Phase of Work.

A prize of $100 is offered by the Board of Religious Organizations for the best slogan to be used in the Child Welfare Educational Campaign now being carried on by the Child Welfare Committee of the board. This prize was decided upon at a meeting of the Executive Board of the organization yesterday.

The rules of the contest provide that anyone living in St. Louis or St. Louis County may compete for the prize, but that only one slogan may be submitted by each contestant. The prize will be awarded to the person offering the slogan which best expresses the idea and purpose of the campaign, which is embodied in three phases—moral, mental and physical welfare of the child. The slogans are to be written on a plain sheet of paper, signed with the writer's name and address and mailed to Mrs. William H. Allen, chairman Child Welfare Committee, Board of Religious Organization, 417 Victoria Building. The contest closes at midnight, April 7; however, all slogans mailed up till that time will be considered in the contest.

Five Judges to Be Selected.

Should the prize-winning slogan be one that has been suggested by more than one contestant, the one mailed first will receive the prize, or should they be mailed at the same time, the prize will be divided. Five judges will be selected this week from among the religious, educational and commercial life of the city.

Two other contests may be announced later—one for putting the slogan into verse and the other for putting the slogan into song. The exact nature of these contests have not yet been decided upon.

The 25,000 women of St. Louis churches, who are represented by the Board of Religious Organizations, are not carrying on a crusade against existing evils, according to Mrs. Louis J. Brooks, president of the board, unless ignorance of conditions be excepted.

"We believe that once people know and understands the needs of the children— our future men and women—they will take care of the crusade part of it, by voluntarily eliminating anything that is to the detriment of our children's welfare and that is having a ha dinfluence over them," she stated today. "Bad conditions for children seldom exist through deliberate neglect or intention, but rather through a lack of knowledge and understanding of what children really require."

Purpose of Board.

The Board of Religious Organizations has stood from the beginning for proper protection to be thrown around the children of the city and State by the enactment of laws that would conserve child life. And while it is not a political organization, it expects candidates for office to stand for laws of this nature.

It is hoped by the members that this campaign will arouse the fathers and mothers of St. Louis to such a volume of sentiment that candidates will be glad to promise support, but that the measures will actually be enacted into laws.

Miss Mabel Evans, an expert in child training, who is in charge of the mothercraft division of the Child Welfare Committee, is taking an active part in the campaign. Miss Evans has done much work among the mothers in this city, including lectures and demonstrations before several organizations of women.

NIGHT AND DAY CAMP HELPED 115 GIRLS

Operation Costs of Institution Were $14,000 for Year, Mrs. B. F. Bush Reports.

The Night and Day Camp at 9500 South Broadway is responsible for the complete restoration to health and increased industrial efficiency of 115 working girls during 1919, according to the report for the year presented to the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society by the Night and Day Camp committee chairman, Mrs Benjamin F. Bush. These girls were in ill health because of overwork or because they had not completely recovered from some illness before returning to their work and undoubtedly, in the opinion of the camp physician, would have developed tuberculosis. The open air regimes and special nutritous diet provided at the camp, prevented such an outcome and has sent the girls back to their work with greater vigor than they had before.

According to Mrs. Bush's report the average stay of the girls in camp was two months and 12 days and their average gain during this period, eight and one half pounds. One girl set a record for the year with the increase in weight of 23½ pounds in one month and 29 days.

The Night and Day Camp celebrated its seventh anniversary March 18. It was built with funds given the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society by an unnamed donor and has been maintained since then by the society as a preventorium against tuberculosis for self-supporting girls and women. Persons having tuberculosis are not admitted because the insitution is not a tuberculosis hospital, its purpose being to prevent, not cure, tuberculosis. The camp has a capacity of 35 and during the year just closed has been full practically all the time. It cost the Tuberculosis Society $14,000 last year. This year the estimated cost will be $25,000, the increase being due partly to advanced prices for living and partly to the fact that a wing with a capacity of 25 was added during the year. This wing will be used for the present to house the residential open air school, also maintained by the Tuberculosis Society.

One-Cent Local Postage Loses.

OTHER CHAMBERS HEIRS INSIST SON HAS FORFEITED SHARE

Heirs of the late James H. Chambers, president of the Dios Chemical Co., who obtained a jury verdict upholding his will in Circuit Judge Ferriss' Court Friday, are at present in favor of enforcing a forfeiture clause in the will, ti was stated yesterday by their lawyer, William P. Gentry.

This clause provides that any heir contesting the will shall take nothing.

Gentry said that while the legality of a forfeiture clause never has been decided by the Missouri Supreme Court, the Supreme Court of the United States as well as supreme courts of several states have held that such provision is legal.

The plaintiff was John Ralph Chambers of Los Angeles, eldest son of the deceased by his first marriage. His share, amounting to an income estimated at $5000 a year, was left in trust, while the other beneficiaries received their shares outright. They are Mrs. May Chambers, second wife of the deceased, and their three children—Arthur D. and Leslie T. Chambers and Mrs. Ethel S. Ingels. The estate is valued at $250,000.

John R. Chambers alleged that his father was not of sound mind when he executed the will in September, 1916, fourteen months before he died.

VERDICT FOR OWNER IN SUIT OVER RENT

Jury Decides for Widow of Physician Who Died During Litigation Over Lease.

Mrs. Annie Frumson, 5027 Enright avenue, widow of Dr. H. Frumson, yesterday obtained a verdict in the Circuit Court in a rent suit against her tenant, Mrs. Nettie Levy, a widow, of 5791 Westminster place, after Judge Grimm had given a peremptory instruction to the jury in favor of the plaintiff. The case involved the making of a new lease on a suite in an apartment building at the Westminster place address.

Evidence was introduced that on Oct. 6, 1917, Mrs. Levy leased the apartment from Dr. Frumson, then owner, for a period of 17 months at $55 a month. The lease expired April 1 last, at which time Dr. Frumson, gave written notice to Mrs. Levy that he would renew the lease for two years at $57.50 a month. This was agreeable to her, and she so notified Dr. Frumson, but the lease was not formally executed because of Dr. Frumson's becoming ill.

Subsequently he notified her that the rent would be $80 a month from August 1. She declined to pay and he filed a landlord summons suit against her, to which she countered with an injunction petition to restrain him from prosecuting the suit. He died on Oct. 20, before the litigation was decided and his wife took it up. She succeeded in defeating the injunction application.

No Rent Paid Since December.

Then the rent case was tried before a justice of the peace, who decided in favor of Mrs. Levy, from which decision the plaintiff appealed to the Circuit Court. At the trial yesterday it developed that Mrs. Levy paid rent at the rate of $57.50 until December, when Mrs. Frumson declined to accept further rent on this basis. Since then Mrs. Levy has been occupying the apartment without paying rent.

The defense contended that the lease as originally proposed by Dr. Frumson should be ratified by his wife, but Judge Grimm held that Frumson's offer did not legally bind Mrs. Frumson inasmuch as the evidence was that the property stood in their joint names, the whole going to the survivor.

Case May Be Appealed.

The jury's verdict is that Mrs. Frumson is entitled to the three months' rent now due, at $57.50 a month, with possession of the premises and one cent damages. Under the law this carries with it a penalty of double the amount, so that the defendant will now be liable for rent at the rate of $115 a month for all the time she occupies the apartment, including the three months overdue, should she eventually lose the case. Her lawyer, Charles Erd, said an appeal to the Court of Appeals probably will be taken.

Burke's Men Lose Slugging Bee to Tulsa Team, 8-7

Davis and Leifield Pounded for 17 Safeties by Western League Outfit.

BOB LARMORE IS STAR

St. Louis Boy Raps Out Four Hits Including Two Homers —Sisler Has Good Day.

TULSA, Ok., March 27.—The Browns today discovered that they are not the only slugging ball team in the South. Instead of finding things easy, as has been customary in all the spring battles played by the St. Louisans, Burke's club was defeated by Tulsa, 8 to 7. Tulsa outhit the Browns 17 to 8. Not an error was turned by Tulsa, while the Browns made three.

"Dixie" Davis started on the hill for the Browns and was pounded hard. "Dixie" worked five innings and the locals counted eight wallops and four runs.

The boy who took most delight in slamming Davis was Bob Larmore, a St. Louis boy. It was none other than Larmore who was directly responsible for the defeat of the Browns. The former Central High School boy singled in the opening round. In the third he cracked the ball over the left-field fence, and in the fifth came right back with another home run.

Doubles Off "Lefty" Leifield.

Larmore faced Lefty Leifield at the opening of the seventh and managed to reach first base when Walter Gerber failed to get down to field a ground ball. With Tulsa running one run behind when the home team went to bat in the final inning, Larmore doubled. He was sacrificed to third and scored the tieing run when Graham singled. Conlon, who had taken Nagle's place in the seventh, singled. McManus, who relieved Third Baseman Nagle's place in the seventh, singled, and with three on Tierney lifted a short fly which fell safe behind second and Graham scored the winning run.

George Sisler duplicated Lamore's feat of getting a pair of home runs. Sisler lifted the ball over the left field fence in the second and in the seventh hit over the right field wall.

Joe Morris, known to all members of the Browns, as Joe Bennett, was Manager Spencer Abbott's choice for pitching duty. Bennett was a member of the Browns last spring.

Sisler Raps Out Homer.

Morris got away safely in the first, but in the second Sisler connected for a homer. Homers by Larmore and Graham gave Tulsa two in the third.

The Browns scored two runs in the fourth. Gedeon walked. Tobin fouled out and Sisler walked. Williams doubled, scoring Gedeon and Sisler.

Tulsa scored one in the fifth when Larmore rapped out his second homer.

The Browns got going fairly well against Cowan in the sixth when a pair of runs were tallied, one out. Williams paraded. Jacobson went out and Billings walked. Gerber singled, scoring Williams. Earl Smith was sent to bat for Davis, and tripled to right, scoring Billings and Gerber. Tulsa scored one in its half. Tierney connecting for a homer.

Another Homer for Sisler.

The Browns put over their final tally in the seventh on Sisler's home run.

Tulsa had two down in the eighth when Tierney and Querry singled and Billman singled, scoring Tierney. Tulsa's ninth inning has been explained.

It was the first game the Browns have lost in two years on a Southern training trip.

President Ball of the Browns witnessed his athletes in action. The boss of the Mound City troupe will remain over and watch his men perform tomorrow.

Manager Burke today announced the players to be sent home from here tomorrow evening. Those who will not make the trip to Wichita and Joplin will be Billy Friel, Frank Thompson, Harry Strong, Ernest Lee, Ray Richmond, Henry Schneider and Roy Sanders. These men will report at Sportsman's Park and work out with Friel in charge.

Georges Carpentier, Heavyweight Champion Of Europe, Describes 'Worst Three Minutes'

Boxer and War Hero Says Most Terrible Moments in His Life Were in His Bout With Bombardier Wells.

As shown in this picture, Carpentier, although in splendid condition, seems to lack the heavy forearm, body and shoulder development of Dempsey

By Georges Carpentier,
Heavyweight Champion of Europe.

MY worst three minutes was on the Sunday afternoon, June 1, 1913, in the half-finished Floral Hall of the Ghent Exhibition in my first contest with Bombadier Wells. Even now, after six years, it comes to me all over again, and I shiver and wonder and am amazed that I not only survived it, but won when the odds against me were unnameably long.

One gentleman—a well-known member of the National Sporting Club—who sat at the foot of my corner, told me afterwards when I was sipping tea at a cafe close by and being made embarrassed by gorgeous bouquets of flowers showered upon me by various ladies who had witnessed my triumph, that he had offered a thousand to three against me, and there were no takers. I agreed that even such extravagant odds were justified. Let me tell what happened.

It Was My Greatest Gamble.

A year before, I had lost to both Papke and Frank Klaus, the American middleweights. Each had punished me terribly, and had set me wondering whether I should completely recover from the effects of those two desperate encounters. With every reason, the experts declared that if I could not beat a middleweight, it were foolish, imprudent, suicidal to attempt to conquer the best heavyweight in Great Britain, a man many inches taller and at least a couple of stone heavier.

For the first time I will make this confession. I entered into a match with Wells, knowing full well that I was plunging into the greatest gamble of my life. I realized that were I beaten, my stock would be at a discount, and since I was getting heavier every day and could not comfortably do anything short of the light heavyweight limit, I would be relegated to quite a humble position.

It was mad for me to tackle Wells in 1913, for the Bombadier, whatever may be said to the contrary, was a better man than he is today.

My victory brought me the fame I sought after, and it meant robbing Wells of whatever confidence he ever possessed.

It was to me the beginning of an era of abundant prosperity. When you come to think it all over, it broke the heart of Wells, for he has never done himself any real good since.

Wells Looked So Very Big.

Let me try to analyze my feelings as I dived between the ropes on this memorable Sunday afternoon. I had come through a torrential rain to the Exhibition grounds; it was a day that makes for depression. As I looked round I imagined that Lens had sent all its menfolk. They screamed their welcome to me. I tingled all over, and I whispered to Descamps:

"Francois, if I am beaten today I shall be disgraced. I can never go back to my home again."

Then I looked at Wells. His handsome face was aglow with health. You know what it is when the brain is strung up tight; when it dances and makes for exaggeration, when it magnifies so that little, even inconsequential things, loom up before you as a mountain.

I pictured Wells as I ran my eye over my boyish frame, as big as the building in which the ring had been pitched. So big did he seem that I imagined that he was all the people present rolled into himself. So I said:

"Francois, isn't the Bombardier too big? How will I reach him? I will scarce be able to hit him. He will smother me."

I was not frightened. I was not scared or apprehensive, but I was puzzled to know how it had come about that we met.

Remembered Hurting Him.

Then I remembered that at Leigh-on-Sea I had sparred with him, that in the gymnasium I, though then very little, had discovered a way to break through his guard. I recalled a day when I had hurt Wells, and so I steadied myself. I was hopeful.

"Time!" was shouted, and we faced each other.

The Bombardier stood almost bolt upright, his pose delightful. I crouched slightly, and I swayed my body so that any blow I made would have the full weight of it behind it.

I was young then—not quite 19 years of age—and it must have been that my youthfulness, which is oftener than not synonymous with impetuosity, caused me to do what I did, and incidentally almost ended in the greatest tragedy in which I have ever been involved.

My coming down with a bang when I was flying over the Vosges Mountains, and death came stark before me, was as nothing to what happened at Ghent. As a Flight-Sergeant, there were many days when I flew wing to wing with death. But I digress.

I literally flew at Wells. I was tigerish, blinded with desperation.

I did not reach Wells, for, like the wonder he can be, he shot out his phenomenal left hand, stopped me with a jerk, and as quick as lightning hit me on the jaw.

Floored by Bombardier.

Down I crashed. Black specks danced fiendishly before me, my head throbbed and was bursting. I could feel myself sick and green. It was as if I had been thrown from the top of the building, and I am sure I said to myself, "Georges, foolish, vain, reckless, mad boy! You are beaten, disgraced; you are no heavyweight. If you continue you will be killed."

I shook my muzzy head and daylight came. I could see! And there was Wells, monstrously big and imposing, the perfect gladiator. His principal second, Maloney, was calling to him to "keep back, Billy, you have won."

But to my own and everybody's astonishment I rose before 10 seconds had been counted. How, I shall never be able to tell.

Why I did not weep and shriek from a feeling of sheer impotency that had seized me, I cannot explain; and why Wells, when I went up to him, rocking and rolling and reeling, as pale as death, sick and weary, with only my last ounce of strength left in me, did not measure me with his left hand and finish me off with his right, will ever remain one of the greatest mysteries of the ring.

I Never Had So Hard a Blow.

I will tell Wells now that in the first round at Ghent he reduced me to the worst plight I have ever been in. My condition was terrible and hopeless.

Can I explain how I won? I have given the question deep thought, and this is my answer:

When I rose, after having my jaw nearly smashed, I am certain that Wells, who I have an idea is too imaginative ever to become a great pugilist, was so astonished that he was robbed of all his wits. He made me half blind and like a drunken man by hitting me harder than I had ever been hit before or since; I made him almost sightless and reel and tremble by getting up and continuing the fight.

The fact that he had me in the hollow of his hand he clean forgot; all he could do was to stare and wonder and think about not what he could easily have done, but what he had done, and why he had not finished the job.

He had done no more than punch twice; he had not been called upon to draw unduly upon his strength, and yet when I, only by instinct, got up and leaned on him—oh, how sick and limp was I—I felt him breathing hard, breathing as a man would do who was being suffocated. His huge body was quivering; it was almost cold; a kind of paralysis of the mind and body was creeping over him. And when I got to my corner, though I was more dead than alive, I saw more than a glimmer of hope.

Then I Knew I Would Win.

I nursed myself in the second meeting, during nearly the whole of which Wells permitted me to lean on him, and when it was over I said to Descamps: "He is big and heavy; he has hurt me, but I am better. I made a mistake in rushing at him. Not again will I do so. I think I can win."

My third round I played a tattoo on the body of Wells. Every time I hit him he shivered with pain; then I knew I would win.

In the fourth round I drove my left to the pit of his stomach. He dropped his hands, and I sent him into semiconsciousness with a right to the chin.

It was as much as I could do to prevent myself from swooning when I saw Wells lying all of a heap. I could hardly believe my own eyes, and I suffered as much as I did from the terrible right which Wells had landed in the very infancy of the fight.

Yes, I had my worst three minutes at Ghent on this Sunday six years ago, though I won my most wonderful victory.

I would not suffer it again; I do not expect I shall. The like of it cannot be any more. It is awful to look back upon. Wells, must sicken when he thinks of it. I am sure that he has never recovered from it.

CHICAGO, March 27.—In line with the advances made in the American Association and Western Leagues, President Tierney of the Three-I League announced tonight that the general admission would be increased from 35 cents to 50 cents this season.

Should Boxers Marry?

GEORGES CARPENTIER, European heavyweight champion, in the third chapter of his own story of his life and boxing career, next Sunday will discuss the question "Why Boxers Should Marry." The French boxer and war hero is in the United States with his bride of a few weeks and his treatment of his subject, like the first two chapters of his story, is interesting and timely. Carpentier's stories are appearing exclusively in St. Louis in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Kabakoff to Try A 'Comeback' in Bout at Detroit

St. Louisan Who Suffered Knockout at Coliseum Meets Young Chaney, Thursday.

By John E. Wray.

Harry Kabakoff, whose lightweight pugilistic ambitions received a knockout wallop at the hands of Benny Valger, last Thursday, will lose no time in his effort to "beat back." To regain his lost prestige Kabakoff will undertake a campaign, most of which will be conducted away from home and which will be inaugurated next Thursday at Detroit, where he fights Young Chaney of Baltimore. Kabakoff and his manager, Tommy Sullivan, departed last night for Detroit.

Chaney is a promising young 126-pounder from Baltimore, where not long since he gained a verdict over Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane.

Kabakoff, since his kayo at the hands of the Polish-Frenchman Valger, has offered no alibis for his failure. He says he will try to redeem his showing in future fights.

Valger Commends Local Boy.

Valger, before his departure, praised Kabakoff's gameness and stated that his failure to follow up his advantage on two occasions cost him a possible chance to win.

"Kabakoff hurt me pretty bad twice, especially in the fifth round. If he had followed up his right-hander on each occasion he might have changed the fight entirely. He's a good boy. He's a different kind of fighter from Lawler, who got a decision over me at Atlanta. Lawler I do not consider so dangerous. Rather, he is a hard man to make a showing against because of his style. If he is willing we will meet again. Perhaps I will show him something, then."

Valger took away about $2400 as his share of the house, Thursday. He had a $1250 guarantee with a 35-per-cent option. He took his option, of course. The receipts were close to $7000.

Regan and Lynch Next.

Manager Sullivan, before his departure, stated that he intended to sign up Joe Lynch for a match with Kid Regan, the bout to take place at the Coliseum April 29, provided Lynch agrees to terms.

Lynch is the boy who fought Jimmy Wilde in London and many thought he deserved a victory. He gained fame by knocking out Kid Williams when the latter was good.

Lynch is a principal on the same card as Kabakoff, at Detroit.

Knockout King Coming.

It was stated yesterday that George Chaney—not "Young" Chaney, but the Baltimorean more familiarly termed the "Knockout King"—will oppose Jack Lawler here at the Rialto Club April 5.

Chaney is the lad who, several seasons ago, was groomed to trim Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbain when the latter was in his prime. He met with a knockout in the third round. However, Chaney has met many of the good boys of the country and has beaten most of them.

Lawler should be a dangerous foe for him, however, on the strength of his point victory over Valger.

RICHARDS, TILDEN AND VOSHELL VICTORS IN INDOOR NET MATCHES

NEW YORK, March 27.—Vincent Richards, the young holder of the indoor tennis title; William Tilden II, S. Howard Voshell and other stars were among the winners in the National indoor championship at the Seventh Regiment Armory today. Richards had one bye and won a match by default. Tilden scored easily in the first and second rounds, defeating H. S. Parker, Cedarhurst, N. Y., 6—4, 6—2, and Jerry Lang, the N. Y. Junior, 6—1, 6—2.

LUQUE FINED $100 FOR PUNCHING CUBAN UMPIRE

Adolfo Luque, the Cincinnati Reds' hot-headed Cuban pitcher, who has been managing the Almendares team in Havana all winter, recently punched an umpire in the face. He was promptly arrested and haled to court, where a cruel Judge slapped on a fine of $100, together with costs. Enthusiastic Cuban fans crowded the court room, and when Luque was fined they raised $500, which was presented to him amidst cheers. Luque then left Havana for the Reds' training camp in Florida with colors flying.

French Champion Shows Versatility

Carpentier Displays Surprising Skill at Bowling and Billiards.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Georges Carpentier saw his old Paris cronie, Willie Lewis, today. After having a whirl at "tea dancing" at the Ritz, in which he was joined by Mme. Carpentier, the dashing Frenchman dropped in on Willie, who is master of ceremonies at Thum's Gymnasium.

Teacher and pupil, now world famous, met with open arms, in the true Parisian style. Georges and Willie were at it for over an hour, talking of old times, old faces and new in Europe and boxing circles.

Carpentier challenged Lewis to a test at bowls, which Lewis lost. Georges then won two games of billiards from Lewis.

Carpentier will motor to Great Neck tomorrow, where he and his party will be the guests of Jack Curley at the latter's home. On Monday Carpentier begins work for the Robertson-Cole Co., the moving picture concern.

When the crowd saw Carpentier wielding the cue with the deftness of a De Oro, eyes popped wide open. It was not known among Lewis' friends that Carpentier is rated one of the finest amateur billiardists in Europe.

Lewis told Carpentier, and he is a man who knows the business of boxing backwards, that he believed he had a royal chance to beat Dempsey to the punch.

"Dempsey comes tearing at you, both hands flying fast," said Willie, as he stepped off a not bad imitation of our champion's ring technique. Carpentier was all eyes and ears as Lewis splashed furiously through a sea of broken English and shattered French.

CARDINALS' THIRD TEAM BEATEN BY GALVESTON; KOENIGSMARK IS INJURED

GALVESTON, Tex., March 27.—Section No. 3 of Branch Rickey's Cardinals was defeated, 5 to 3, here today by the Galveston club of the Texas League. Joe Schultz, who was in charge of the Cards, led in the fifth. He scored on Roth's infield out. This was the first hit made by the Cards off of Couchman, the Pirate slabman.

Galveston hopped off with the lead in the opening inning when a walk, a single and a double off Koenigsmark netted two runs. They scored another in the fifth on an error by Bill Doak, who was used at first, a double and a sacrifice.

Schultz's crew tied the count at three all in the sixth on successive two baggers by May, Trout and Silcot. The Pirates again went ahead in their half of the sixth when Henderson, a pinch hitter, drove the ball through Goodwin's fingers for a fluke homer with one man on.

Koenigsmark suffered a two-inch gash in his left leg in the eighth inning when he passed the Galveston first sacker on his way to second. He tripped on Schliebner's spikes as the latter was fielding a grounder.

Schupp's Hurling Features as Cards Lose to Athletics

Southpaw Pitches Five Innings and Holds Mackmen to Only Three Safeties.

REINHART DONATES GAME

American Leaguers Come From Behind and Nose Out Rickey's Crew, 2 to 1.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 27.—Although the Athletics nosed out the Cardinals 2—1 in today's game and tied up the elongated series, six games to six, there was much consolation in the defeat, if such a thing is possible.

Ferdinand M. Schupp, the famous southpaw, made his debut of the season, and for five innings pitched as the Schupp of 1917, when he was the hero of the New York Giants, and pitched McGraw's team to the National League championship.

Schupp was injected into the pastime rather unexpectedly. Manager Branch Rickey had given no warning that he would use the left-hander, save to state casually a few days ago that on the next warm day Schupp would get a chance.

It wasn't as warm as some of the days in the Rio Grande Valley, but Rickey told Schupp to warm up. He showed a lot of stuff in the preliminary practice, and a whole lot more when he was turned loose against the Mackless Mackmen.

Walks Two Men to Start.

Things did not look promising at the kickoff, as he passed the first two batters to face him. Galloway, the first hitter, got as far as second base when Strunk also coaxed four wide balls. However, neither advanced any farther as the next two hitters expired on easy fly balls and the third hit a grounder to Hornsby.

Schupp improved as he went along. Three hits, one each in the second, third and fourth, were made off him and he closed his trail in a blaze of glory by striking out Kinney, Galloway and Capt. Strunk, who faced him in the fifth frame. The two passes that Schupp dished out at the beginning of the game were the only walks off the lefthander.

During Schupp's regime on the mound, Walter Kinney served for the Athletics and dished out a row of five blanks. In the waning innings, Artie Reinhart, the former Houston star, and Ed Rommel, the ex-International Leaguer, were the pitchers.

The Cardinals gave Reinhart a one-run lead in the seventh, but he was unable to hold this and permitted two runs to score in the eighth, giving the Mackmen the second and what proved to be the winning run.

The Cardinals again out-hit the Athletics. There were 40 chances for the Knot-Holers to sew up the game, but the breaks went against the Rickeymen.

Doak to Oppose Harris.

Tomorrow's game will be pitched by Bryan Harris, the $5000 beauty bought from Houston by Connie Mack, and Willie Doak, the Cardinals' veteran spitter.

Janvrin got three hits out of four times up. Fournier came through with two blows, one a neat double.

Hornsby didn't get a hit, although he cracked the ball hard. Once with two men on in the sixth, he slammed out what looked like a double, but Galloway in running over to cover second, dashed into the liner and a double play resulted.

Connie Mack had promised to rejoin his club here today, but did not show up.

A large crowd of Houstonians turned out for the matinee and as Harris, the former local favorite, is to pitch tomorrow, a better crowd is expected.

FEW CHANGES MADE IN TENNIS RANKINGS BY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

NEW YORK, March 27.—Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia will retain his ranking of No. 5 in the rating of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, according to an announcement made following a meeting of the Executive Committee at the Hotel Vanderbilt, which was in session from 10 o'clock this morning until late this afternoon.

R. N. Williams of Boston will therefore remain No. 6, while Howard Voshell of Brooklyn, because of his victory over Johnson in the Davis Cup matches, moved up from No. 14 to No. 12. Nathaniel Niles is placed at No. 13 and Willis Davis at No. 14.

Other changes announced were those of Alexander Iler and Dr. William Rosenbaum. The former is moved down to 50 from a previous 49 and the latter, due to his defeat of Iler in the Edgemere tournament, is advanced from 108 to 90.

The Ranking Committee was empowered at the annual meeting to revise the ratings which were at that time announced. Since then the members had been going over the various records, with the foregoing results.

Samuel Hardy, secretary of the Davis Cup Committee, made his report, in which he said the American team, which will play the South African team in the first draw in the Davis Cup competition, will leave New York for England on June 1. It will return here some time in August, and if victorious will leave these shores for the Australian contests on Nov. 1.

WEINERT IS FIRST U. S. BOXER TO CHALLENGE GEORGES CARPENTIER

NEW YORK, March 27.—The line of challengers of Georges Carpentier, the French champion, started to form yesterday. Charlie Weinert, once one of the most promising of the light-heavies, got to the Biltmore early and hurled the first one. Weinert was modest and liberal. He declared that he did not want a dime to box Carpentier. In fact, Weinert is willing to sacrifice himself as a sort of trial horse.

The offer was communicated to M. Deschamps, Carpentier's manager, who was not impressed by it.

William Roche is waiting for Carpentier to get his bearings before challenging him on behalf of Gene Tunney, the ex-Marine, who made such a good showing with the bayonet and the gloves when he was with the A. E. F.

Murchison Equals World Record in Invitation Dash

N. Y. A. C. Flyer Caught at 5 1-5 Seconds by Three of Five Timers.

HENNINGS WINS HESS 880

Tollman, Principia Runner, Springs Surprise in Capturing Title Sprint.

Loren Murchison, the former St. Louis sprinter, holder of the National A. A. U. indoor 60 and 300 yard championships, who is now competing under the colors of the New York Athletic Club, tied the world's record for the 50-yard dash, when he negotiated the distance in 5 1-5 seconds in the invitation event of the third annual Municipal Indoor Carnival at the Coliseum last night.

Three of the five watches caught Murchison in the record time of 5 1-5 seconds.

The standard equalled by Murchison last night was established by Joe Loomis of Chicago, on the Colsiseum track March 25, 1916.

In this event, which was the feature of the meet, there were five starters. Murchison finished two strides ahead of Irwin Mahl, the Japri A. A. flyer and local champion, while Bill Bremser was third. Tollman and McCammon, the latter of the Japri A. A. were the other contenders.

Murchison also made his appearance in the Commercial relay race, for the Wagner trophy, running with the Finck team.

Meet Financial Success.

The attendance was estimated at 3000, and there were about 2000 performers, representing 42 organizations, who participated in the athletic events and other features. While no announcement was made in regard to the finances, officials stated that the carnival was the most successful ever staged. It was estimated that something like $1000 would be cleared.

The Japri A. A. team with a total of 21 points gained the first leg on the Municipal Indoor Carnival trophy. Washington U. was second with 15, while St. Louis U., with five was third.

McKinley High School gained its second leg on the Washington University challenge trophy, put into competition for the interscholastic stars last season, with 26 points. Central was second with 14; Soldan counted 8, Cleveland 3 and Kirkwood 2.

Soldan Star Captures 880.

The Hess 880, the feature race on the program for the interscholastic stars, was won by Hennings of Soldan. The West End runner took the lead 100 yards after the start and held it throughout. Runge of Kirkwood finished second, and on the final lap cut Hennings' lead from 30 to 10 yards.

A real surprise was sprung in the municipal championship 50-yard dash, when Tollman, a Principia Academy athlete, and a "dark horse," breasted the tape first in 5 2-5 seconds. In this event, Bremser, who finished third, and Andewert, both running under the colors of Washington University, were set back for false starts.

After allowing Hoagland of Washington to set the pace for about two-thirds of the race, Al Boeddeker came from behind and captured the municipal 440-yard championship in the fast time of 54 4-5 seconds. Bob Probst by a great burst of speed in the last 40 yards finished second. Boeddeker's victory is his second in as many years.

Probst Retains His Title.

Bob Probst, Japri A. A., retained his half-mile championship by defeating Tremlett and Schultz, a pair of Washington University runners. Ryan, representing St. Louis U., who formerly attended Catholic U. at Washington, D. C., took the high jump with a leap of 70 inches. Creimer was second with 69.

In the high school relay race, McKinley was the winner, mainly through the great work of Van Sickle. Central started off in the lead, but was nosed out at the finish. Harvey, anchor man for the mid-city team, collapsed.

In the captain ball game for girls, Meramec nosed out Camarems, 7 points to 6. The Mark Twains defeated the Unions, 22 to 18, at volley ball.

Washington University landed the municipal relay championship by finishing 12 yards ahead of the Japri A. A. team. Concordia Seminary was third, almost a lap behind. Irwin Mahl, the Japri A. A. sprinter, took a lead of five yards over Drake of Washington, but Andewert overcame this and went 12 ahead of McCammon. Leffler and Bremser held the margin over Calhound and Boeddeker. The time was 2:20 3-5.

CORNELL VICTOR OVER MICHIGAN IN INDOOR TRACK MEET, 46 TO 40

ITHACA, N. Y., March 27.—Cornell University defeated Michigan in a dual indoor track meet here tonight. The East triumphed over the West by the close score of 46 to 40.

Particularly interesting was the meeting of Johnson of Michigan and Smith of Cornell, Western and Eastern hurdle champions, in the 70-yard low hurdle event. The rivals ran neck to neck to the finish, Johnson breasting the tape by a narrow margin. His time of 7 4-5 seconds came within one-fifth of a second of equaling the world's record.

Cornell showed strength in the distance runs, winning the mile run and 880-yard dash. Smith of Cornell finished first in the 75-yard high hurdles, but was disqualified as he tipped over two hurdles. Michigan took all three places in the pole vault.

Track Meet on May 1.

PEORIA, Ill., March 27.—The annual Bradley Institute interscholastic track and field meet will be held Saturday, May 1, it was announced today. More than 75 Middle Western High School teams will compete.

Gas Going Up.

THE curfew tolls the knell of our Tin Lizzie,
And puts a crimp in all the joy of living.
The price of gasoline has made us dizzy
And made prohibitive the cost of flivving.

There'll be a dearth of flivvers in the parks,
From Tower Grove to Forest and O'Fallon;
Joy riders will cut out their little

When gasoline is fifty cents a gallon.

SAWING WOOD.

"YOU are old, Kaiser William,"
the young man cried,
"But you're out sawing wood every day.
You don't have to do it, your living to earn,
So what is the reason, I pray?"

"To tell you the truth," Kaiser William replied,
"I've always been misunderstood.
Since a voice in affairs of the world
I'm denied
There is nothing to do but saw wood."

QUITE SO.

After trimming the Aces the Browns should have no trouble with the Cards.

When Fred Logan, a negro policeman of Lawrence, Kan., who was driving a wagon along a narrow road, didn't yield enough of the road to let Willard pass in his auto, Willard, so Logan claims, called him names and challenged him to fight, for which breach of said Logan's peace said Willard was pinched. From all of which we gather that Jess doesn't draw the color line as he did immediately after trimming Mr. Johnson.

According to an Eastern expert, all the Cardinals lack is good pitchers. Well, they've got at least one Goodwin.

Would that make poor old Nat turn over in his grave?

CINCINNATI, O., March 27.—Lee Magee, former Chicago National League player, through his attorney, Robert S. Alcorn, has made his formal charges about baseball and gambling. "I have sent President Heydler," said Alcorn today, "statements naming four National League players in the baseball gambling stories of which so much has been rumored, and it is u pto Mr. Heydler now."

"At present," Alcorn added, "I do not wish to make further announcements, nor can I reveal the names of the players. I'll say that men in uniform and in active service are included. Mr. Heydler, in a recent statement, said that no charges had been made either by or against Lee Magee.

"I have written Mr. Heydler along the lines already mentioned. While a great deal more could be said, it would not be good policy to do so just now—let it go at that, and we'll all await further developments."

"Not a word to say," remarked Lee Magee. "I'm entirely in the hands of my attorney, and will not make any further statements till he permits me to do so."

Washington Nine Defeats McKinley In Practice Tilt

Marquard's Hurling Is Pleasing Feature of Pikers' 14-8 Victory Over School Team.

The Washington University baseball nine opened its season schedule yesterday afternoon by defeating the McKinley High School team, 14 to 8, in a loosly played game at Francis Field. The meeting was used as a practice contest, Coaches Shiek and Works trying out virtually every man on their squads.

The Pikers had things pretty much their own way until the eighth inning when their leaders sent a squad of reserves into the field, and there began an orgie of errors. The collegian pitchers, Lyon and Marquard, allowing only six hits. Misplays enabled the McKinley athletes to score.

On the other hand the Washington hitters had a field day, slugging the South Side hurlers for 15 safeties, including a double, triple and home run. The Piker base runners also ran wild on Shillig and Haley for a total of 12 base thefts.

Probably the most pleasing thing to Catch Works was the manner in which Marquard deported himself on the pitching mound. The rangy Piker has a world of stuff, but has been unable heretofore to show much control. Yesterday he was serving up an effective assortment of stuff and did not show a tendency to wildness at any time.

The score:

Four Young Stars On Brown Roster Praised by Quinn

Business Manager Speaks Highly of Burwell, Davis, Collins and Mullen.

That the Browns have picked up four young players who are destined to help the Burkemen in the 1920 pennant struggle is the opinion of Bob Quinn, business manager of the club, who has just returned from Texas. The tossers in question are Bill Burwell and Frank (Dixie) Davis, pitchers; Pat Collins, catcher, and Bill Mullen, infielder.

"I think that in Burwell the Browns have a young pitcher who will be heard from before the season is many months old," said Quinn. "Burwell last year pitched in the Western League, where he made a good record. He has been showing up well in the practice tilts. What's more, he is a good batter, hitting from the left side of the plate, and can be used as a pinch batter.

"Davis, the right-hander we obtained from Louisville, is living up to all the good things that were said about him and right now is ready to take his turn on the hill and go the full route at a fast pace. In my opinion, Davis will be one of Burke's regular flingers this year.

Collins an Improved Player.

"Pat Collins is a greatly improved ballplayer over what he showed here after he was brought up from Joplin last fall. He is hitting the ball hard and probably will be one of Burke's leading pinch batters for 1920.

"This youngster Mullen, who played semi-professional baseball in this city last year, should develop into one of the best third sackers in the national pastime. Of course he is still green, but he shows all the earmarks of a coming star. He handles himself well both at bat and in the field."

However, Quinn was not only enthusiastic over this quartet of newcomers, but over all the other members of the club. He stated that Allan Sothoron and Urban Shocker, Burke's ace righthanders, were ready to twirl championship ball right now. Gallia, the other veteran righthander, was late in reporting and will need more time to get into condition.

Bayne Underweight.

Quinn is of the opinion that the early showing of Bill Bayne, the young lefthander, should not be held against him too harshly. According to Quinn, Bayne, who was just recovering from an attack of influenza, reported to Burke against his doctor's orders and consequently was 15 pounds underweight. Even when he arrived at Taylor he did not say anything and after pitching about 15 minutes was ready to fall over. Only then, when approached by Bob Coleman, who was working with the team, did Bayne tell of his recent illness.

Horace Leveretta, the veteran righthander, who last season pitched the Wichita Twin team of Minneapolis in the Midwest Municipal championship, is another who is expected to come through.

When asked who would be the regular third sacker for the Browns this season, the Browns' business manager said as follows:

"Well, I would not be too sure about that. Schepner has been doing great work and he may replace Austin before the season opens. However, I figure that Burke will carry Schepner as a reserve infielder through the season."

Williams a Better Player.

Concerning the veterans, Quinn stated that Kenneth Williams, the big center fielder, who batted .300 in 1919, was a 50-per-cent better ball player this spring than last year. Bill Jacobson has been slow in rounding into his 1919 batting stride, but will be ready when the season opens. Walter Gerber's work at short also drew praise, while Sisler and Gedeon are the same reliable tossers.

Quinn stated that he had heard nothing direct from Carl Wellman, the southpaw, but that the pitcher had written to Burke, telling him that he had regained his health. The business manager stated he would not be surprised to see Wellman report when the team returns home next Thursday.

Bad weather all through the South has handicapped all the clubs in the training camps this spring.

MERGER OF THREE TENNIS ASSOCIATIONS WILL HELP BOOST SPORT LOCALLY

There is now complete harmony in local tennis affairs. For the past several seasons the work of boosting the game in this city has been divided between three organizations with somewhat different ideas. Delegates from the St. Louis Tennis Association, the Municipal Tennis Association and the Central States Tennis Association have joined hands and formed the St. Louis District Tennis Association. This new organization, representing every tennis interest in the city, will be the governing power in St. Louis and vicinity subject to the authority of the Missouri Valley (Sectional) and the U. S. Lawn Tennis Associations.

Dr. George Rice of the Individual Membership Committee of the former St. Louis Association, stated last night that all applications for individual sustaining membership would be transferred to the new district association. Until further notice all applications for this membership should be forwarded to Dr. George H. Rice, 3569 Page boulevard. Memberships cost $1 each, and are good for the entire year.

Two Americans Help Oxford Win Dual Track Meet

H. S. White Victor in High Jump While L. J. Feather Leads in Hammer Throw.

LONDON, March 27.—Two American Rhodes scholars helped Oxford materially in defeating Cambridge here this afternoon in the first dual inter-'varsity track and field games to be held by the rival universities since March, 1914. The final score was: Oxford, 5½ events; Cambridge, 4½ events. First places only counting in the meet.

H. S. White, formerly of Bowdoin College, won the running high jump for Oxford at 5 feet 7 inches and immediately followed with an exhibition jump in which he added two inches to his performance. L. J. Feather, an American Rhodes scholar, won the hammer throw for the dark blues with a throw of 100 feet 11 inches. This was the one upset of the meet for Oxford had expected to win the place with Noakes, who had been throwing the hammer better than 110 feet in preliminary trials.

B. G. D. Rudd from South Africa, was also a strong factor in the Oxford victory, winning the half-mile run in 1m. 57 2-5s, and running a dead heat with Butler of Cambridge, in the 440-yard dash in the excellent time of 49 3-5 seconds. Abrahams of Cambridge, was the only double winner of the day, capturing both the 100-yard sprint and the broad jump. There were no notable performences, considered from a record standard, except of Montague of Oxford, in the three-mile race. His time of 14m. 45 4-5s. from the previous track record.

The games were held at the historic Queens' Club grounds and attracted a great gathering of spectators.

The result of the Oxford-Cambridge track meet has added interest to followers of American athletics in view of the fact that a combined team from the two famous English universities will compete in the relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia April 30 and May 1.

The results follow:

440-YARD DASH—Dead heat between Rudd, Oxford, and Butler, Cambridge. Time 49 3-5 seconds.

RUNNING HIGH JUMP—Won by H. S. White, Oxford (Rhodes scholar from Bowdoin College, U. S.). Height, 5 ft. 7 in.

PUTTING WEIGHT (16-pound shot)—Won by Woods, Cambridge. Distance, 40 ft. 9 in.

100-YARD DASH—Won by Abrahams, Cambridge. Time, 10 seconds flat.

120-YARD HURDLES—Won by Jeppe, Oxford. Time, 16 3-5 seconds.

ONE-MILE RUN—Won by Stallard, Cambridge. Time 4 minutes 27 3-5 seconds.

RUNNING BROAD JUMP—Won by Abrahams, Cambridge. Distance, 22 ft. 7 in.

THREE-MILE RUN—Won by Montague, Oxford. Time, 14 minutes, 45 3-5 seconds.

16-POUND HAMMER THROW—Won by L. J. Feather, Oxford (Rhodes scholar from University of Utah, U. S.). Distance, 100 ft. 11 in.

HALF-MILE RUN—Won by Rudd, Oxford. Time, 1 minute, 57 2-5 seconds.

Cambridge Victor Over Oxford Crew

Record Crowd Sees English Rowing Classic—Victors Were 5-4 Favorites.

LONDON, March 27.—Cambridge beat Oxford in England's favorite aquatic event before probably the largest concourse of people which ever witnessed a British boat race. The betting was five to four in favor of Cambridge, although until this week Oxford with the advantage of two veteran Australian rowers who are Rhodes scholars, was the favorite.

Cambridge won the toss, took the sheltered side of the river and never allowed the dark blues to get a nose ahead of them throughout the four miles. The light blues led by a length at the half mile post, but Oxford reduced the lead to half a length at the mile mark. Cambridge led by two lengths at the half way post, and by three lengths when three miles had been covered. Oxford made a hard spurt in the last half mile, cutting down Cambridge's lead, but finally fell back to four lengths.

Duck Hunting on Big Lake, Ark.

Sportsman Paints Dramatic Picture of Day's Expedition to Sunken Lands, Where Mark et Hunters Made Big Killings.

By John B. Thompson.

There was a summer warmth clinging to the Sunken Lands. Insects droned, and garrulous little straw-green marsh frogs, that conformed in coloration to the fall-stricken flag and saw grass, held sway continuously. Hunting coats were uncomfortable until the wind shifted and brought a cooling message from the northwest. The gradual termination of Little River into Big Lake and its scatters had an aspect conspicuously weird, yet not devoid of a beauty peculiarly its own, with the dead foliage of gums, cottonwood and cypress enhancing it. There was something about the immensity of the inundation, and the ghastly nakedness of water-killed timber in places that for awhile my attention was lured from sport.

The overflow, which I first entered, reminded me of a restless sea, when the great meadows of flag, coarse moss and tall smartwood gave a play of resistance against the slightest breeze.

The ways of the duck boat were legion. The native knew when to interpret the slightest parting of the flag as a passageway for the shallow-draft light craft which he pushed forward with his long slender paddle. The face of my guide was emotionless, except for a smile that bordered on contempt as I acknowledged my confusion over his selection of routes to the ducking grounds. A dull light brown was his face—the swamp taint, it was—like the falling hickory leaves, and of so simple an expression, it was almost sinister. His long, tapering fingers showed the wrinkles and whiteness which constant contact with water will give, but they exhibited none of the callousness which is the consequence of hard labor.

Gunfire could be heard in all directions. Suddenly it dawned on me that I would rather watch the hunter than shoot ducks. To Bill, my guide, I imparted this, and in response he grunted acquiescence, and then laid on more laboriously with the paddle.

The Market Hunter at Work.

After a moment the duck boat glided into an opening. I could see divers sets of live decoys, perfectly trained fellows without the inhibitive cord and anchor, feeding within 15 yards or more of the flag blinds. A flock of mallards appeared above the banding tree tops, then falling into the enticing lay of the skilled native caller, they set for a pitch near the first blind. Only then I saw the hunter, as the staccato of his pump gun drew my eyes there. Some ducks fell. I saw him nonchalantly push his boat to the kill, and aware that his boat could contain but few more ducks, he picked up the dead ducks, left the decoys there, and proceeded to a dock, where we followed him.

So I, in the path of the market hunter we went, Bill calling to him now and then in a bantering way. And then we struck a pathway in the flag, which ended at a duck buyers' dock. On it was heaped a mountain of ducks. More ducks than I had ever seen piled together in all my life! The 115, which market hunter disposed of at 25 cents each to the buyer from the East, seemed but an insignificant number in comparison.

None commented on the pile of dead ducks. I withheld speech. The market hunter returned to his boat, and with a new supply of shells paddled back to the scene of his former activities.

One Type of Sportsman.

Bill pushed me on until I tired of the repetitions of the performance. I intrusted to my guide that I wanted to see the sportsman shooting, and he led me to him. His performance was about the same, not quite so deadly, but he shone as though he were obsessed with but one motive, and that to kill as many ducks as he could. On that day the only difference I could distinguish between the market hunter and the man with the self-imposed title of sportsman was, the former limited himself to a variety of ducks, and the latter limited himself to neither varieties nor numbers.

All day long we followed in the lair of ducks, and for the life of me amidst the big continuous flight of ducks and the noise of the shoot I could stir up no desire to kill. Duck boat after duck boat we passed, each laden to the water topheavy with its burden of dead ducks. One hunter had a sense of grim humor about him—possibly without his being aware of it—for on top of his load of dead strutted upright a number of live decoys vociferously proclaiming their share in the accomplishment.

Once in a while I tried to interview a market hunter. The majority of them were sullen, and responded nothings in forced monotones. One or more laughed, when Bill advised them that I had come to shoot and would not shoot. One tapped his head with a gory finger, as significant of his faith in my mental unsoundness. Another shrilled back reproachfully: "Club Man?"

Ducks on the Feed.

Just then I thought I would enjoy a pass. It might be sport there, when at another kind of a ducking ground it is often considered the reverse. Still I decided on it. Bill mentioned a pass, and we went to it. It was too late in the day, however, and the ducks were now back in the woods on their feeds. Would I like to see a feed? Sure, nothing would please me more! My guide knew of one a round pond back in the timber which was skirted with a profuseness of smart weed. Thither we went, creeping with excessive caution. Now and then a noise escaped us as our little craft grated crisply against the dry rushes.

We were on the feed before the ducks were aware of our presence. I looked out into the pond as Bill pointed to it with his fingers. He might as well have spared himself of the effort. The noise of mallards was indescribable. As for numbers they were beyond count or estimate. The way they were flattened out they resembled an immense army of restless turtles more than anything else I could think of. Apparently there was not room for more, still each second additional ducks were pouring in on the feed, and jamming a way for their repast. In a moment a mallard hen and three green-headed attendants swam almost to the side of the boat. They were so startled at our invasion, for the nonce they were without signs of flight.

It was I who made the mistake. I reached out my hand to touch one, then they jumped out of the water, the hen quacking her reveberating alarm call. And then I used the 20-gauge once, dropping one drake. The entire swamp was on wing, and the colored animation so resplendent amidst the sodden environments departed. Immediately I regretted my rash act, for once more from the blinds on the lake I heard the murderous reports of the magazine guns!

Dusk was approaching. Bands of wildfowl passed the stark timber in moving miniature silhouettes bathing in the red and gold lights, the parting benison of the setting sun. The flight of squawking, ungainly, sluggish green herons seemed endless. From the east came the noise of the discharge of many guns. We paddled with all our might to a great flag opening, just as the sun surrendered its light-giving office to a big yellow moon, that magnified the trees into outrageous proportions.

Burning of the Roost.

Thousands of ducks were circling at the roosts, but the death-dealing gunners were there to keep them away. We came to the first roost while a skyline of weak vermillion was yet visible. I could see the gunners. You can be sure they were not market gunners, but sportsmen from the metropolis across the Big River. They saw me and invited me to join in the slaughter. Yes, five of them! Their guns flashed so rapidly I could not begin to count the time between shots. I saw flock after flock circle and dip, and then rise into the moonlight with many missing. Right then I could not have killed a duck, if it had meant that it was my last shot on earth at ducks. It was too much for one day even for an old hunter like myself! It was all so appalling it sickened!

On arrival at my debarking place the assembled natives commented on my lack of success—an unbelievable occurrence on Big Lake when a flight was on—and Bill looked quite long at my sole mallard. But Bill made no remark. As I shook his hand it had a warmer feeling and tenser clasp than when I first met him; and when the parting salutation was muttered, I was positive I beheld a new glint from his eyes. Was Bill seeing my view of the subject?

Penn Five Wins Basketball Title

PRINCETON, N. J., March 27.—The University of Pennsylvania won the college basketball championship of the United States here tonight, by defeating the University of Chicago, 23 to 21 in the deciding contest of a three-game series. Chicago won the first games in its home cage last Monday night and Pennsylvania the second in Philadelphia Thursday night.

The game tonight was one of the fastest and best played contests seen here this year. Pennsylvania took the lead at the start and maintained it throughout, although the Westerners constantly threatened to overtake the Quakers.

The first half was full of good passing, but poor shooting kept the score down. At half time Pennsylvania led, 11 to 7. Shortly after the start of the second half Chicago cut down this lead to three points, but Pennsylvania rallied strongly and ran the score up to 22 to 13. With six minutes left to play Chicago staged a brilliant rally, but it was cut short by the final whistle.

City and Suburban Property Vacant and Improved

13-STORY BUILDING TO BE ERECTED AT GRAND AND LUCAS

Famous Players Missouri Corporation Formed to Build $1,350,000 Apartment Structure.

By Berry Moore.

The Famous Players' Missouri corporation has been formed as a subsidiary to the Famous-Players-Lasky Corporation to erect a 13-story fireproof apartment building at the southeast corner of Grand and Lucas avenues to cost about $1,350,000.

The structure will comprise 199 apartments of three and five room efficiency and will be of the hotel combination type to be leased, furnished or unfurnished. There will be many attractive features, including a sumptuously appointed lobby and roof garden, and everything in vogue in the ultra high-class apartment hotel. The crowning feature will be a roof garden on a pretentious scale.

The foundation is already in for this building, which will have a frontage of 129 feet on Grand avenue and 140 feet on Lucas avenue. The site is part of the grounds of the former Catholic High School for girls, having a frontage of 129 feet on Grand avenue, by 340 feet on Lucas avenue, and recently sold by the Mercantile Trust Co. to the Famous-Players Corporation, which is now erecting on the east part of the lot a $750,000 theater for motion pictures. The Missouri corporation is capitalized at $2,000,000, covering the cost of the two buildings.

Will Be 13 Stories.

According to the new zone scheme, the height of buildings on this part of Grand avenue, is limited to 80 feet, the width of the street, but a special permit is to be issued to the Famous-Players Corporation for the erection of a building 160 feet high, which will be 13 stories including the first floor, which will be 13 feet high, exclusive of the basement. Provisions are to be made on the first floor for a smart cafe.

The Famous Players Lasky Corporation recently obtained an option to purchase the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets, owned by the First National Bank, for $1,250,000, for a building to be 250 feet high, or from 22 to 25 stories, but its plans in this instance are being held in abeyance by the zoning ordinance which restricts height of buildings at this intersection to 150 feet. The City Plan Commission has this project under consideration, but the indications are that it will not be favorably acted upon, although pressure is being brought by business interests in its behalf. The building projected for this corner would embrace a theater and several hundred offices, and would cost $3,000,000 to $4,000,000, exclusive of the site, embracing a quarter of a block.

Realty Executive Here.

Mat Goldstein of New York, who is the real estate executive of the Famous Players Lasky Corporation was in St. Louis last week in this connection. The corporation's interests in St. Louis are in the hands of F. L. Cornwell, its local counsel, who obtained the option to buy the Seventh and Locust corner, originally acquired for a site for a building for the First National Bank.

The transcendent feature of the week in realty was the sale for $1,965,000 of the Third National Bank building, occupying a quarter of a block at the southwest corner of Broadway and Olive streets, owned by the First National Bank, to a syndicate composed of men closely identified with the Central National Bank, which financial establishment will occupy the first floor of the building, formerly occupied by the Third National Bank, absorbed by the First National, now at the southwest corner of Broadway and Locust. The sale was made through Paul Jones & Co. Paul Jones Jr. arranging the details of the transaction.

BIG DEMAND FOR LOTS IN MOTOR HEIGHTS REPORTED

Locations on St. Louis Avenue Held Forth by Promoters as Particularly Advantageous for Business Purposes.

"In spite of the inclement weather of the last week," said Earl Watkins, manager of the Davis Realty Development Co., yesterday, "our sales at Motor Heights have continued above expectations.

"While it is, of course, true that a number of our previous purchasers have taken advantage of offerings at Motor Heights, yet we are daily receiving inquiry by mail, by phone and in person at our offices from prospective purchasers who almost invariably become buyers, and with whom we have not previously done business. This, to my mind, conclusively proves that the builder and investor of St. Louis are alive to the wonderful opportunity presented in well located business and apartment site property in the new industrial district.

"The feature of this week's business," added Watkins, "has been the growing demand and number of sales closed for business property fronting on St. Louis and Goodfellow avenues. St. Louis avenue has been laid out 80 feet in width to properly allow for the extension of the Cass avenue car line through Motor Heights with ample driving space on either side of the car tracks. Goodfellow avenue being the next important cross street north of Union avenue, bids fair to equal if not surpass St. Louis avenue as a business thoroughfare. It is seldom, if ever, that as much real business frontage is found on a tract the size of Motor Heights, and the present low price at which we are offering it will of a certainty shortly close it out. We have placed nearly two-thirds of the entire subdivision under sales contract within three weeks, and confidently expect a few more days of even halfway decent weather and the opportunity to purchase from the original owners and subdividers of Motor Heights will be a thing of the past."

The Davis Company also reports an active inquiry and a number of sales closed at Maryland terrace, over $26,000 of frontage having been disposed of within the week to persons who will erect homes the coming season. Railroad officials and industrial executives, recent arrivals in St. Louis, are among the purchasers in this exclusive and beautiful subdivision. Vinita terrace and Vinita Park also have produced more than their usual volume of business the last week.

$2,000,000 LOAN FOR CHEMICAL FIRM

Monsanto Company Makes Transaction, First Mortgage Bonds Being Issued.

The largest loan placed on record during the week was for $2,000,000 on the East St. Louis works and site of the Monsanto Chemical Co. in favor of the Mercantile Trust Co. It is dated March 1, 1920, and is in the form of 7 per cent first mortgage bonds of denominations of $500 and $1000, maturing $1000 semi-annually March 1, 1921 to 1930. The instrument covers all the real estate, plants and equipment of the company, the assets of which after deducting all current liabilities, are $4,700,000, while its net earnings for the last five years have averaged $635,000 per annum, accordinng to Hugh H. Powers, vice president of the company.

The Antikamnia Remedy Co., of which Frank A. Ruf is president, purchased $250,000 United States Government Victory notes through the Mercantile Trust Co., of which he is a director.

Nat Parker, who, for more than 10 years served as a paying teller of the trust company, has entered the bond department of the Mercantile, of which Sidney Maestre is manager and Festus J. Krebbs, assistant manager.

EFFICIENCY BUNGALOWS IN KENWOOD SPRINGS OFFERED

The Bottorff Realty Co. is offering some attractive five-room efficiency bungalows at Kenwood Springs, erected by A. A. Fischer, builder and architect, on ground acquired from Herman C. G. Luyties, president of the Sanitol Chemical Laboratory, who laid out the subdivision.

The houses are exceptionally well constructed and embody many novel features. They are being offered on liberal terms and at comparatively low prices. The location is only a few blocks west of the Natural Bridge road industrial district, Kenwood Springs being situated on the Kirkwood-Ferguson line only a short way from Wellston.

SPRING SELLING CAMPAIGN IN SHREWSBURY PARK OPENED

The Balsoon Realty Co. has opened its spring drive at Shrewsbery Park under the direction of Prettyman & Knoblock. The tract is situated just-northwest of University Heights, forming part of University City, and is essentially a high class residential section. A number of lots of this plat were disposed of during the last week, the indications being that this addition, which was laid out by the late W. L. Balson and which has become the site of many attractive homes, will be closed out in rapid order.

OIL MEN BUY BUILDING AND ADJOINING TRACT ON DUNCAN

The George Bergfeld Realty Co. reports the sale of the building at 3925 Duncan avenue, having a frontage of 50 feet on Duncan avenue by a depth of 94 feet to the Wabash switch, and a triangular tract immediately adjoining on the east, which contains about 8500 square feet on the same switch, to William J. Parrish and Andrew J. Lindsay, both of The Power Oil Co. The property will be used for the receiving, shipping and storage of their product.

Kauffman Back From New York.

R. King Kauffman, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co., and C. Sewell Thomas, have returned from New York where they went in an effort to get "Temtor," (Temtor Fruit and Provisions stock) listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Kauffman and Thomas were prominent in the formation of this corporation.

NATURAL BRIDGE ROAD ACREAGE FOR HOMES

Sites on Tract to Be Sold by Knoblock & Prettyman on Easy Installment Plan.

A notable feature of the week was the purchase by T. A. Knoblock and Harry E. Prettyman of 40.61 acres having a frontage on Natural Bridge road of 2000 feet, and bounded on the west by Lucas and Hunt road, for a reported price of $145,000.

The tract is to be subdivided into lots 50x150 feet, to be sold on a liberal installment plan. The location is only a short distance west of the new industrial subdivision on the north side of Natural Bridge road, extending from King's highway to Goodfellow avenue. It lies at a fine elevation and is suitable for subdivision purposes. The tract is opposite the Natural Bridge road home of L. C. Nelson, and of W. S. Ireland.

The grantor in the transaction was the Johnson Land Co. of Kansas City, which acquired the tract from the Goodfellow heirs. The tract was obtained by Knoblock and Prettyman only after sharp competition.

As agents for General Motors Park No. 1 and No. 2, Industrial Park and other additions of this district, Prettyman and Knoblock have disposed of more than $500,000 worth of ground in small lots in this district, representing in these dealings A. R. Schollmeyer, the former president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange; the Dosenbach Real Estate Co., and the Jennings Heights Real Estate Co. They operate a force of 75 salesmen. Prettyman came here from Detroit, where he was a subdivision operator on a large scale.

TWO-FAMILY APARTMENT AT 4941 PARKVIEW PLACE SOLD

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. reports the sale of the two-family apartment building, 4941 Parkview place, for Herman Stone to J. P. Coreney. The building is directly opposite St. John's Hospital. The first floor contains six rooms, two baths and sun parlor and the second floor eight rooms, two baths and sun parlor. The purchaser will occupy one of the apartments.

Sales Reported by A. T. Terry.

Albert T. Terry & Co. report having passed the final papers in the sale of 55 acres of the Creveling tract on the north side of Clayton road, west of the Country Club road, from Mrs. Annie Creveling and Miss Amy Creveling to Joseph Pulitzer Jr., who by this purchase increases his present holdings, at this location, which include his home, to 50 acres.

DAVIS REALTY'S Motor Heights

Goodfellow and Union Avs.

The Coming Business Center of the New Industrial District

Close to the plants yet surrounded by the homes of the men who work here, we have named Motor Heights

THE APARTMENT HOUSE LOCATION of the NEW INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT

ITS PROMINENT BUSINESS THOROUGHFARES will shortly be teeming with commercial activity—the Bank—the Theater—the Department Store will locate on its prominent corners.

THIS IS OUR MESSAGE TO YOU
Buy St. Louis Avenue Lots, and Buy Now. That at their present price they are a splendid purchase, we know.

St. Louis Avenue Is one of the main arteries of travel from the center of St. Louis direct to the Industrial District. The Cass avenue car line on this avenue will shortly be extended through Motor Heights and beyond.

Goodfellow Avenue Is the next prominent crosstown thoroughfare above Union avenue—bisects the factory locations east and west—runs through the thickly built-up residential section immediately surrounding Motor Heights, where the men will live who work in the plants, and is therefore THE LOGICAL LOCATION FOR THE NEXT CROSSTOWN CAR LINE, which beyond question will be installed to care for the tremendous travel of the tens of thousands of employes going to and from their work.

St. Louis and Goodfellow Avenues in the near future will be two of the best business streets in the entire new industrial section

In emphatic distinction to other sections of our city, where the public utility corporations only FOLLOW density of population, the magnitude, the enormity of this district, is so apparent—so certain of immediate returns—that the street car company is eagerly looking for franchises to enable THEM TO REACH THE PLANTS. The city is now mapping out extensive sewer and water extensions—we, at great expense to ourselves, at the city's suggestion, laid out St. Louis avenue 80 feet in width to PROPERLY CARE FOR the Cass avenue car line extension, with ample side driveways, so that GOOD TRANSPORTATION—MODERN CITY CONVENIENCES—FULLY IMPROVED AND PAVED AVENUES—WILL BE AVAILABLE HERE in the immediate future, and MOTOR HEIGHTS will be a compactly built APARTMENT district with two prominent business thoroughfares; St. Louis avenue bisecting it—Goodfellow avenue its western boundary—while some other sections of the city will still be looking forward to these important improvements, which SPELL ADDED VALUE TO EVERY FOOT OF PROPERTY within its boundaries.

We positively predict that our present low prices on MOTOR HEIGHTS BUSINESS FRONTAGE will double shortly.

We still have just a few of those fine apartment and residence sites on Labadie and Greer avenues at the original money-making prices. But you must COME OUT TODAY. Just a few days of good WEATHER will now entirely close them out.

An opportunity for safe, sound, judicious investment is presented at MOTOR HEIGHTS—seldom if ever before offered in all St. Louis' history.

Our office, as below, is open Sunday Morning from 9 a. m. till noon. A phone call will bring our auto to your door

We have opened an Information Bureau at St. Louis and Belt avenues, 5600 west, on the Cass avenue car line. It will be open all day today and every afternoon this coming week.

It is within one short block of Motor Heights. You will not be importuned to buy. It is not necessary. The property, its amazing POSSIBILITIES, its present low prices, speak for themselves. We will be glad to meet you there today or at our downtown office during the week.

LOCATION

THERE IS ONE BASIC FACT THAT MUST NOT BE OVERLOOKED IN THE PURCHASE OF REAL ESTATE. THAT IS THE LOCATION.

ST. LOUIS IS GROWING IN JUST ONE DIRECTION—THAT IS WEST.

THE NORTH BOUNDARY IS NATURAL BRIDGE RD. THE SOUTH BOUNDARY IS DELMAR BL.

IF YOU PURCHASE REAL ESTATE BETWEEN THESE BOUNDARIES—WEST OF GOODFELLOW—YOU ARE BOUND TO MAKE MONEY.

USE YOUR OWN JUDGMENT. NOTICE THE DISTRICT EAST OF UNION. IT HAS GONE TO SEED.

TAKE FLORISSANT AV. IT HAS REACHED ITS LIMIT, AND THE DISTRICT IS NOT GOING TO INCREASE. OBSERVATION WILL VERIFY OUR STATEMENT.

SOUTHWEST ST. LOUIS IS BUILT UP TO KIRKWOOD.

AND FROM DELMAR BL. TO CLAYTON ROAD IT IS BUILT UP OUT TO THE TOWN OF CLAYTON.

NATURAL BRIDGE IS THE MAIN ARTERY TO THE NORTHWEST.

IT IS TO BE ONE HUNDRED FEET WIDE OUT TO NORMANDY, FROM TWELFTH STREET (ASK THE CITY PLAN COMMISSION), MAKING IT THE ONLY WIDE THOROUGHFARE FROM DOWNTOWN.

PROPERTY PURCHASED ON THIS ROAD WILL SURELY MAKE YOU MONEY.

HOUSES BUILT ON SUBDIVISIONS IN NUMEROUS LOCATIONS ARE HARD TO SELL, BECAUSE THE LOCATION IS NOT RIGHT AND THE PROPERTY HAS REACHED ITS MAXIMUM PRICE.

Remember—

THIS ONE FACT—IT'S THE LOCATION.

ALL THE IMPROVEMENTS POSSIBLE WILL NOT MAKE PROPERTY INCREASE IN VALUE IF THE LOCATION IS NOT RIGHT.

ALL THE HOUSES POSSIBLE TO BUILD WILL NOT MAKE PROPERTY INCREASE IN VALUE IF THE LOCATION IS NOT RIGHT.

NATURAL BRIDGE ROAD IS WHERE THE MONEY WILL BE MADE IN REAL ESTATE.

WE HAVE SOLD OVER FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS' WORTH OF PROPERTY, AND IT HAS MADE MONEY FOR EVERY PURCHASER.

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN MAKING MONEY AND WANT TO START OWNING A HOME OF YOUR OWN, FILL OUT THE COUPON AT THE BOTTOM OF THE ADVERTISEMENT OR TELEPHONE FOR INFORMATION.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review, says:

"Continuance of the remarkable recovery in sterling exchange—which yesterday brought the rate to $3.96, as against $3.78 at the end of last week, and $3.18 seven weeks ago—was, in many respects, the underlying influences in causing the better feeling on the financial position as a whole. This movement of the market, coupled as it was with the arrival of the $2,500,000 gold lately bought for New York in London, from the Transvaal arrivals, and with reports of further shipments from the English market, raised three interesting questions. How much more gold shall we get from England? How much further will the recovery in exchange on London go? What will be the effect of the gold importation on the Federal Reserve, and on the money market?

"It is probable that diversion to New York of the consignments from South Africa will still make up the greater part of our gold imports from London, and that can hardly run at best beyond two or three millions a week. There may be certain other sources, in the way of gold sent forward from Central Europe or other outside repositories, which will add to this amount. But it is hardly probable that England will draw to any great extent on its own reserves of gold, when its retention of those reserves is the key to the plan for bringing the British paper currency gradually into a sounder condition.

The Question of Credits.

"Furthermore, it must be remembered, first, that credits against the Anglo-French loan maturity have been lately accumulated through the sale of American securities by London on our market, and, second, that, even in 1915 and 1916, the policy of the British Government, in sending gold was rather to create a reserve against banking credits, which is planned to establish a fund in our market, than to pay off accruing obligations dollar for dollar.

"These same two processes, along with the loans raised in our market by Great Britain, were responsible for the recovery in sterling, from the then low rate of $4.48, which it had fallen in September of 1915, to the rate of $4.73 at the end of the year.

"The recovery of the present season has already been more extensive than that of 1915. But, on the other hand, it is probable that speculation for the fall was vastly larger in the earlier weeks of the present year than it had been in the summer of 1915, and that the market was, therefore, proportionately more sensitive to influences making for recovery. It must also be remembered that the valuation of the pound sterling depends not only on the balance of export and import trade, but on the measures taken for correcting of depreciation in the British currency. In 1915 the currency position was going rapidly from bad to worse, and with no sign of the ending of the war, whose continuance was certain to prevent any practical efforts to arrest that depreciation.

Gold Imports.

"The influence of the gold imports on the Federal Reserve will naturally depend on the amount of gold received. So far as can yet be seen, the new reserve money will go only partway towards offsetting the outflow to South America or the East. The large excess of imports in our own trade with those countries is not being reduced; and if the forces which last year compelled our export of $300,000,000 gold to Asia and South America continue, the gold imports from Europe can hardly operate as more than a moderately counteracting influence. If, indeed, the loans and liabilities of the Federal Reserve could be progressively reduced, or even kept at present figures throughout the year, then the effect on reserves and money rates of a considerable receipt of gold from Europe might be important.

"But Wall Street in particular needs to be reminded that the real strain on the credit market and the Federal Reserve is in the ordinary course of things ahead of us. The very low 'reserve ratio,' and the abnormally high rates for money, have been in evidence this year at a time when high reserves and easy money were natural order of the day. Wholly aside from Stock Exchange speculation, the requirements of the country's legitimate trade and industry, during the next nine months, will be an influence of unusual importance."

London Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, March 27.—"Attention of financial circles is centered mainly on the foreign exchanges. French and Italian rates established new low records in this market on Tuesday, but have now improved somewhat. The decline in the franc is not connected with preparations to meet the Anglo-French loan, as some have conjectured, but is purely a reflection of French economic conditions.

"There is a continued increase in French imports, including even manufactured articles and luxuries, while France and Italy have both been hard hit by the phenomenally high prices charged for British coal. Economic conditions in France, Germany and Aunstrnia call fo ranssistance, but the rendering of such assistance would be complicated in many cases, especially in the case of France, by the need of internal currency reforms and curtailment of expenditure.

HIGHER PRICE SWING IN THE CORN MARKET

Week's Trend Is Upward Despite Bearish News; Oats Also Advance.

In the face of widespread notice taken of changes that corn scarcity was largely artificial, the corn market last week soared still higher. Anxiety on the part of shorts furnished the impetus. Compared with a week ago, corn quotations yesterday showed a net advance of 2½c to 4¾c. Oats were up 1c to 1⅞c.

Shorts in the corn market became uneasy first over reports of damage to winter wheat in the Southwest. Labor shortage, it was said, would prevent any wheat injury from being offset by increased planting of corn.

At this juncture, however, extensive publicity given to assertions that rail control had been manipulated in the interest of bullish speculators had a temporary depressing influence. So, too, did gossip that a maximum limit on trading would again be enforced, and that changes in car assignments were contemplated.

Nevertheless, fresh upward swings in the market quickly followed, accompanied by talk that farmers were not eager to sell, and that owing to adverse weather and to other refractory conditions, the receipts here were likely to continue inadequate.

Delays to seeding accounted for some independent strength of oats. Domestic demands also continue good.

It was definitely arranged yesterday that 50 per cent of the Eastern cars received at Chicago elevators would hereafter, until further notice, be used to load wheat. Inasmuch as this plan shut out any immediate prospect of a better outlet for coarse grain to the seaboard, some weakening of the corn market was natural. Previously the trend of corn had been toward a higher level during most of the session. This was due chiefly to lack of offerings except at an advance. The fact that houses with Eastern connections were purchasing rye and wheat counted also at first as an encouragement to bulls in corn.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash corn was steady here today; demand fair.

Cash oats ¼c lower and in fair demand.

No. 1 red winter wheat, $2.67; No. 2 red winter, $2.65; No. 4 red winter, $2.58; No. 3 corn, $1.60; No. 4, $1.58; No. 3 yellow, $1.63; No. 4 yellow, $1.58@1.59; No. 3 white, $1.61@1.62; No. 4 white, $1.58; No. 2 white oats, $1; No. 3 white, 98½@99¼c; No. 2, 99c.

CLOSE WEAK ON THE CHICAGO CORN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 27.—Fresh upturns in the price of corn resulted today from lack of offerings. The fact that houses with Eastern connections were purchasing rye tended somewhat also to encourage bulls in corn. Demand for corn, however, was fairly steady from shorts. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼c off to 1c advance, with May $1.56 to $1.56¾ and July $1.50¼ to $1.51, were followed by a slight sag, and then by moderate gains all around.

Oats were relatively firmer than corn. Seeding delays attracted some notice. After opening unchanged to ⅛c higher, including July, 79¾c to 79¼c, the market continued to harden.

Provisions had an upward slant with hogs and grain. More optimism, too, was reported in regard to the export outlook.

Subsequently a sharp break took place, owing to increased selling on the advance, and to announcement that 50 per cent of eastern cars arriving at elevators here would be allotted to the United States Grain Corporation and loaded with wheat, not corn. The close was weak at the same as yesterday's finish to ¼c lower, with May $1.55⅞ to $1.56 and July $1.50¼ to $1.50¾.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

LITTLE WILLIE.—We cannot print the words of the song as it is copyrighted.

SPEEDSTERS.—There was no Feb. 29 in 1900 because 1900 was not a leap year.

BARBARA.—Try soaking the black spots on the goods with peroxide of hydrogen.

BOBBIE.—If you will repeat your question sending in a stamped addressed envelope it will be answered.

EMMA H.—We do not think a girl of 16 could really love a boy "very much," and we do not think she should allow him to kiss her.

MRS. CRISTINA B.—The only clergyman scenario writer we have any knowledge of was Cyrus Townsend Brady, who died recently.

GLORIA.—If you wish a homestead write to the General Land Office, Interior Department, Washington, D. C. They will give you full information.

JOHN.—You would probably see more "real" cowboys around some motion picture studio than in any other place in the world, but there are still some towns in the West where the cowboys wear red handkerchiefs around their necks and "pack" guns.

F. CAMOLARE.—You might be able to sell your scenarion to some motion picture company. The addresses of the companies can be found in any motion picture magazine. Address your scenarios to the director.

T. J. C.—Water Commissioner Wall has held his present office since February, 1911. He was appointed by Mayor Kreismann, Republican, to succeed Stoppelmann, Commissioner during Mayor Wells' administration, a Democrat, from 1905 to 1911. It is not possible to give exact figures in regard to the rate paid by the United Railways Co. for Keokuk electric power as at present it is up before the Public Service Board for adjustment. The temporary rate is about 6.75 mills per kilowatt hour. The matter of the exorbitancy of the purchase price is under dispute in the present receivership case. The U. R. Co. produced its own power prior to the building of the Keokuk dam. The Union Electric Light and Power Co. handles the Keokuk power before it comes into the city. It is owned by the North American Co. In San Francisco the street railways are municipally owned. Philadelphia is now building municipal subways and elevated.

READER.—Graham Bread: Two cups hot liquid (water or milk and water), 1-3 cup molasses, 2½ teaspoons salt, ¼ yeast cake dissolved in ¼ cup of lukewarm water, 3 cups flour, 3 cups graham flour. Add sweetening and salt to milk; cool, and when lukewarm add dissolved yeast cake and flour; (the bran remaining in sieve after sifting graham flour should be discarded); beat well, cover, and let rise; beat double its bulk. Again beat, and turn into greased bread pans, filling the pan half full; let rise, and bake. If you have only time for 1½ cups of liquid. Bran Bread: 1 level cup bran, sifted; 1 level cup sifted barley flour, 2 level cups sifted white flour, 6 level teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons molasses, 1½ level teaspoons salt, 1¼ cups milk, 2 tablespoons liquid fat. Sift the barley, white flour, baking powder and salt together. Add the bran and mix thoroughly. Add the molasses, fat and milk. Cut and fold in with knife. Turn into a well-greased bread pan, on the top of the loaf and let stand undisturbed for 20 minutes. Bake in a moderate oven 40 to 45 minutes.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

M. S.—Missouri now has capital punishment.

READER.—The orphan children of a Mexican War veteran are not entitled to a pension.

DOUBTFUL.—The notice that he would raise your rent was not a notice to vacate. He will have to give you 20 days', i. e., at least a month before your rent is due, notice to move.

JUSTICE.—If the broker through whom you bought the stock has not as yet delivered the certificates see a lawyer promptly. The stalling agent can be sued for conversion of the goods to his own use.

DOUBTFUL.—If the court ordered her to cease using her married name, she cannot use it, but if it merely gave her permission to use her maiden name she can still use her married name if she wishes.

G. L. B.—If your husband is actually dead there would be no trouble, but if he should be alive and living up later you might be prosecuted for bigamy, and your second marriage would be illegal and void.

MRS. X.—If you have been paying $3 a week right along and if the company has been accepting it, we do not think that they can take the furniture if you continue paying it a week. See the Legal Aid Bureau in the Municipal Courts Building.

G. AND T.—The workmen's compensation law became effective in November, 1913, but an attempt has been made to secure a referendum on it. There is no law regulating payment for overtime or Sunday work in this State, except the Federal law governing employes of railroads engaged in interstate commerce.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

WORRIED.—See answer to Anxious.

BILLIE M.—Exercise and diet are the best ways to reduce.

HOPE M.—See answer to Constant Reader in this column March 21. It would be wise to consult a physician.

BUMPS M.—Putting cosmetics on the eyelashes to make them grow is a dangerous thing to do. We would advise you to let them grow naturally.

T. D.—Have your feet examined for weak or fallen arches. A callous is caused by pressure of the ends of the bones. If elsewhere than on the bottom of the foot it is no doubt, caused by ill-fitting shoes.

MAY B.—It depends entirely whether or not the function is entirely destroyed. The only way to be certain is to have the fluid examined with a microscope. If there is no fluid the answer would be "No."

JESS.—Some persons have the peculiarity of requiring very little sleep, much less than the majority of people. You may be one of them. If the sleep you get is sufficient for you do not interfere with drugs. Sulfonal and trianol in doses of 5 to 15 grains, repeated, if necessary, is a safe remedy, free from opiates.

J. T. J.—A list of nourishing foods for people with anemia is: Milk, eggs, oatmeal, sugar and the starchy foods, such as peas, rice, beans, etc. All foods should be easily digestible form as generally in these cases the digestion is not good. Fresh eggs and good quality of milk are very good.

ANXIOUS.—In camphorated oil each 100 cubic centimeters of cotton seed oil contains 20 grams of camphor. Normal feet are never painful and never ache, excepting temporarily after excessive use. Have your feet examined for weak or fallen arches and if they are in that condition wear supporting appliances. Ill fitting shoes may also cause discomfort.

Surrounded by friends, I am lonesome,
In the midst of my pleasures I am blue.

As memory recalls the day
When death bore you away;
Left to mourn with tears and in woe,
As we stood by your bed one year ago.
One year ago, with all its changes
Cannot take from our hearts
There's grief that cannot find comfort,
Wounds that cannot be healed.
Sorrow only the human heart
Can't half be revealed.
Sadly missed by,
HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN. (c)

In loving memory of Nickolaus Miller, who entered into rest one year ago, March 31, 1919.
One year has passed, our hearts still sore,
As time goes on we miss you more.
We saw you suffer, heard your sighs,
With aching hearts and weeping eyes.
We saw you sinking hour by hour,
We could not stay death's awful power.
But now he calmly sleeps at last,
All pains, all aches, all sufferings past.
The time we spend on earth is pain,
Can never come to you again.
Although you've gone and a place in heaven is filled,
Your love and memory will forever cling to us still.
Till we meet again in Heaven.
Sadly missed by
YOUR BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER, BROTHER, SISTERS AND A DEAR FRIEND.

OUR GUARANTEE

The value of a guarantee, no matter who makes it or what it says, depends entirely upon the liberality of the makers.

There are men with whom you do business on a verbal agreement more readily than you do with others where you are protected by the tightest contract that can be drawn.

It is a matter of the integrity of the makers.

The actual guarantee that you receive is the reputation of the company. If you do not understand that, then the conditions that surround the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Company are a guarantee in themselves as to your protection.

Every Car a Bargain

Zarokilli's Etchings the Art Sensation of the Winter

Born in Greece, educated in Constantinople, and a resident in Russia for twenty years, Nicholas P. Zarokilli came to the United States in 1907. The last three years he lived in Europe, making dry-point sketches of present and former members of royalty and distinguished individuals. These were exhibited in New York recently and attracted more attention than any display in several years. The portrait above, one of Zarokilli's loveliest, is a likeness of the artist's wife.

With Hoover in China During Boxer Rebellion

Companion tells how young mining engineer, then a frail youngster, organized the Christians in Tientsin, built barricades of camel's hair bales, and helped fight off the Mongolian fanatics until relief came -o- -o- -o-

By JOHN FARRAR.

THE uphill course of Herbert Hoover's career, from the time when, at 13 years of age, he started earning his own living, is one that appeals strongly to the romantic sense of an American. The years since then have been filled with achievement, and certainly not devoid of adventure; for Hoover lived through, and fought in the dramatic siege of Tientsin, that curtain raiser for the terrifying Boxer rebellion in China, when the forces of reaction attempted to wipe out the "foreign devils" and stifle Christianity.

The other day a man who was with Mr. Hoover in China told me the story of those breathless days. E. G. Adams is now a consulting engineer in New York City. Soon after he was graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute he went out to China, first as a teacher, later as a contracting engineer. For several years he saw Hoover in action.

In an hour taken from his busy day, Mr. Adams told me the following story; not, as he put it, for a newspaper feature, but because he believes so firmly in the character and ability of Herbert Hoover.

Up to the time of the outbreak of the rebellion, life in the strange old Chinese port had been pleasant. There were all nationalities in the foreign section of Tientsin—that gave the place color and social zest.

"Hoover came to Tientsin in 1898," said Mr. Adams. "He was young at the time, only 24, but he had already made an international name for himself by his ability to organize old and abandoned gold mines in Australia and to put them on a paying basis.

"The Hoover of that time was certainly different physically from the robust Hoover of today. He was slightly built. I can remember thinking at the time that Herbert Hoover would be a great man some day if he lived, but I was afraid he wouldn't, for he seemed to have more nervous energy than his slim frame could stand.

"Mrs. Hoover was out there with him—and in spite of the fact that he was intensely interested in his professional duties, he always found time to enter into the social life of the port. He had come there practically unknown, but soon he was recognized as a man of unsual ability, not only in his own line, but in outside activities as well. I remember sitting in the club out there one day with a retired British army officer. He had been watching Hoover in his activities about the port for some time. 'Your friend Hoover,' he said, 'doesn't take long to get at the salient points of any argument!' I remember that, curiously enough, because it was the first time I'd ever heard the word salient used in such a connection. One remembers those little things.

"Hoover had been sent out as an engineering adviser to the Chinese Government. For two years his work took him through a large portion of North China and Manchuria, prospecting the gold deposits. His researches disclosed the fact that while gold is very widely distributed throughout a large section of North China, Manchuria and Korea, only in the last country have deposits been found that are important enough to warrant the installation of modern mining machinery. In spite of this, the natives today keep panning it from the rivers and bringing it out as their ancestors have done for centuries in quantities and at prices barely allowing them to keep soul and body together.

"Mrs. Hoover proved a great help in this work. She had been graduated with Mr. Hoover, in the same class and the same course, at Leland Stanford University. No trip, no matter how far into the wild interior or off the beaten track, was too arduous for her to undertake. She went with him on a native pony or in a Chinese cart; they were difficult trips, too, some of them. Hoover had roughed it a good deal before he came out to China, but on returning from one of these expeditions into the outlying districts I can remember his language quite distinctly. It was characteristic of the man—rough and to the point!"

During the winter of 1899-1900 the foreigners in China had commenced to feel coming disaster in the air. It became known that a new sect or secret society had been formed in the province of Shantung and Southern Chi Li. It was known to the natives as the I-ho-chu-an, the League of United Patriots, or, to make a bad Chinese pun, "the League of the Righteous Fists," and then, with another twist, "The Boxers." Their avowed purpose was the murdering of all foreigners and of the converted Chinese.

"A red lantern, carried by the Boxers, was their sign to fellow Boxers to desist from the work of murdering."

Travelers in the country had seen ominous signs. Strange, uncouth drilling in the fields. Weapons, such as farm implements, did not strike terror to the heart; but soon these impromptu gatherings were known to have achieved a strength of some 3,000,000, and sympathy for the movement was growing in royal circles at Peking. Terrible murders of Chistian Chinamen began to take place. A reign of terror was established in practically every town where there were Christian missionaries. No check came to the outrages. They were often characterized by the most appalling tortures. A little savagery seemed to make them wild for more. Missionaries were obliged to flee to the coast and seek protection from the small allied fleet there.

In June the situation in Tientsin became perilous. The Boxers, in forces of from 40,000 to 50,000, had been gradually working their way toward the city. There was excitement and unrest in the Chinese half of the city; in the Foreign City, it became apparent that the blow must soon fall. On June 15 houses and churches began to be burned. At any moment it became apparent that more serious trouble might arise. Hoover, Adams and others of the colony had been living in comfortable brick houses at the outskirts of the foreign settlement. It was no longer safe. In the center of the city was a large stone building, military in appearance, with a commanding tower. This was known as Gordon Hall, and had been the social center of the foreign settlement. To this place the women and children were moved, and made as comfortable as possible, with little clothing, practically no bedding and small room for so many frightened refugees.

That night they could watch the ravaging in the native village from the tower of Gordon Hall. A red lantern, carried by the Boxers, was their sign to fellow Boxers to desist from the work of murdering. Thousands of lanterns could be seen darting through the dark streets, and with the light from burning houses, the scene became one of lurid and weird magic.

June 17 was a bright Sunday morning. On that day the actual bombardment of Tientsin by the Boxers began. There were few allied troops in the town. Most of them had been sent to the relief of Christians elsewhere. For a time the situation looked desperate indeed. The civilians were immediately called in to assist and were organized under the able direction of the British, but telegraph, telephone and railways systems had been destroyed. It was necessary to protect the foreign city from the onrush of that yelling horde of mad Chinese.

To the rear protection was offered by a mud wall constructed by the Chinese themselves many years before. Along this Adams and others were placed as guards. For a mile and a half, however, the river front was without shelter. On the other side, sometimes as near as 400 or 500 feet, were the Boxer snipers. There was no way of preventing nearer approach.

Mr. Hoover was not a man to remain inactive in such a crisis. In the storehouses of the Foreign City were thousands of bales of camel's hair, clipped from the beasts of the Gobi Desert. Hoover called on some 15 men of his own organization, and with these he organized a construction gang, making use of the refugee Chinamen, Christians, who had fled to the Foreign City for protection. Night and day, under constant shell and rifle fire, they worked along the river constructing barricades, behind which it was possible for them to have shelter and keep back the approaching Boxers by rifle fire.

"I wish that you could have seen Hoover at that time," said Mr. Adams, laughing in spite of the grimness of the memory. "He had a curious combination of clothing. I remember one day I met him as I was going out to take a post, and he was walking down toward the barricades. He had on an Eastern sun helmet, an English jacket of some sort, roll puttees, that in those days were peculiar to the Indian troops, and strapped to his hip a huge Western American rifle.

"I remember, too, that I always envied him his coolness under fire in those first uncertain days, when we scarcely knew whether or not we would get out alive. I always duck when a shell comes past, or a bullet whizzes near; but not Mr. Hoover. He stood with his head up and never a quiver. It was an inspiration."

The siege was not only carried on by the shell fire, but in the streets themselves an occasional Boxer sniper managed to hide; nowhere proved safe. At the railroad station a determined attack of 14,000 troops was marvelously repulsed by about 700 Russians. At the back of the town the bridge was completely blocked by the bodies of murdered men, women, children and animals that had floated down from the towns above, where the massacres had been perpetrated with intense fury.

On June 28 a relief party arrived. From then on actual fighting for the civilians was eased. By July 1 there were 15,000 foreign troops in Tientsin, against some 50,000 Chinese outside. In the distance it was possible to see the banners of the huge army of Yuan Shih Kai, who had been ordered to move on Tientsin; but had so far only camped beyond the Chinese city, and prudently realized that such a situation could not last, and there would be a back-kick from the allies presently. On July 13 the allies felt strong enough to attack the Chinese city. They captured it, with the loss of about a thousand men, among them 28 Ameri-

they clutch desperately at the surgeon whenever he makes his rounds."

British indignation was stirred to the roots by these disclosures. Moreover, the correspondent's reference to the work performed in French hospitals by the Sisters of Charity prompted the loud inquiry: "Why have we no Sisters of Charity?"

The state of public feeling and the terrible need of the emergency was enough temporarily to subdue the old prejudices, and suggestions for sending a contingent of female nurses were favorably received at the War Office. In this hour, men high in affairs, who knew of Florence Nightingale and her experience at Kaiserswerth, mentioned her name, and she was accordingly offered the commission. She was then 34 years old, and not, it is readily seen, the impulsive, innocent girl which a large portion of the public has conceived her.

Parental opposition could not stand before the call of the country; Florence Nightingale recruited 38 nurses of more or less experience, and sailed for Scutari, where the base hospitals were. The expedition was a unique thing. An organization of women actually delegated to follow the troops and care for the wounded, was an experiment for the British army, and one doubtfully considered, at that.

The corps met with the bitterest disapproval from the regular medical officers. The 39 women were quartered in a space equal to that assigned to three medical staff officers and their servants. Officers nicknamed Miss Nightingale "The Bird," and one ironically inquired whether "she would wear wig or helmet." It was said of Sir George Brown, who commanded the Light Division, that "he was once shot through the legs in Spain, and was thrown into a cart of straw, so he thinks the same conveyance admirable now, and detests ambulances as the invention of the evil one."

Later, when Miss Nightingale had occasion to complain to London of the actions of a certain officer, a fellow officer, piqued at the approval which the War Office had given to Miss Nightingale's work, sarcastically observed that he "supposed poor Capt. —— will be tried by a courtmartial composed of nurses." Even the nurses themselves proved trying, as their Lady in Chief observed in a letter home: "I should take rank in the British army as a Brigadier-General, because 50 British females whom I have with me are more difficult to manage than 4000 men."

At Scutari she found four miles of beds, 18 inches apart, each containing a wounded man. The filth was indescribable. Sewers ran under the floors. Cleanliness was not even thought of. One of her first orders for supplies was for 300 scrubbing brushes, an item that further excited the derision of the staff officers. Men were operated upon in full sight of other men who were to undergo the same ordeal, and another of the new superintendent's inventions was a screen for such cases.

Regardless of the nature of their wounds, all soldiers were fed alike, and Miss Nightingale established the diet kitchens which now are a part of all hospitals. Supplies were woefully inadequate, and official aversion to admitting mistakes served to aggravate it. Thus, when the London Times raised a fund and inquired to what use it would best be put, the British Ambassador to Turkey suggested the erection of a church, although bandages, medicine and all sorts of supplies were desperately needed.

Under such conditions, and others which space forbids naming, Florence Nightingale worked out the principles of nursing science, while she attended "the worst cases herself," wrote letters for soldiers, comforted the dying and performed numerous other services. In the midst of this, she had to still a religious controversy that arose at home between those who declared that she was encouraging Catholicism among the nurses, and others, who asserted she was trying to convert them to Protestantism. As a matter of fact, her own religion was hardly either, and although she had a firm belief in eternal laws, and a certain idea of Deity, she probably would be termed an infidel by the orthodox. At any rate, she wasted no time in such controversies, and the charges against her were ludicrous, although most discouraging.

Finally, after three trips to the front, her health gave way, and it was reported she would have to return. "Wounded soldiers turned their faces to the wall and wept," wrote an eyewitness. Other nurses said they would return also. In the face of this, she announced that she would not return at all, but would die, or recover, where she was. Fortunately, she recovered.

Queen Victoria decorated her. England rang with her praise. She was the heroine of the day. Poets devoted their genius to her. The end of the war came, and the Government offered to take her home on a man of war. She declined that, and evaded the receptions arranged for her. She slipped quietly home, and took to her bed.

Much of the remainder of her life was spent as an invalid—but only in a physical sense. Her greatest work was yet to come. Her interviews with Queen Victoria and Prince Albert resulted, eventually, in sweeping reforms, not only in army medical methods, but in the construction of both military and civil hospitals, and many of her plans are up-to-date at this time. The reorganization which she directed from her sickroom, and which was accomplished over the obstinacy of a sluggish and old-fashioned bureaucracy, and in the face of the most distracting obstacles, became the groundwork of the present system, and occupied a space of 40 years.

The fight which she waged for sanitation and the installation of humane and scientific methods in India, fill a book. Her indomitable courage, her divine patience, her tremendous force, served her steadily. In 1907 King Edward bestowed the Order of Merit upon her, the first woman to receive it. In 1908 the freedom of the City of London was accorded her. "Florence Nightingale Societies" spread over the face of the earth.

On Aug. 13, 1910, death touched her tired heart. Her mission had been fulfilled cans, and the pressure on the civilian inhabitants of Tientsin was relieved.

When the situation was less tense, and the military took the place of the civilians, the Chinese authorities called on Mr. Hoover for a new task. In order to save the mines from foreign domination, they handed over the control of an old and poorly organized coal mine near Tongshong. Mr. Hoover obtained a concession on it, put it on its feet, and before he finished with it, the mine was producing a fortune.

"Hoover showed the same ability in this that he has in whatever he undertakes," said Mr. Adams, "an enthusiasm for the job, vision as to its possibilities, speed and efficiency in accomplishing his ends, and simplicity of action.

"I had a chance to watch him socially, at work professionally and under fire—you can size a man up pretty well after that, you know, and I think he's a full-blooded American whose knowledge of international affairs has made his Americanism rest on a firmer and more workable basis than that of most. It is a time when we need such men, men particularly with a knowledge of the East. With all his vision, he is intensely practical. I was fortunate in being able to watch him during those picturesque early days. He was young then, but he showed the same burning enthusiasm and the balancing qualities that make him successful at whatever he undertakes, whether in his capacity of mining engineer, assistant in the defense of a besieged city, Food Controller of the world or"—— care for fish. Our suggestion that she eat fried cornmeal mush, which was what the family would probably get, was received with chill disdain.

Mr. Adams paused, but I think that he decided it was premature to add "President of the United States."

We were told that laundresses, these days, either got what they wanted for their meals or they stayed away. And in a family the size of ours the absence of a laundress for one week either meant that the head of the family must lay aside the family sewing and the family sweeping and the family cooking, or that the children would have to go to school in a state of untidiness not to be thought of.

Before our instruction was completed we gathered considerably more information about the wife of the once Village Drunkard.

She came two days a week, at $4.50 per day and car fare. The amount of the car fare indicated that she lived at a distance of 60 or 70 miles and traveled in a chair car. We paid the war tax.

The Village Drunkard, thoroughly reformed, has a nice new flivver in which he gathers up the laundry that is to be done by the laundress at home on inclement days.

And the phonograph dealer says he can't get jazz records in fast enough to supply the demand from the laundress' children.

The foregoing may seem to you a trifle fanciful, but if you don't believe it, ask anybody.

Incidentally, if you will go to the great institution where dictionaries are being revised to meet the needs of the new child you will find that in the "W" copy now going out the word Washerwoman is marked: "Obsolete—see Laundress."

Havana's Swiftest, Sportiest Game

the shoulders and mention of the word "chivo," which, as I have explained before, is the Spanish word for goat and the Cuban symbol of graft.

Jai-alai may be played on the level in Havana, or it may not. I don't know. And what is more, I didn't meet anyone who had any positive information on the subject. Certainly it is the easiest thing for a player to lose a match if he so desired.

As far as American visitors are concerned it doesn't make any difference. The games are thrilling enough, however they are framed. The final quinella, which followed the unfinished 30-point match, was the most exciting game I ever saw in my life. And as Navarette, the player on whom I had bet my money, won the match, the inner workings of the Fronton did not interest me much.

It was 12:30 when the last quinella began, yet no one had left the building or shown any signs of losing his voice. And until Navarette scored his six points there was not the slightest let-up in the interest and enthusiasm of the crowd.

Before we departed my cicerone took me to the dressing rooms, where I met some of the players, nearly all of whom are Basques or Argentines. The most famous Cuban player, Egaluse, was not playing that evening, but we met him at the nearby bar.

Unlike most athletes, jai-alai players frequently train on brandy, and even in matches they sometimes stop to take a "hooker" to aid them through their exertions.

One of the oldtimers at the Fronton told me that Gen. Leonard Wood, when he was running things in Cuba, tried to take up jai-alai and that it was the only thing on the island he didn't master. This information did not surprise me. A man can take up bullfighting or chess at almost any age under 50, with some chances of becoming fairly proficient at them. But jai-alai is something else again.

Women say La-may stays on better than any other face powder.

Up to the present time it has been almost impossible to get a face powder to stay on the face longer than it takes to put it on. You powder your nose nicely, and the first gust of wind or the first puff of your handkerchief and away goes the powder, leaving your nose shiny and conspicuous, probably just at the very moment when you would give anything to appear at your best. A specialist has at last perfected a pure powder that really stays on; that stays on until you wash it off. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it stay on. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors prescribe to improve the complexion. In fact, this powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and irritations. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. This unusual powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because La-may is pure and because it stays on so well it is already used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large sixty-cent box, and many dealers also carry the generous thirty-cent size. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. We will give you five thousand dollars if you can buy a better face powder anywhere at any price. Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th St., New York.

Walter Camp on Folly of "Big Muscles" and Various Orgies of "Exercises"

Built at the expense of the heart.

Noted instructor of athletics declares the building up of unneeded strength is always at the expense of the heart and other organs—Strenuous vacations evil and so are quick reductions in weight — Praises suspenders and soft collars — The proper sports at different ages -o- -o- -o- -o-

Foolish to do this when one has knees to bend.

IT IS not the man with the biggest muscles who is in the best physical condition; often the muscles have been developed at the expense of the heart, declares Walter Camp, noted football authority and writer on sports.

The trouble with the average man is that either he doesn't take enough exercise or takes the wrong sort, Camp says. He asserts that most of the popular notions about exercise are wrong. Bending over and touching the floor, rising on the toes and flexing the biceps are good examples of the kind of exercise not to take, he remarks.

"The real essential part of the engine is the part under the hood—the heart, lungs and trunk," he continues. "Ordinarily a man's legs and arms are strong enough. They suit themselves automatically to his profession. If he is a blacksmith or a lumberman, he has big arm muscles—his work will develop them. If he is not, he doesn't need them. No man ever has occasion in ordinary life to bend over stiff-legged and touch the floor. If he has to pick up something off the floor he can stoop, that's what his knees are for."

The writer's conclusions, after more than 40 years of constant contact with athletics, are contained in a book, "Handbook of Health," just off the presses of Appleton & Co.

The follies to which the average American is addicted in the way of taking exercise, he says, are numerous. Among them a high place is given to the habit of taking violent exercise at separated periods—once a week, once a month or twice a year. The results, he asserts, are worse than if no exercise had been taken, because the heart is overtaxed, the muscles are exhausted and the man subsequently takes on surplus weight.

"We let ourselves be deluded," the writer goes on, "into thinking that the physically fit man is the one with the bulging muscles. We have admired the proportions of our strong men and tried to be like them, thinking that the nearer we approached that ideal the more physically fit we would be.

"Some scientifically trained leaders of athletics have known better all the time; but it took the war to bring it home to us. The muscle-heavy man could not stand the strain of war as well as another man, which means that he cannot stand the strain of peace as well. Why? Because his heart has paid the price of his muscles."

Further on he says: "The first sign of age is stiffness. I might even say that a man is as old as he is stiff. The muscles of the trunk are the first to grow stiff unless they are exercised. Watch him get up from his chair. If he catches hold of the arms of the chair and lifts himself up, he is growing stiff in the body. He is neglecting the muscles of the trunk and employing those of the arms, which probably do not need the exercise.

"The result of the neglect is soon apparent. He grows shorter as he grows older, because he stoops forward; the sagging compresses chest and stomach, and indigestion follows. The man is old before his time. He may be a farmer or a laboring man with powerful arm or leg muscles. In fact, this type of man often goes down first, as we all know. What he needs is a trunk so strengthened, and a chest so expanded, that he will, without effort, hold himself erect."

Camp has alloted certain sports to boys and men of certain ages. He divides them as follows: Fifteen to 25 years old, baseball and football; 25 to 40, tennis and squash; from 40 upward, golf.

During the first period, that of 15 to 25, he says, "he enjoys most, and is best fitted for, games of vigorous physical contact—bitter man-to-man struggle, and these games make not only for all-around physical development, but also mentally, for his acquisition of unselfish teamwork.

"When he gets into his life's work at 25 he no longer has the time for these games, nor does his physical condition make them advisable. Tennis, squash and games of that nature then supply the need. At 35, however, it is well for a man to begin planning for what must come at 50, and that consists in turning to the links. After 40, golf should become more and more the practice pastime. And wise is he who bears in mind that orgies of exercise, whether 36 holes of golf on a hilly course, or a vacation of two weeks with daily 36-hole rounds, are really contrary to nature's methods.

"Daily regular exercise in moderate doses is the thing that keeps men fit. An extremely sedentary 50 weeks, broken into by a debauch of exercise for two weeks oftentimes shocks nature to the point of bringing about the low condition which accounts for the well-known susceptibility to disease in the fall, when men return from these vacations."

Camp's condemnation of "orgies of exercise" is severe. "There are many people who believe that they can do anything they please for a week, as long as they indulge in an orgy of exercise at the week-end," he says. "Most of these cases not only have not repaired the damage—they have added to it.

"They are the same ones who think they can get through the year by having two weeks' vacation, in which they indulge in all kinds of violent exercises. These cases are easily recognized. When they first come back they are rather prone to take things easy for a while, and in a week or two begin to dread the very thought of exercise, as their business tires them out too much. Finally, in a month they are putting on flesh rapidly, still holding on to the appetite gained out of doors, but doing nothing to earn the right to indulge it."

A chapter is devoted to factors which impair the health. "Fear practically paralyzes not only muscular control but mental alertness. Living in dread gradually lowers the tone of the system and saps the nerves. The best relief for an acute case is to do something to get the blood into normal circulation, breathe deeply and think of brave things." * * *

"Anger piles up poisons in the system. It is not unusual for a person who gets thoroughly angry to become ill soon afterward."

Fashions in clothing come in for the author's censure, particularly tight collars and belts and short shoes. "A tight collar compresses the arteries in the neck and is very apt to lead to headache or cerebral congestion. Moreover, it makes the neck and throat extremely sensitive. * * * Tight clothes restrict the circulation and interfere greatly with the general health." The author is a strong advocate of soft collars. If we must wear stiff ones, get them large, as the English do, he says.

The humble "gallus" receives its meed of praise in the book. "A man can go further and work more at ease with some form of suspender than with a belt," Camp writes. "The easiest and coolest costume for long work in warm weather is trousers, supported by suspenders, and a shirt cut as boys' jumpers are cut, namely, short and with a string around the bottom."

He advises the drinking of eight glasses of water a day, preferably between meals. It should be cool but not iced, he says, pointing out that it requires the stomach 20 minutes to raise the temperature of ice water to the normal temperature of the body.

Taken as a whole, games of sport are much better than any other forms of exercise, because of the pleasure which combines with the effort, he says. Incidentally, he calls attention to some of the old "blue laws" of the Dominion of New Hampshire, with the grateful observation that they are no longer enforced. Some of them were:

"No one shall run on the Sabbath day, or walk in his garden or elsewhere, except reverently to and from meeting."

"No one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds, sweep houses, cut hair or shave on the Sabbath day."

"No one shall eat mince pies, dance, play cards or

WALTER CAMP, THE DEAN OF COLLEGE TRAINERS

WALTER CAMP until recently had been identified with athletics at Yale University practically since his graduation there, 40 years ago, part of the time as active coach of the football team, and for many years as head of the Advisory Coaching Committee. He has been called "the father of American football." During the war he was placed in charge of physical training at all naval stations, and also took part in directing such work in air service training stations, both in this country and in France. He has, during his lifetimes, "conditioned" many thousands of men. During recent years he has written a number of books on sport topics.

At sight of the girl on the platform his tired eyes lighted.

"Hello, Alida! How's everything?"

"Pretty well, Gene. Worn out?"

"Rather. Got the car here?"

"No; I thought you'd like to walk."

He stiffened a little, as from taut nerves. "Well—all right. Been having a good time?"

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

HAIR GROWN ON MR. BRITTAIN'S BALD HEAD BY INDIANS' MYSTERIOUS HAIR GROWER

My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that as he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth.

Yet now, at an age over 66, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs.

Indians' Secret of Hair Growth Free

At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across in my travels, a Cherokee Indian "medicine man" who had an elixir that he asseverated would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days.

That I was astonished and happy is expressing my state of mind mildly.

Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilising potency of the mysterious pomade.

I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotalko, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved. Many men and women, also children, have reported satisfactory results from Kotalko.

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

For women's hair.

My honest belief is that hair roots rarely die even when the hair falls out through dandruff, fever, excessive dryness or other disorders. I have been told by experts that often when hair falls out the roots become imbedded within the scalp, covered by hard skin, so that they remain for a time like bulbs or seeds in a bottle which will grow when fertilized. Shampoos (which contain alkalis) and hair lotions which contain alcohol are enemies to the hair, as they dry it, making it brittle. Kotalko contains those elements of nature which give new vitality to the scalp and hair. To prove the GENUINENESS of Kotalko, I will send the recipe FREE on request. Or I will mail a testing box of Kotalko with the recipe for 10 cents, silver or stamps. Satisfy yourself. You want to stop falling hair, eliminate dandruff or cover that bald spot with healthy hair. Get the testing box, apply once or twice daily—watch in your mirror! Address:

HOW TO DODGE THE SHERIFF

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

A great many of my creditors and other pals has probably been wondering how come that whereas a year ago I was all most shakeing hands with the referee in bankrupcy whereas I am now on my ft. again and pretty near got enough money to pay my grocery bill for last Nov.

Well friends when I find out a good thing I am not the kind of a bird that will keep it to themself but I will pass it along and tell my pals about it so as they can take advantages and pull themselfs out of the hole the same like I did. But in order to give my pals the benefit of my experience I will half to begin at the beginning as they say and if you boys and girls can profit by my experience why so much the better as the saying goes.

Well about a year ago I was talking with my wife and myself one night and she says how is it that I and you are makeing about 200 berries per wk. more or LESS and we owe everybody in Illinois except the gov. and oh the other hand here is the Quayles living next doors to us and him only getting 40 thousand per annum and yet they seem to enjoy themselfs a whole lot more than we and don't owe nothing.

So I said what of it.

"Well" she says "I been reading the magazines a whole lot lately and I seen a ad in one signed by the Rainy Day Corporation and its suppose to tell a husband and their wife how to get themselfs on their ft. and the course only costs $3.00 so why not let us subscribe for it and you don't half to pay in advances but first you get the course and read it and then you can pretend like you don't care nothing about it and send it back to them and they refund you the 3 spot."

So I said all right like I usually do when she speaks to me at all and she sent for the course and it come in the form of 5 books witch I didn't have time to read, but she read them and sent it back to them with the words that it wasn't no good, but at that it was good enough to get us out of our troubles and look at us now.

Well the idear was this in a few words. In the first place most of our debts was owed in driblets like ten dollars and the book says:

"If you owe ten dollars apiece to a whole lot of people in the same town why the idear is to quietly move out of that town as far as you can and move to some other town and the merchants and etc. back in the old town won't sew you because it would cost more than the debts is worth." So one night we quietly moved out of the old town and moved to Conn. and we haven't heard nothing since from people we owe money to in old Chi except a couple of threatening letters that scares a person about as much like as if Bryan said he wouldn't run.

Well the next lesson in the course was to get yourself a job that payed more money so one day I went down to N. Y. city and went in a man's office that I had heard about him and I said I wasn't getting enough money in old Chi so he said what did I want and I said I wanted a raise and he gave it to me.

So as I say here we are liveing in Connecticut and get more salary than out in old Chi and all our debts repudiated and they can't sew us on acct. of how much it costs on acct. of the distants and here we are liveing in the lapse of luxury in Greenwich and all as we half to do is keep out of old Chi or else go there incognito and all on acct. of the wife seeing the Rainy Day Corporation ad in this here magazine witch the pure reading matter was so bad that she felt like she had to read the ads.

Now gents I don't want you to take my testimony without no supports so I will tell you about a couple of friends of mine along the same lines that was in pretty near a pickle like we and seen the same ad, and got the same results or better as follows: beginning with a letter I got from a friend of mine name Chas. Clarke as follows:

"Dear old Pal: You know how I and Mildred use to struggle along wile I was earning $10.00 per wk. as clerk in the Bon Ton market witch my uncle owned it and I was the only heir. Well one day Mildred read me the Rainy Day Corporation's ad in one of the magazines about how to pull yourself out of the rug so she wrote them and they wrote back adviseing me to quit being a clerk and become the prop. so one day I took a big cleaver and used it on my uncle and by the time I got through they wasn't enough left of him to be a prop. of a soda fountain in Cuba so now I and Mildred is running the market and last year we layed away $1.65."

The other letter is from a carpenter friend of mine that lives at Fifth avenue and 70 st. and in 2 yrs. he was only able to save $220,000 so one day him and his wife happened to see each other and begin talking and she seen this ad and wrote to the Rainy Day Corporation and they wrote back and told him to raze he—ll and get more money so he wrote to the union and they gave him a raze and now he is makeing more than a st. car conductor and not haveing 1-2 as good a time.

That is the way it come off boys and girls and if you are satisfied to go along worring about financial affairs why well and good but if my little talk has showed you a way out why I am satisfied.

THE PASSING OF THE WASHERWOMAN

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

WE SUPPOSED that when strong drink ceased raging the Village Drunkard would sober up, and his wife wouldn't have to take in washing any more.

The wife of the Village Drunkard, as of course you know, always took in washing. Week in and week out, from morn till night, she cranked the wringer and bent over the scrubbing board; in order to purchase shoes for her little children and booze for her worthless husband.

You, dear reader, have seen her often, with her mouth full of clothespins, decorating the line with articles of wearing apparel that look as if they had sprung, slightly wilted, from the advertising pages of the woman's magazines.

You knew all about her husband and his infirmity. When you paid her the pittance for which she slaved, you warned her not to buy a phonograph with it or to give any of it to the partner of her sorrows to squander on drink.

You had been warned by the charity organization society that unless the extravagant poor were restrained by the thrifty rich they immediately invest all their earnings in new records or rum.

But you felt, even as you were speaking your weekly words of kindly counsel, that they would be vain. You were positive that the money with which you were parting would be split 50-50 between the phonograph installment collector and the village gin mill proprietor before another sun had set.

Doubtless you have grieved about the poor washerwoman, as you pictured her little hovel, with its windows stuffed with rags against the cold, its crust of dry bread on the table and its little shoeless children shivering as they stoked the phonograph with record after record. And you grieved still more when you thought of the shiftless father coming in half drunk and demanding his wife's wages that he might go back and finish the job.

Whatever you thought about prohibition, you shared our fervent hope that it would at least sober up the Village Drunkard and confine his wife's labors at the tub to the laundry of her own family.

Well, the Village Drunkard has sobered up. A couple of buns on the stuff they are selling nowadays taught him a terrible lesson. But his wife hasn't laid aside the washboard. Far from it.

* * * * * * * * * *

We were torn from our typewriter about 11:30 this morning by what our nose told our doubting consciousness was the odor of fried chicken.

Fried chicken is not a regular feature of our luncheon menu on weekdays.

You will find the reason in the market columns of the daily press.

Such items of our domestic economy as what there is going to be for luncheon we consider ordinarily none of our business. If we employ any other viewpoint regarding it we are set right briefly, but definitely.

But fried chicken was different. Fried chicked implied company, and company would necessitate certain preparations for the midday meal which otherwise might safely be neglected.

So we went into the Department of Administration and politely asked if our senses deceived us about what was going on in the kitchen.

"Not at all," was the reply.

Going to have company?"

"No—not exactly."

"Well—er—isn't it a little unusual—the fried chicken, you know?"

"Oh! That isn't for us! That's for the laundress!"

We sought further enlightenment, and got it.

The laundress had been counseled by her medical adviser not to eat red meat, being rather full-blooded.

She could eat fish, of course, without any detriment to her constitution, but she didn't

HOW TO RULE A WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

"JUST THINK WHAT WILL HAPPEN TO THEM!"

"COME!" commanded the Bachelor, clasping the Widow's elbow in a masterful manner and attempting to draw her out of the cool, inviting shadows of the conservatory into the noisy, blazing ballroom. "You've been sitting here dodging partners long enough. This is MY dance!"

"Why!" The widow released her elbow and sank back on the rustic seat beside the fountain, with a little gasp. "Mr. Weatherby! Are you cra—are you ill?"

"Not a bit," answered the Bachelor, dropping down beside her and lighting a cigarette with perfect complacence. "I was only trying the 'cave-man' stunt—to PLEASE you! Didn't that Spanish author say that a little bullying, a little rough treatment is what all you women are secretly pining for?"

"Blasco Ibanez!" exclaimed the Widow, the flag of battle flaming in her cheeks. "Don't you mention his name to ME!" and she fluttered the long black ostrich plumes of her fan indignantly.

"I didn't," protested the Bachelor. "I can't pronounce it! But what has he done to YOU?"

"Nothing," was the prompt rejoinder. "I'm thinking of what he has done to all the men of this country—and all by an idle remark. Here we have the most chivalrous and loyal lovers, and the most devoted and best-trained husbands in the whole world! And HE comes over and tries to drop a Spanish fly in our cup of joy!"

"There, there," soothed the Bachelor. "He's taken it all back and said he didn't SAY it, and apologized for it, and"——

"'Taken it all back—and said he didn't SAY it!'" repeated the Widow scornfully. "Isn't that just like a man, to give two alibis—just in case we don't care for one of them? But it doesn't matter whether he said it or not—a lot of poor, foolish men will take it seriously and go right home and attempt to act on his advice! And just think what will happen to them!"

"I shudder at the vision!" said the Bachelor, closing his eyes and lazily blowing smoke through the leaves of the potted palms. "I suppose that will depend on which side of the town they inhabit. If they live on the wrong side, they will be quickly cured by the simple tap of a rolling pin or a flatiron. But if they live on the—on the sophisticated side"——

"They will be just as quickly and permanently cured!" broke in the Widow, with icy sweetness. "Andalusian and Castilian beauties may sigh for tank-corps methods of wooing and yearn for heart-bruises as proof of a man's love; but the American woman has never forgotten her Sir Walter Raleigh! She is no more apt to accept the 'cave-man' idea now than she is to drop back from steam heat and electricity, to wax candles and log fires!"

"And yet," mused the Bachelor, "wax candles and log fires are fascinating, sometimes!"

"Sometimes!" agreed the Widow. "Just for a change, or a novelty—and so is the 'cave-man' stunt, when you know it's a stunt, and don't take it seriously. It's quite thrilling to be bossed around by a lover—the first two or three times, just as it's quite thrilling to have a log fire to dream by occasionally—when you are sure that the steam heat will be turned on, next morning. There IS a primitive desire down in the heart of every normal woman to adore a man and to be 'protected' and 'ordered about' and 'there-there-little-girlied'—once in a while. Every woman wants to 'look up' to the man she loves, even if she has to get down on her knees in order to do it. Every woman likes to think of herself as a weak, clinging, tender little thing, and of her lover as a big, strong, noble, fearsome creature—theoretically. Every woman admires brute force and ruthlessness—in novels and OTHER women's husbands. But, when it comes to stepping down off her throne and occupying a footstool, the American woman has held the domestic scepter and the purse strings too long"——

"You mean they've been too darned spoiled!" broke in the Bachelor. "Been petted and coddled and slaved for, and given everything on earth they've asked for, from jolly to jobs, and from frills to the franchise!"

The Widow smiled and leaned back, lazily fanning herself.

"Our men ARE nice!" she said, with a sigh of deep satisfaction. "They're born nice in the first place, and brought up that way by their mothers—and kept that way by their wives, until they die."

"Like little canary birds," jeered the Bachelor, "accustomed to the cage—and wouldn't fly away from it, even if they had a chance!"

"Don't you DARE cast aspersions on the American man!" exclaimed the Widow, sitting up with flaming cheeks. "You don't suppose the American man treats women like queens because he HAS to, do you? He does it because he WANTS to—because he is so big-hearted, and broad-minded and tender and generous, that he never imagines that bullying a woman makes him a 'hero.' He would no more stoop to browbeat his wife than he would to—to pinch a baby! If he wants to show his prowess—if he wants to fight—he picks out somebody his own SIZE—the Germans or the Kaiser, or something!"

"And then goes home and lets some little two-by-four pull him around by the nose, and walk all over him, and think up things for him to do!" scoffed the Bachelor. "This is the only country on earth where a man says 'I'll ask my wife about it,' when anybody invites him to dinner, or asks him anywhere!"

"It's a woman's world!" murmured the Widow smiling complacently as she adjusted one slender jet shoulder strap over a snowy shoulder. "And that," mused the Bachelor, "in spite of the fact that any man can rule any woman in 47 ways—if he only knows how."

"What! How?" demanded the Widow, sitting up straight very suddenly.

"Oh, by flattering her, or by ignoring her, or opposing her, or"——

"By 'OPPOSING' her?" The widow laughed scornfully.

"Precisely. I can make any woman on earth do anything I want her to do—just by telling her NOT to!" and the Bachelor's eyes twinkled triumphantly. "Just as I've made you sit here all through that fascinating waltz while I smoked a cigarette," he finished.

"Mr. Weatherby! Do you mean to say that you didn't WANT to dance"——

"To DANCE—when I can sit in a nice, dim, cool, conservatory, with a pretty—with YOU, and smoke a cigarette? Certainly not!" And the Bachelor chuckled maddeningly. "If I had wanted to dance, I should have ordered—I mean implored—you to sit right here! That's the safest, surest and most diplomatic way to rule a woman!"

"Tyrant!" exclaimed the Widow softly—but her smile was the smile of the cave woman, as she looked up at him with admiring eyes.

WIDOW-CISMS.

It spoils all a woman's hope of heaven to see what a lot of charming men seem to be desperately bent on going the other way.

There are only three times when a man looks at his wife's clothes—when they are particularly dazzling, when they are particularly awful and when the bill comes in.

A big soul in a woman never quite made up to a man for her lack of a cute little nose.

A philosopher is a woman, who can stand in the wings and watch herself play her role in the comedy of love, without weeping.

A man's love is never quite dead, so long as he is sufficiently interested to scrap with you.

play on any instrument of music except the drum, trumpet or jew's harp, on Sabbath days."

These ordinances, the author deduces, might not alone prepare man for heaven, but would put him in a fair way to get there at any early age.

Those who long to "reduce" may hearken unto this: "If you have put on flesh, you need not expect to get rid of it in a twinkling. If you did, your heart would pay the penalty. Nature did not put on that flesh in a few days, and she will not stand for having it taken off in a few days. The man who breathes deeply does not become fat. He gets enough oxygen to burn up the waste materials."

Notice is taken of the percentage of men rejected by the army. "We were rudely awakened to the fact that in many cases it required a quota of 2000 draft men to secure 200 for service," says the writer. * * * "We have seen our youths coming out of college or school practically abandon all their athletic pursuits at 21 for the pursuit of the dollar."

Camp refers to his service as athletic director in charge of naval and air service training stations during the war. He says he found in existence a system of setting-up exercises "as antiquated as were our airplanes and boats of four years ago." And one of his chief criticisms is that the exercises were too strenuous, exerted the legs and arms and not the trunk, and, by their severity, induced "slacking" among the men. He changed them. He gives a system of "Daily Dozen Set-ups" which he recommends, one for service men and another for civilians.

Civilization, he points out, is largely responsible for our common physical ills. "We are all wild animals in a state of captivity," he exclaims. "An outdoor man can eat anything that does not eat him first! If we were on perpetual vacations outdoors, we should not need to bother much about our physical condition."

Getting overtired reduces the resisting forces, lowers vitality and makes man a prey for the first malicious germ that comes along, he says, reverting to his argument against overexertion.

Physical exercises for children should not be the same as those for adults, he warns, and adds that the child under 12 years of age usually will get the proper and adequate amount of it if left alone to its own devices. After that, however, some care should be taken to see that it does get enough, and that of the right kind.

The "don't do that" with which some parents are constantly reprimanding children for what seems to them roughness, is a harmful admonition, because what is "rough" to the average adult is only normal exertion to the child, he points out.

Commenting upon the recurrent urgings of college athletic directors that more students participate in sports, Camp calls attention to the fact that most of the universities have not enough space to accommodate a fourth of the male students, should that percentage decide to go out at once. Consequently, he advocates the setting aside of more ground at colleges for gridirons, diamonds, tennis courts and the like.

The last phase of the book deals with athletics in industrial plants. "Baseball beats Bolshevism," he remarks, putting forward the claim that athletic competition is the surest way to silence unrest in places where large numbers of men are employed. Quoit tossing and horseshoe pitching are suggested, because little space is needed and no training is required. He cites a number of large corporations which have adopted the policy of encouraging "noon-hour athletics."

In clubs or gymnasiums, where it is practicable, he says, exercises may well be done to music, which gives a perfect rhythm to the exercises, as well as creating a pleasant atmosphere. He points, in this connection, to the well-known fact that soldiers can march much farther with a band playing than without.

Like most trainers, Camp extols the benefits of deep breathing, and says it is well to practice it when walking and when tired and nervous.

The Household Auction "Comes Back" And Old Furniture Brings New Prices

The fat old lady who is going to faint unless she gets up close to the auctioneer, is on the job again, and so is the W. C. T. U. member who buys a stein set thinking she is getting lemonade tankard — Women purchase old articles for prices at which they could get new ones -o- -o- -o- -o- -o- -o- -o-

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

THE auction fiends—since the scarcity of new furniture has sent prices soaring and since new fashions and revivals of old periods no longer succeed each other as rapidly as the seasons, and dealers in second-hand goods are enjoying a heyday of prosperity—do not have the opportunity they formerly had to gratify their passion.

There was, however, an auction sale of household goods advertised to take place in the West End the other day, wherein one was reminded that the auction has lost none of its old lure and fascination. No sooner was the red and white flag unfurled than a dense crowd overran the eight-room apartment, bringing out many of the familiar, easily recognized types. There was one in particular who evidently was experienced. She was fat and chinless, with one of those baby-doll faces. Her method was to fix her eye upon a goal near the auctioneer's elbow at the center of a dense mass of humanity, then to set up a terrifying gasping and panting, as if she were about to suffocate or expire in an apoplectic fit.

"Oh, how did I ever get into this jam! I am about to faint! Give me air!" she would moan quietly, rolling up her eyes. Whereupon the ever-credulous crowd would make way for her and she would attain her desired end.

This ruse she worked in each succeeding room, always getting the desirable position while others she brushed past were stampeded at the outskirts of the crowd.

Then there were the non-professional antiquarians, distinguished in the masculine gender by the finely chiseled face of the student of taste, and in the feminine gender as a woman, who recently, through the house-decorating magazine or in competition with friends, has learned the values and fine points of antiques. These came early, made minute examinations of certain articles, and then stationed themselves apart from the mob that followed the auctioneer in the mere pursuit of the bargain.

THE NON-PROFESSIONAL ANTIQUARIAN

There were, too, the professional dealers in antiques who sniffed and sneered and belittled everything, but who evidently coveted certain objects, since they remained, watching one another warily.

There was the neighbor woman type who had just run over without her hat, to gratify her curiosity or to sentimentalize over the possessions of the recently deceased mistress of this house, and gossip in this wise:

"Why, do you know, they are offering $10 to anyone who will tell them of a vacant apartment?"

"Yes, and it was the dirtiest house I ever got into."

"I shouldn't think they'd sell these things with 'Mother' marked on them, should you?"

"Thirty jardinieres, the advertisement said. Ah, yes, she was a lover of flowers."

"Poor woman; children haven't much sentiment about them these days."

"That girl in black must be a relative. Don't she look sad?"

But the greatest impression to the mere observer at an auction is that manifestation of the instinct to grab at anything advertised as a bargain, regardless of its needfulness, regardless of the value of the article in question.

The instinct is so nearly universal that, although you came as a looker-on, you have to watch yourself that you, also, do not succumb to the lure. After you get outside you count the contents of your pocketbook to make sure that in the excitement of the moment you have not forgot your resolution not to be hoodwinked. And, while there may be some lingering regret over some object that you failed to bid in, I venture you breathe a prayer of thankfulness if your heard is still intact. More numerous are they who have come out victor in a hard-fought bidding match, but who now dread to face the folks at home with the possession of some unneeded, unwished-for article, scarcely to be recognized as the object bid upon, and which is destined to become a white elephant upon their hands henceforth and forever.

The skillful auctioneer must, no doubt, be a student of the psychology of the crowd he holds in thrall, and apparently regards his art as a peculiar and cultivated one, whose secrets are to be kept within his family and handed on from one generation to another. At any rate, in this case the auctioneer was the young son of one who has been locally famous for a generation. There were frequent comments to the effect that "Alex is just like his father."

His method was to keep up unceasingly a montonous, rapid-fire monologue of repeated words, none of which was to be distinguished except the mounting figures. He swayed and fanned himself to the monotonous rhythm of his own voice and the perspiration rained down his face. Only rarely he punctuated the staccato monotone with an effective remark. Often, when interrupted with a question, he declared he did not know what it was he was selling.

Confusion, so that you can't tell whether the bid comes from some eager purchaser or is suggested by the auctioneer himself, and haste, compelling the urge of a quick decision are fine points of the art, presumably. And the crowd must not be treated too gently. A little roughness seems only to spur it to greater eagerness and determination. In one of the back rooms an assistant held up a picture which he said was a Humphrey Woolrich.

"Take it up to the front of the house, where it belongs," commanded the auctioneer. "These people back here won't pay the price for that picture."

Immediately, in response to this offensive, there was lively counter attack of bidding for the painting.

It may be that in former times auctioneerseers had to pretend a knowledge of the value of every sort of article, including rare objects d'art, and possess vocabularies as seductive as they were fluent. It may be due to the extravagance of the times that such qualifications are not necessary now, or that the old methods are not so effective. At any rate, this auctioneer rarely troubled to laud the merits of the wares. In fact, his method rather was such as to depreciate everything. "Yes, this piece of china is whole, not a crack in it," he would remark, as if that virtue were unusual. He assumed an attitude of good-natured raillery, "kidding the crowd," as he would have expressed it, even daring his hearers to come up and be victimized, and nearing failing to inform them when he thought they had been "stung."

Many funny little revelations of character exploded spontaneously in the tense atmosphere. A set of tapestry table covers was sold at $18, and the auctioneer, in one of his rare pauses, remarked that "they cost $65."

PROFESSIONAL COLLECTORS OF ANTIQUES ARE SUPERCILIOUS ABOUT THE WARES OFFERED, BUT WATCH EACH OTHER WARILY AND BID AGAINST ONE ANOTER.

THE AUCTIONEER "KIDS" THE PURCHASERS

"Why didn't you tell me that and I'd have bid on them," wailed a woman. A man and his wife evidently had agreed upon the purchase of a certain set of cut glass. When it was too late and the price had been run up until the auctioneer was more than ready to relinquish it, they found they had been the only bidders and were bidding against one another. Their dismay was acute.

A nice old lady, who ought to have been a white ribboner, if she wasn't, was all agitation, and wanted resold a stein set which she found herself possessed of under the impression that she had been bidding on a hand-painted lemonade tankard. The crowd joined the auctioneer in a heartless laugh at her expense. He had no time to resell anything, he said.

Auctions used to be regarded as a last resort of people who were compelled to dispose of their belongings in haste and therefore at a sacrifice, hence were they the mecca of the bargain hunter.

It is due to the fact that second-hand dealers and others pay such high prices at private sales, which save the expense and trouble incident to an auction, that these public sales are now infrequent. The presence of many of these dealers with cash in hand and the knowledge of profitable sales in sight, apparently had its effect upon prices obtained at this sale.

Private bargain hunters, hesitating, warily cautious, except when carried away by the emotion engendered by the artful auctioneer, found themselves outbid by the professional bargain seekers, the second-hand men. As a consequence, sales drew good, round standard prices. A refrigerator upon which several women had set their hearts was run up to $46. A better-known make of the same size and general design is to be purchased new in the stores for $50. A brass bed brought $30. Mattresses brought $10 each. Room-size Axminster rugs brought $20 and $30. A plain but good dining room set of three pieces, $175; a china cabinet, $47 and $50; a French ivory toilet set, $12.50.

Other articles sold at correspondingly substantial figures. Everything in the house had seen long usage and was of no especially recent design.

The prices got for certain lots of goods in the dining room certainly were not so much a sign of the times as they were of the survival of the lure of the bargain in the human breast. These were several sets of wine glasses. What use can anybody have for such articles in these days? Yet green glass champagne glasses, slightly decorated, brought 75 cents each, and simply etched cocktail glasses, 50 cents each.

HOW TO RULE A WOMAN

SOLD OUT

York think they want to get up a syndicate and buy me out. I'm not willing, exactly, but I don't know what else to do. I can't stay in, and I don't want to get out. And they offered me a lot of money—a lot of money. So I left it to my lawyers and ducked out."

"What would you do with a lot of money, Mr. McEwen?" she asked, curious.

He spread his hands impotently. "God knows. There's a man sat in with us when I had the first meeting with the syndicate—I don't know who he is, and it don't matter, anyhow, but he's a living sample of what money'll do to a man.

"That's all he is—money. You'd know it just to look at him. He's—oh, he's awful. Acted tired of everything, I mean. Bored to death. Somebody told me his income's half a million dollars a year—think of that, for a young man! And all he thinks about is trying to make it bigger. He's always had it—it's bit him hard. And if we make a trade, I'll have his money and he'll have some of my worries. Darned if I don't believe he'll have the best of it.

"See what I mean? The idea of a man that can do anything he wants to having to buy some worries to keep him interested. And I'm selling my worries so's to have time to play—and I don't know how to play. I guess money makes trouble for everybody, whether they've got it or not."

"But you know what you like to do, don't you?"

"I guess I do!" he said emphatically.

"Well?"

"Why," he said, his face lighting up, "first, I'd build me a nice bungalow here for the winter and one down on Cape Cod for the summer. I never lived in a whole house since I was 17. Tenements—then flats—then apartments and hotels."

"And clubs, I suppose?" she said.

"No; Elizabeth don't approve of clubs. Well, then, I'd take a year off and go around the world while the houses was going up. Yes, sir, I'd see everything from London to Calcutta. I've read about all kinds of places I want to see, and I'd just amble along and see 'em. And then I'd come back and live in my houses. I'd have automobiles and go on long trips"—

"Why, haven't you a car now?"

"Oh, yes, but I don't use it much, only to get back and forth from the factory. Elizabeth don't care for touring. And I'd give big dinners and things, and on the Cape I'd get me a little schooner yacht, and down here"—— He laughed shyly. "This is the funniest of all—I'd take a lesson from a professional every single day. Just so I could get around under a hundred. Under a hundred just once, and then I'd be satisfied. A hundred and twelve's the best I ever did."

"An all this time you wouldn't be doing anything for Mrs. McEwen?"

He gazed at her reproachfully. "That was what I will be doing all the time. I'm only saying what I'd do if I was going to be selfish about it. She'd be an awful handsome woman if she wanted to. And if she'd only get herself interested in people instead of—instead of vegetables and dustless dusters and Romeo-Polyphemus, or whatever the name of the darned thing is, she's be an awful good entertainer, too. But that's why I'm scared of selling out. I don't know what we'll do."

There was a moment's silence. "Isn't it too bad that we can't average up somehow?" she said. "I'm doing so much that I haven't time to do anything. Just idling. I'm like the man who was so lazy that he used to get up before sunrise every morning, so as to have more time to loaf."

"But you'd be such a good companion," he said. "You'd be at home anywheres. Money don't count; it's companionship. You and your husband must have awful good times together. I wish I could meet him. When's he coming down?"

"Saturday night."

"Oh!" he said. "I'm sorry it isn't sooner. Our trains'll pass each other at the junction. I'd like to tell him what a lucky man he is."

She failed to express a similar sorrow, but he excused her on the ground of preoccupation.

For three successive mornings he had played a round of golf with her, and for the rest of each of these three days he had sat happily in the sunshine and enjoyed the recollection. No one else had paid him any attention; he had been undisturbed, and he appeared content.

Nor had he seen her at the hotel in the evenings; he had looked for her, but his search had gone unrewarded—and he had said to himself, philosophically, that perhaps it was just as well, since he was thereby prevented from creating gossip.

To the extent their ages would permit they had become friends. Their sense of humor was parallel; their appreciation of the out-of-doors was similar.

"You'd better figure my going back Tuesday."

His reminiscences amused her immensely, and he listened to her anecdotes of sport and travel with the widening eyes of a child who hears fairy stories. And constantly, without sensing it, he made her more and more a confidante, until she knew him down to the least significant reaction. Of herself she had said nothing that couldn't be shouted in a public square.

* * * * * * * *

He was sitting in the sunlight by the clubhouse on Saturday afternoon, and his attitude was dejected.

She came up behind him and spoke softly.

"Oh!" said Mr. McEwen, and although his eyes brightened, they dulled again immediately.

"What's wrong?"

He endeavored to smile. "Telegram from my lawyers. They've closed. I guess I'm a rich man now. It makes me feel sort of sick."

The girl hesitated and mentally broke an engagement without the slightest regret.

"Come and take a walk, then—you mustn't act like this on your very last afternoon, you know."

"Guess I will," he consented apathetically. "Whereabouts?"

It was to a beautiful region of long-leaf pine and holly that she led him, a grove that was cathedral-like in its calm solemnity and peace. He had remained entirely incommunicative, and she had respected his mood. They looked like an admirably sympathetic father and daughter out for an airing.

"I wish to thunder I could just give it all to you," he said suddenly.

"Why?" she inquired with a start.

"Because you've got everything else but that—and you'd know how to use it. You need it, too."

"But what makes you think I need it?"

She was reminded of the incident of the lost golf ball, and simultaneously she was moved by doubt as to whether her recent conduct had been entirely correct.

"Girls like you always need money. Old folks can't ever really enjoy themselves, anyhow. It makes me shiver—Mrs. Clement, I'm worth rising a million dollars. Think of that! More'n a million dollars Me! At my age! All my life I've slaved to get there—and now I've got there, where's the happiness?"

"You've got it yourself."

"No, I haven't! I'm not happy. I'm all worm-eaten. I don't want money. I want what nobody can ever buy and most people just throw it away when they've got it. I didn't throw mine away, but it was stole. I didn't have it. I can't have it—ever. I wasn't meant to have it. Youth! Those things I talked to you about the other day, houses and all—I wouldn't get any pleasure out of 'em if I had 'em. Me with a yacht—alone! Just foolishness—like a man thinking a diamond scarfpin would make him stop being lonesome in the desert." He turned to her.

"Child, if I could give you that money right this minute, and then watch you be happy with it, why—why, it'd do me 10 times as much good in a day as it will in a year. That's gospel truth."

"Oh, Mr. McEwen!" She was beginning to have her qualms.

"Don't think I'm getting soft-headed Mrs. Clement. Some folks have got the knack of being rich without being spoiled; you're one of 'em. I told you it kind of nauseated me to look back over all the years it's taken me to get what I don't want now I've got it. Only—can I preach to you just once more?"

"I wish you would."

* * * * * * * *

He looked at her with that calm serenity for which she would always remember him.

"My dear," he said, "hang on to your husband. Go where he goes—stay where he stays. Learn to play the game he likes. Wear the clothes he likes. If he wants that you should have expensive things he can't really afford—let him get 'em for you sometimes. Learn to talk his language—take an interest in his business. And don't forget, whatever else you do, to let him go off by himself once in a while—to keep him freshened up and anxious to get back to you again. But don't you stay away from him like this; don't have your fun while he's tending to business. That won't strike him as fair, any more'n it strikes Elizabeth as fair for me to be down here this week.

"Don't you bother about money, either. If you had it, you'd be happy, because you're the kind of girl could stand it—but you're the kind of girl ought to be happy without it. Money don't count for shucks. It's living together—playing together—thinking together—and if you don't when you're young you can't learn when you're old. I can't. That's why this money flabbergasts me so. Lord, I hope that man of yours knows what a fine girl he's got. I ought to be preaching to him instead of you. I don't know what I laid into you for, anyway. You're all right. Just so each of you thinks the other's fair—that's all there is to it."

"I'm glad you think so, Mr. McEwen," she said soberly.

"I'm going back tonight," said the elderly gentleman, "and before I go I want to give you a little small present. You don't even need to be scared to show it to your husband. You won't mind that, will you?"

"I won't need anything to remember you by."

"Well, you'll only remember me by this one about two weeks, and I guess that'll be plenty long enough." He smiled brightly at her. "Now I'm all cheered up and you've done it again. I never saw such a girl as you are for cheering folks up. Come by it natural, do you, or is it something you've had to practice?"

* * * * * * * * *

Whichever it was, it didn't seem to apply to herself after they had returned to the clubhouse, and she had made her excuses to him, and fled. Indeed, she was so far removed from cheering herself up that she went home and cried for half an hour. She told herself fiercely that she had been an idiot to listen to Mr. McEwen at all. She told herself that he was in his dotage, and that, given the opportunity, he would very likely have developed into a friend of the chorus girls. She told herself that he was a sanctimonious old busybody; and then she got up and ministered carefully to her eyes so that no one—and especially Mr. McEwen—would suspect that she had been crying.

She was on the station platform when the hotel bus came up: Mr. McEwen was the first passenger to alight.

"Mrs. Clement!" he said. "Why—I'm surprised!"

"You didn't think I'd let you go off without saying good-by, did you?" she reproved him.

"Well, well, well! And you came all the way down here—I certainly am surprised!"

"Are you sure?" She was looking at a small and neatly tied parcel under his arm. Mr. McEwen reddened.

"Well, I had to say so to be polite, didn't I?"

"I mustn't let you miss your train—it'll start as soon as those trunks are aboard."

"I'll keep my eye on it. I'm awful glad you came down. You've been almighty kind to me these three or four days, Mrs. Clement, and old people feel flattered."

"You've been kind to me, too."

"Oh, no. He glanced apprehensively at the baggage car. "Well, as long as there's only about half a minute left, I'm going to tell you something." He caught his breath and his cheeks grew rosy red. "You're the nicest girl I ever met in my life—except Elizabeth! Good-by, Mrs. Clement. I've loved to meet you. Here! Here's your present. I know it's something you want. Good-by."

"Wait a minute," said the girl. "Here's your present, you dear old thing!" And with tears in her eyes she kissed Mr McEwen, who started violently. His own eyes were shining like stars.

"By gum!" he said softly. "That takes me back about 40 years." Mr. McEwen swallowed hard, opened his mouth without saying anything more, turned his back and went up the steps of the nearest car. The train bumped into slow motion; Mr. McEwen came down to the lowest step and spoke to the girl, who was walking along the platform beside him. "I'll never forget you—never," he said rapidly. "You've helped me feel a lot better about everything, Mrs. Clement—so I can go home and try to be nicer to Elizabeth. You're a dear. You're a dear girl. Good-by. I do wish you could have met Mrs. McEwen." The train was running more swiftly now; he waved his hand. "Keep chums with him!" said Mr. McEwen. "Good luck! Keep chums—and God bless you!"

And climbed laboriously up the steps again, and out of sight.

The scoop - shaped basket in which the ball is caught and hurled back.

Jai-Alai makes tennis seem as tame as ping-pong, and there's no end to the thrills for the spectator — Gambling is the chief object so far as the public is concerned

By KARL K. KITCHEN.

WE WERE fully four blocks from the corner of the Calle Concordia and Lucena when we heard a roar which sounded like the rush of waters at Niagara.

"The Blues are winning!" shouted my Cuban cicerone.

"Sounds more like the Reds!" I replied, as the roar increased in volume, due to our motor's speed down the narrow calle.

"You mean the Whites," corrected my companion. "The first match tonight is between the Whites and the Blues."

I did not think it of sufficient importance to inform my friend that I was thinking of the Bolsheviki and he would not have seen the point of my joke if I had explained it. He was too intent on reaching his seat in the Fronton to think of anything. And for good reason. He had a $500 bet on the Blues.

So we dropped the conversation and, parking the car, dashed into the huge building which loomed up before us. There an amazing sight greeted my eyes. Four thousand of the most excited men I ever saw in my life were shouting at the top of their lungs while four men, equipped with peculiarly shaped wicker baskets, were playing a sort of glorified handball on an enormous stone court.

Of course, I knew it was jai-alai. A dozen Cubans who had urged me to be sure and witness it had explained it more or less thoroughly. But they had utterly failed to convey the mental picture which I received when I stepped into the Fronton, as the building in which this game is played is called.

No mere description can give any idea of this amazing game as it is played in Havana. The game itself, of course, is easily described. It is simply the old Spanish "pelota," which was derived from the same simple sport of which our modern games of tennis and handball are variations.

Despite the fact that it is the fastest and most difficult game of skill I have ever witnessed, the sport itself sinks into insignificance as compared with the behavior of its audience. There is no doubt that it is the most popular public indoor pastime in Havana. Three nights a week and also on Sunday afternoon the Fronton, which covers an entire city block, is filled with several thousand excited Cubans, who wager tens of thousands of dollars on their favorite teams and players. It is the biggest gambling hall in the Western Hemisphere. And the betting is continuous and the odds are constantly changing and red-capped betting messengers are everywhere in evidence.

If some enterprising American sporting man would introduce this game of jai-alai into America as it is played in Havana, they would become millionaires in six months. But as betting is forbidden in practically all the states where it would be profitable to exhibit it, Americans will have to go to Havana to witness it. Without betting it is doubtful if jai-alai would draw more than a handful of Cubans, although it is the Spanish national ball game. The Cubans want to gamble, and because jai-alai gives them that opportunity in a peculiarly interesting and hazardous fashion, it is the most interesting pastime in Havana.

When we arrived at our seats, which were close to the betting ring, the first match between the Whites and the Blues was almost over. We had lingered over dinner on the terrace of the Dos Hermanos, a delightful restaurant overlooking the harbor, and it was nearly 9 o'clock when we reached the Fronton. The jai-alai games are scheduled to start at 8 o'clock, and as far as I could find out, they are the only performances of any kind in the Cuban capital that start on time. But even the finish of this first match was so exciting that it got into my blood before half a dozen points had been scored.

"The Blues or the Whites?"

Imagine a rectangular stone court 210 feet in length and 36 feet in width, with four players serving and returning a ball against a wall fully 150 feet away from where they are standing, sometimes catching the ball in midair and hurling it back against the front wall so that it rebounds the entire 210 feet.

The players are not armed with tennis racquets, but with scoop-shaped baskets which are fastened to their right arms and they have not only to catch the ball in the cesta, as it is called, but hurl it back against the front wall so that it will strike between two parallel lines, which, with the boundaries of the court, make a surface 36 feet square.

No game that I have ever seen requires half as much strength, endurance and skill as jai-alai. A championship tennis match is like a game of ping-pong beside it. The physical effort of hurling the ball against the front wall from the 150-yard line is prodigious, let alone the skill that is required to catch it. And the game is played so fast that only one in the pink of condition can handle it. Consequently it is not surprising that no one takes up jai-alai as one does golf, for instance. Only players who have been trained from childhood are able to play it, at least professionally.

As luck would have it, the Blues won the first match of 25 points. This was the signal for the wildest sort of demonstration, despite the fact that everyone had been cheering on tiptoes for nearly 50 minutes. Higino and Elola, the members of the winning team, were almost assaulted by their admiring friends, who had won money on them. The fact that they were wringing wet with perspiration and practically exhausted did not prevent them from being kissed and embraced by the crowd until they were carried to their dressing rooms.

Place your bets on the next quinella," urged my cicerone, who was highly pleased over the victory of the Blues, which had almost doubled his $500, since the odds were about even.

"Whom should I bet on?" I asked unable to make a choice between the six Spanish names announced for the first quinella, or battle royal, for six points.

"Larrinaga is the favorite," he replied. "Bet $25 on him and I think you'll cash in."

As at the race track at Oriental Park, the pari-mutuel betting system is used, as well as direct betting with the bookmakers. And we left our seats to buy our tickets on Larrinaga and take a little liquid nourishment.

The player has to step lively.

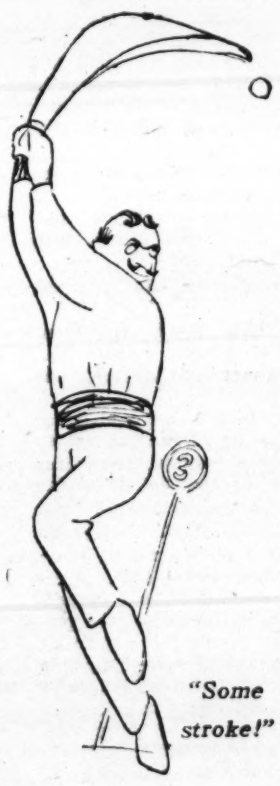
The Fronton is more than a mere temple for jai-alai. It is the home of 12 bars and the ideal place for anyone on a liquid diet to spend an evening. The intervals between the matches are usually long, but there have not been any complaints about it. The jai-alai games do not get the smart set of Havana, except on very rare occasions. The fair sex is represented only by a few American women in the boxes in the first balcony. Jai-alai is a man's game as far as Havana is concerned and it is just as well so. I'm in favor of it.

A warning bell sent us scurrying back to our seats for the quinella, which proved even more exciting than the first match between the White and the Blues. The game began between two players, who held the court until one of them scored. The loser then surrendered his place to a third player, who continued to hurl the ball back and forth against the distant wall with his opponent until another point was scored. The loser was then replaced by a fourth player, and so it continued until six points were scored by one player, who, of course, was the winner of the quinella.

The playing was even faster than in the foursome and the constant replacing of the losing players and the changing scores made the match amazingly exciting. At one time Larraniga had five points to his nearest rival's 3, but Echevarria, by a combination of luck and brilliant plays, succeeded in scoring the needed six points first.

Throughout the entire match there was as much excitement among the spectators as is only encountered in the ninth inning of a tie game in a big league baseball game, when there are two out and three men on bases. Difficult returns of the ball, which often caused the players to perform unbelievable contortions, caused shouts and cheers which I expected would raise the roof at any moment. Even an actors' equity meeting during the recent strike was quiet as a ward of sleeping babies compared with the Cuban jai-alai "fans" during a quinella.

A second match for 30 points between new teams of Whites and Blues followed the usual interval for bet placing and drinking. It was called off, however, when the score was 12 to 8 in favor of the Blues, because of the sudden illness of one of the White players. It was whispered that he had bet a lot of money on himself and that when he saw he was losing the match he decided it was better to lose 30 cents on the dollar than the whole amount. At any rate, those who bet on the Whites received about two-thirds of their money back and the holders of Blue tickets won in about the same proportion. All the bets were cashed on the basis of the score of 12 to 8, minus, of course, the betting commission.



"Some stroke!"

In some countries the sudden calling off of an important match on which tens of thousands of dollars had been wagered would have resulted in a dead jai-alai player. But in Havana the crowds don't get excited about such practices. There were knowing smiles, shrugs of

Among the spectators.

"Now that," said Mr. McEwen, "is going to make my breakfast taste better."

It was 4:30 on the afternoon of the same day when next she saw him, and during the brief interval he had never been very far from her thoughts. His innocent simplicity had refreshed her; more than that, it had set her to wondering how it could have linked itself to sorrow. He fascinated her, because she felt that she was presenting to the world the same aspect that he presented—of smiling marytrdom.

As she came swinging into the clubhouse at 4:30 she saw him sitting idly contemplative by the fireplace; she bowed pleasantly, not too familiarly, but just enough, and went on down through the dancing pavilion to the sunny corner where she liked best to wait for her friends to drift in from the links and fields. Today she had a dual purpose in going there; the second had been engendered by the sight of Mr. McEwen by the fireplace. She could easily have paused by his chair and brought about an effortless conversation, but she wanted him to come to her. She wanted to go a little apart and make him come to her. She was incredibly feminine.

It took him 10 solid minutes of deliberation, but at last he came. He was as diffident and embarrassed about it as a boy, but he was nevertheless suffused with a certain pride in the undertaking and with deep satisfaction in the accomplishment. It was precisely this sensation of achievement which she had wanted him to experience, because she deduced that he had missed the joy of experiencing it often.

"Please, Mrs. Clement"—

Her reception of him was staged perfectly. "Oh! How do you do again, Mr. McEwen? Sit down, won't you?" Mr. McEwen delayed. "Are you—expecting somebody?"

"Y-e-e-s," she said tardily, "but"——

He snatched at the tiniest opportunity. "Would it—be too much to ask you to have some tea, or something?"

She lingered over the answer just long enough to arouse his fears, set him to wondering if he had erred, intensify his feeling that she was popular and desirable—and then she nodded. "I'd like it immensely. Here?"

"Anywhere you say." Having gained the point, he lost not a second's time in beckoning imperatively to a waitress. "I've been afraid I offended you this morning, Mrs. Clement."

"How's that?"

"By being so personal."

She surveyed him from under her long lashes; and of a sudden she was filled with vast contempt for all the cheap veneer and superficiality of the usual discourse she indulged in. The repartee of the sexes, the rapid-fire dialogue of smart flippancy, the direct personal conversation—all this was so blatant, so cloying in comparison with the frank and earnest pleasure of an old man in her much-sought society.

"You could never offend anybody, Mr. McEwen."

"Well," he said, "some folks think when an old man takes any interest in a young woman, there's something funny about it." He didn't add that he felt this the more keenly because he was fairly well-to-do, and she had already confessed, on the golf course, to what he construed as genteel poverty. He never suspected that she knew his thoughts as clearly as though he had spoken them.

"Funny?"

"Yes, to laugh at—and to talk about, too. I hate to have anybody misunderstand me. You'd think it was a crime to grow old. By gum, you would! When you said 'tea' did you mean tea, or did you mean something else?"

"I meant actual tea. Oolong, please—nothing else. No, really."

"All right. Coffee for me. I never learned to drink tame drinks like tea." He dismissed the waitress as imperatively as he had summoned her. "Well, I'm glad you didn't think I was one of these cradle snatchers. What's the matter?"

* * * * * * * *

The girl had gestured past him; and two young men, intercepting the gesture halfway, had gloomily diverted their course to another direction. They were both highly tailored young men, dressed rather too beautifully in sport clothes to imply any great proficiency at anything.

"Nothing. I just don't want to be disturbed."

Mr. McEwen gazed over his shoulder. "Those friends of yours?"

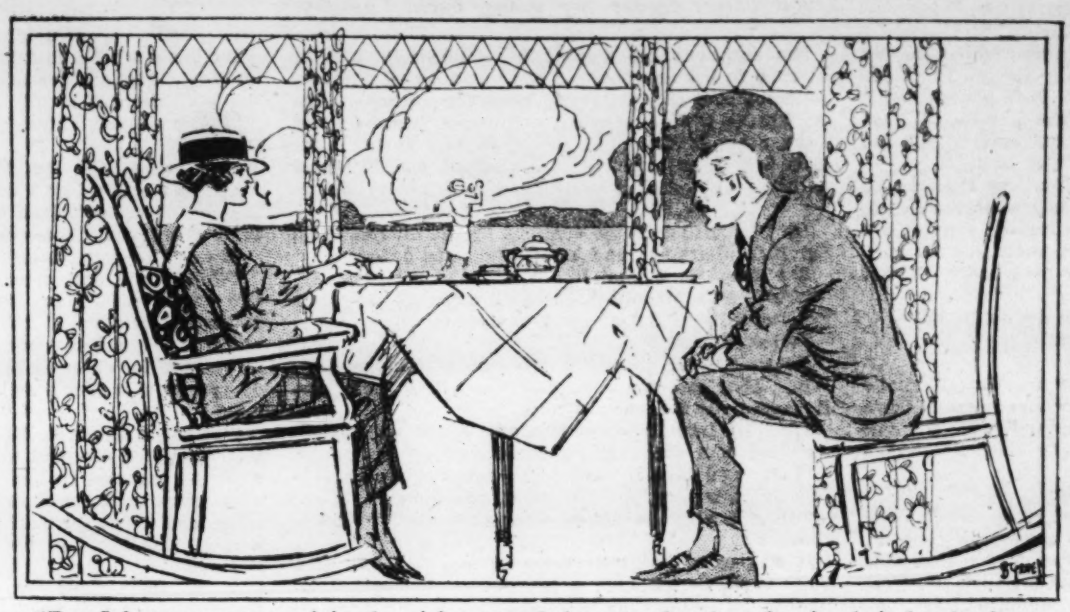
"Yes. Do you know them?"

"I've heard 'em talking in the locker room," he said grimly.

She raised her eyebrows. "You're quick at decisions, Mr. McEwen, aren't you?"

"I've had to be. You oughtn't to have friends like those two boys—now, that is personal. I'm sorry. It's none of my darned business, and I know it. Only if your husband could have heard the way they go on when there aren't any women around, I doubt if he'd want you to be one of the women around when they're out here on their good behavior. That's all."

She regarded him with deep gravity. "Those are two of the most prominent young men in Chicago, Mr. McEwen. They happen to be rather prominent down here. In fact, I"——



"But I hate to see you friends with men who've got the thoughts in their heads those boys have."

The elderly gentleman sat forward on the edge of his chair and raised his hand in self-deprecation. "I'm a plain nuisance, I suppose," he said, "and I don't want that you should think I'm finding fault with everybody all the time, but ever since this morning I've sort of had you on my mind. It struck me too bad that you're all alone in a place like this, where people haven't got anything to do but forget they've got any responsibilities. Your husband's off tending to business, and he can't see you. Well, you say they're prominent in Chicago. I guess you could say Nero was prominent in Rome once, too. I guess would could say Boss Tweed was prominent in New York. Not that it's a good comparison; it's just for the sake of—— But I hate to see you friends with men who've got the thoughts in their heads those boys have, and if they didn't have 'em they couldn't very well talk the way they do. I'm not any saint, and I'm not any tough old sinner, either—but I do have to draw the lines somewheres."

His eyes softened. "I had a little girl once—she'd have been about 20 now—and I kind of judge young men by whether or not, from what I see and hear of 'em, I'd have wanted her to know 'em very well."

She looked out of the window toward the putting clocks. "Of course, Mr. McEwen, it's a little unusual, to say the least"——

"I know; I know all about it. But, you see, I'm only here for just a day or two; it needn't make any difference to you what I think. Of course, I needn't have said it right out like that, but it just sort of shocked me a minute. What's that matter to you? Only if your husband"——

"Ah!" she said, relieved. "Here's our tea!"

* * * * * * * *

The elderly gentleman wasn't sure whether he had been forgiven or not, and his manner was still apologetic, when, at the first triumphant crash of the orchestra, one of the two young men stepped nimbly up to them and caught the girl's eye. "This one?" he inquired, with perfunctory courtesy and great confidence.

"Not dancing at all today, Jerry," she said. "Thanks, awfully, but"——

The elderly gentleman was troubled. "Have I gone and spoiled your afternoon?" he asked in an undertone.

"Not a bit. I didn't really want to dance, anyway." This was another purely feminine touch, done mechanically according to the schedule for such things.

"I want to hear all about Mrs. McEwen and why she doesn't come down to protect you against designing creatures like me. Maybe I'm sort of prominent, too."

"Now, that," said Mr. McEwen, stirring his coffee vigorously, "puts me right in my place, or I haven't learned a thing since I've been married." Again he grew crimson, just as he had done this morning.

"I'm waiting," she prompted, and saw that his lips were tightly compressed. Whatever it was that he didn't want to tell, he was resolving with all his might to keep a secret. But the girl was pretty, and clever, and patient, and although Mr. McEwen was adamant in his resolution, he finally was led and guided and unwittingly managed until he had said enough, and left enough unsaid, to give her a very accurate picture of the lady he had left at home.

* * * * * * * *

It seemed that as a boy Mr. McEwen had been brought up on the ragged edge of affluence. He had been passionately fond of sports, passionately eager for fresh experiences and the citizenship of the world.

At 17, just before the boy was to enter college, his father had failed in business, and died soon after. McEwen had found himself the support of a hysterical mother and an anemic sister. It was the old story of repressed longings and overwork, privation and dogged courage. Fifteen years of relentless plodding it had taken him to get his head above water; after that he had gone into business for himself, fought night and day for a decade, and failed. Begun over again, married, and won success—and believed that the time had come to bring his dreams out of cold storage.

Mrs. McEwen, however—and this he hadn't anticipated because he had never before enjoyed sufficient leisure to make her close acquaintance—had proved to be a chronic negative. Her only positive life lay within the four walls of her house.

She had no desire to travel, and considered it a mere weakness of character. She had no appreciation of the out-of-doors. She abhorred sports and couldn't even name the face cards in a pack. She regarded dancing as silly and the theater as futile. Romance was another name for addle-headedness. Golf was for children and those in second childhood. Resort hotels were the lairs of highbinders. Fine clothes were vanity and jewels an abomination unto the Lord. Money was meant not for spending, but for hoarding. Music was a greater or lesser noise, unendurable except in church.

"Mrs. McEwen is a great reader," said the elderly gentleman enthusiastically. She has a fine mind—a fine mind. You can't catch her on anything that has to do with books. Books or religions. In fact, I think she could write a book on the history of religions herself. It's the depth of it appeals to her. She's made a sort of specialty of it. She's really an extraordinary woman, Mrs. Clement—quite extraordinary. I don't know how many different people have told me that. You can see why I'm in such a hurry to get back to her. It don't seem fair for me to be down here having all this fun"——

"Yes," said the girl thoughtfully, "I can see that without half trying."

"And it's going to be sort of a queer life for us after next month," he remarked. "I feel as though I've got to get back and study over it with Elizabeth. I won't know what to do with myself. I've been so busy always—you see, I've taken most of my fun out of building up the McEwen company. And when that's gone—I get real panicky wondering what I am going to do. Especially with her to look after, because it wouldn't be right for me to go off alone all the time, of course—and somehow I can't seem to work up much hurrah about the history of religions. It's an awful job a man takes when he gets married, Mrs. Clement—taking all the responsibility for making a woman happy."

"You're giving up your business?" she asked, subdued.

* * * * * * * *

He drew a long breath. "I'm selling out. You see, I'm not one of these blind men that always talks about retiring. A live man can't retire. But I've been going it pretty strong for close to 50 years, and I can't stand much strain any more. There's nobody to leave it to, either. And some rich men in New

Centenary of Florence Nightingale, founder of modern nursing, to be celebrated May 12—This remarkable woman who lifted nursing out of the class of drudgery and made it a profession, succeeded only after overcoming almost unsurmountable obstacles—Had keen sense of humor and used caustic wit on her opponents -o- -o- -o- -o- -o-

Florence Nightingale's home, near Romsey.

ONE HUNDRED years ago next month was born one of the most remarkable women that ever lived. Wherever beds of pain are made easier and human suffering is lightened, the centenary of Florence Nightingale will be an event, because she, more than any woman in the world's history, made possible the modern methods and devices whereby aid and comfort are given to the sick and wounded.

Moreover, it may be said, there have been few, either men or women, whose labor and sacrifice bore such magnificent fruits, and to whose work there now exists such a tremendous monument. For not alone was she the founder of modern nursing, but the scientific construction of hospitals is largely due to her thought and effort.

To those who have grown familiar with nursing and its important place in the life of peoples, it may seem fantastic that less than 70 years ago the nursing profession was commonly regarded as one which no respectable woman could enter, and which was virtually composed of somewhat hardened females whose greatest qualification was that of being "born nurses," and whose general failing was a fondness for drink.

Yet such was the case, and such was the field entered by Florence Nightingale, an English gentlewoman of wealth, position and culture, and she embarked upon that career only after seven years spent in overcoming the objections of family and friends, who felt that their acquiescence in her plans practically amounted to consigning her to the devil for all time.

Thus parental objection of the most determined sort, combined with popular superstition, hoary tradition, opposition from the medical profession and numerous other obstacles to prevent her from engaging in the career which was to make her immortal, and blaze the path for the vast humanitarian work that was to follow.

If the dead could speak, millions of soldiers who fell in the great war would rise and call her blessed, with that same humble gratitude which made the wounded Tommies from the Crimea turn in their hospital beds as she passed and kiss her shadow as it fell upon the walls.

Yet "The Lady With the Lamp" who was the subject of Longfellow's moving poem is shown by closer inquiry, to have been, in reality, very little like the Florence Nightingale of popular legend. She was not a divinely inspired girl, setting forth upon an idealistic quest in Joan of Arc fashion. The contrary is true. Miss Nightingale was a woman of great intellectual power and poise, whose saintly patience and practical forethought were spiced with an irrepressible sense of humor, which often found expression in caustic letters which fairly blistered people and conditions who tried her forbearance.

In addition she was an adroit politician, who "pulled wires" in the most fascinating fashion, and made and unmade high officers of state. Her sense of the practical was always to the fore. This may be illustrated by her reply to an enthusiastic nurse among the contingent which she took to the Crimea. As land hove in sight the exalted nurse exclaimed: "Oh, dear Miss Nightingale, let us not delay; let us go straight to nursing the poor fellows!" To which the lady in chief grimly observed: "The strongest will be wanted at the washtub."

Florence Nightingale, founder of modern nursing, the centenary of whose birth comes May 12.

This venerable vehicle was the best Florence Nightingale could find to aid her in the task of caring for wounded soldiers in the Crimean war. What a contrast to the high-powered auto ambulance of today!

The baby girl who was to become the living ideal of the now familiar Red Cross poster, "The Greatest Mother in the World," was born in Florence, Italy, May 12, 1820, and was named for the place of her birth. Her father was a man of high attainments, and his personal teaching was largely responsible for the high plane of her thinking in later years.

Early in life she conceived that she had a mission to perform, and she soon determined that it was to be among the suffering. Her first recorded essay at her profession was in the case of a dog whose legs had been broken, and which was to be shot. The girl of 16 years intervened, took charge of the dog, and nursed it back to soundness.

Social opportunities of the sort that would be the envy of most girls, even now, were placed in her way as she came into womanhood. Titled families formed the bulk of her parents' acquaintances. Summer months were spent in the great houses at Lea Hurst, near Romsey, and winters in London. Operas, teas, receptions and travel comprised her occupations. But she was not satisfied. Letters written during that period to her intimates were filled with references to her restless longing to "be of some use," and with railings at her "utterly worthless mode of existence."

But her first reference to her ambition met with horrified exclamations. "Why don't you become a cook?" asked her outraged mother.

The next seven years formed a repetition of such periodical scenes, with nothing to indicate that she was near to her objective.

A chance visit of her parents to Carlsbad, Germany, for the baths, however, gave her the opportunity she sought. Near there was the Deaconess establishment at Kaiserswerth, which was acknowledged as the one European hospital in which a woman could be employed without permanent disgrace. While her relatives enjoyed the pleasures of Carlsbad, she spent her time at Kaiserswerth in study, and thus got the rudiments of her training.

In an endeavor to erase these "dangerous" and "heretical" ideas from her mind, she was taken on a tour that included Egypt and Greece. She met many learned men and women, and invariably impressed them with her clearness and quickness of thought, and the virility of her temperament. So, her mother wailed:

"Why will not she be happy enjoying the reputation she has gained, and in staying at home and cultivating the gifts which God has given her?"

But "writing beautiful letters," and starring at "polite conversation" did not fill the wants of Florence Nightingale's soul. As she observed, she strove to say to herself: "Behold, the handmaid of the Lord—not the handmaid of correspondence, or music, or metaphysics."

When she was 25, however, there came into her life something that nigh realized her parents' hopes, and almost deprived the world of the whole-hearted labor of one of its greatest benefactors. The "something" was a man, and he was in love with Florence Nightingale. He was described as brilliant, of high station, noble character and amiable disposition. Whether Florence Nightingale loved him, and sacrificed her heart to her soul, is not clear to this day. It is certain that she held for him a strong affection; that she instinctively leaned on him for companionship and support, and that she wavered in the face of his repeated proposals of marriage. The evidence indicates that her sentiment for him was as great as impels most women to marriage.

She wrote to a friend: "I think some have every reason for not marrying, and that for these it is much better to educate the children already in the world and can't be got out of it, than to bring more into it."

So she renounced The Great Experience for the greater one.

She had accepted charge of a benevolent institution in London when the Crimean War broke out. Britain was electrified by dispatches telling of the storming of the heights of Alma, where, after a lapse of 40 years from continental warfare, the British soldier showed again his desperate courage.

In a few days, however, came the famous letters from "Our Special Correspondent" to the London Times, telling of the heart-rending conditions in British hospital ships and hospitals.

"The manner in which the sick and wounded are treated is worthy only of the savages of Dahomeny," he wrote. "In spacious buildings (furnished by the Turkish allies) where we were led to believe that everything was ready to relieve their pain and facilitate their recovery, it is found that men must die because the medical staff forgot that old rags are necessary to dressing wounds. * * * The wounded are left to expire in agony, unheeded and shaken off when

AT a distance of 200 yards he perceived her misfortune and was sorry for her, not simply because she was pretty, but rather because his own character expanded and grew pliant with sympathy on ever so slight a provocation. To be sure, when he had seen her on the first tee, three-quarters of an hour ago, he had admired her, approved her, and—after she had sent out a drive better than his own poor best—mildly envied her, but all that was incidental, and belonged to the past. The present fact that she had sliced a golf ball deep into the roughest rough imaginable, and, to all appearances, lost it among the underbrush, was what affected him.

Even so, he was entirely too sedate and too methodical to rush precipitately to her aid. He kept his sympathy (unlike his drives) within the proper bounds, and played on carefully, four rocketing shots, as though he were surveying the course by means of triangulation, until he had come abreast of her. Then he marked his own ball by depositing his bag of clubs beside it, and started briskly toward her. Started, to the extent of not more than a couple of strides, and stopped. Stopped in amazement, and perhaps a degree or two of pleasure and certainly in a mood of keen appreciation, for the girl, who had lost a golf ball after making an especially horrendous brassy shot out of a perfect lie, was humming happily to herself as she hunted for it, and angels could do no more.

"Hm! Hm!" he observed, as a warning signal. "Need any help?"

* * * * * * * *

The girl turned swiftly; and once again he was pervaded by approval and admiration. She was a trimly made little girl, not over 23 or 24, and alive with boyish energy and health. Her eyes were black and her hair was black; her cheeks were all that a connoisseur could have required by way of contrast. She was wearing a dark plaidish sort of skirt and a loosely knitted black sweater, and a smart little black straw hat, with a black satin ribbon looped about it, and all this fashionable blackness was relieved and rendered smarter yet by her wide tie, a gorgeous silken orange-amber with a leaping flame. The man couldn't to save his soul have defined that color, but he liked it.

"Oh!" she said, without affectation. "That's awfully nice of you."

"It's revenge," said the elderly gentleman, chuckling. "Back there on the first tee I thought to myself I ought to be ashamed to try to play round a course after the way you hit a ball. I thought to myself I'd give $50 if I could lam a ball like that. Sort of hard to play without caddies; you keep lifting your head up; and if you don't, you're just as like to lose 'em as not. Know where it landed?"

"Why, just about here, I thought." She prodded another bewhiskered tuft of wire grass with her iron. The rank vegetation reached nearly to her knees, and there was half an acre of it to search through.

"Pretty near hopeless," said the man, shaking his head. "They've got a cussed habit of crawling 'way under these leaves. If it was anywhere out in sight, you'd have seen it by this time. You better drop another."

"Can't afford it," she said, with a cheerful laugh.

The man looked uncomfortable. "Hm! What kind of a ball was it?"

"A Radio."

"Old one?"

"No," she sighed. "Brand-new. I'd hit it just twice."

His back was toward her. Unobtrusively he slipped his hand into the pocket of his homespun Norfolk jacket; brought it out again, clenched. You've got a wonderful disposition, anyhow. Play pretty good as a rule, don't you?"

She switched the iron through a patch of taller grass. "Oh, sometimes. But I've been playing ever since I was 15."

"Well, I been playing ever since I was 55. Hello! By gum, here she is, after all! Radio? There she is, sure enough!" He had stooped low over an isolated tuft; now he rose, proudly pointing to the brand-new ball in the middle of it. "That's pretty lucky. I'm glad I helped hunt. Guess you can take the wood to it."

She came forward with the animation usual to such good fortune.

"Where? Oh! Thank you, ever so much." She bent down, stared hard, and suddenly darted a puzzling, appraising glance toward the elderly gentleman, who was moving sedately off to the fairway. She hesitated, and all at once smiled very quietly to herself. She took a spoon and sent that spotless Radio a flashing hundred and forty yards well out into the course. Then, without exertion, she caught up to the elderly gentleman, who was playing six. "Won't you finish the round with me?" she inquired sweetly. "I was just hoping that somebody'd come along, and if we both watched"——

"I'd like to," responded the elderly gentleman, with prompt gratitude, and played seven without a tremor. "I was wishing back there on the first tee I could ask you to play around with me."

"Well—why didn't you?"

"I'm married," said the elderly gentleman.

"So am I," she echoed, and pitched neatly to the terraced green. "What difference does that make?"

"Because," he said, with the utmost simplicity, "if any of those shriveled-up old gossips at the hotel saw you and me starting off to shoot a round of golf at 8 o'clock in the morning, without any caddies—good-night!"

She smiled at his seriousness, but stopped smiling as he topped his eighth. "I like to come out early whether there are any caddies or not," she said. "It's the best time of the whole day—I can't ever quite decide whether I'd like to ride or play golf, but it's one or the other every morning."

"I like it, too," he said, "but I've got a different reason yet. I hate to have these skinny young squirts watch me chew up the course. By gum! She went in the back door! I got an 11. What were you?"

"Five."

He regarded her with quasi-veneration. "My!" he said. "Out of the rough, too. That's splendid. I bet you do most everything well. Do you? Ride horseback, and swim, and play tennis, and dance, and play cards—I know you do. You've got it in you. I bet you could have a good time most anywhere."

She laughed. "As a matter of fact, I can—have a good time most anywhere, I mean."

"People who don't bore 'emselves ought to be in the Beatitudes. Traveled a good deal, have you?"

"Not so much, but"——

"But you've been abroad? And like it?"

* * * * * * * *

His manner of asking questions was a little more intense than the questions themselves seemed to warrant, but she made allowances for a possible shortness of breath, and answered without any display of curiosity. "Oh, yes. Two or three times. I'm crazy about traveling."

He waited then until she had driven over a hideous pit and he had driven almost halfway to it. "Young woman," he said, "I congratulate your husband."

Her laugh was infectious. "That's sweet of you—but why?"

She happened to be looking at him at this moment, so that she perceived an astonishing series of phenomena. First he coughed so explosively that he fairly doubled himself up with the violence of it; second, he turned a ruddy shade of crimson; finally, he looked at her, and his whole expression was suggestive of capital guilt. When he attempted to speak he stammered. "I—I hope you don't take that too personal. I"——

"Oh, not in the least," she assured him. "It was a pretty compliment. Didn't you mean it?"

"I am not much on compliments," he said shortly. "There! You got a fine shot time before last. Whale her another so I can see how you do it."

"You're down for the season?" she inquired tactfully, after whaling it.

"Just for this week," he said, obviously relieved by the change of topic.

"Oh. You've been here before, I suppose?"

"Never. It's great, isn't it? Up North they're freezing."

"There's nothing I know to equal it. Not too warm or too cold—just right. Your wife must enjoy this weather, too. Does she play at all?"

"She didn't come," puffed the elderly gentleman, gouging out a huge divot with his mashie. "Ouch! I tore the cloth."

"Oh, you should have brought her!"

"She ought to have come," he corrected, and topped horribly toward the woods. "But she don't want to go anywhere—ever."

"Is she—an invalid?"

He gestured as though in imitation of a blacksmith. "Hard as nails. Say! You paste that ball just as though you meant it. By gum, you're dead to the hole! I knew back there on the first tee you could play this game. Oh, no, Mrs. McEwen don't want to go anywhere. She just likes to stay at home. So about once every two years I run off by myself, and I think to myself I'll have a good vacation, and then after four or five days I feel so darned mean I just go on home again. I've done that so much. So this time I didn't bother to fool myself. Didn't talk about a month and stay a week, talked about a week, and came Monday and I'm going back Saturday. Six days to the dot. You must have got another bogey."

"I did."

"I took seven. Well, here's the ninth. Are you going all the way round, or"——

She shook her head. "No, nine holes is plenty before breakfast."

"Quite right. Good common sense. Your honor." Whereupon, since she hooked slightly and the elderly gentleman sliced atrociously, they parted company for several hectic minutes.

* * * * * * * *

Later they strolled back to the big hotel together. By this time she had realized that, for all his cheery spirits, there was a certain permanent pathos under the surface of him; and because she was no less generous than he with her reserve fund of sympathy, she tried to analyze it. He was such an appealingly weathered old gentleman; his features were so kindly and so unwrinkled, his eyes so bright, his manner so courtly and engaging—all that mysterous atmosphere of disappointment which lurked about him was so perplexing. She thought that no one could have done a charity more innocently gracious than that act of his of dropping a new ball in the rough for her, out of compassion because she had lost hers. And his Old World reluctance to speak to her because, forsooth, he was married!

"I hope I shall see you again some morning," she said, and was annoyed that her voice sounded so formal.

"Thank you—so do I." He produced a card from his breast pocket. "That's my name, in case your husband should ask whom you've been out with—Robert McEwen of the McEwen Steel Co. It's generally considered a pretty safe name most anywhere. And your name, if I might"——

At the entrance to the lobby she gave him her hand, which he took gingerly, and her best smile, which he took as though by absorption. "Mrs. Clement," she said. "And my husband isn't down here either—but I know he'd certainly be glad to have me in Mr. McEwen's care." There could be no possible doubt of her sincerity.

Mrs. Wilkie is a good listener in more ways than one. Why is it, wonders Mrs. Wilkie, that a conversation one isn't meant to hear always sounds so awfully interesting? She is doing her best to smile sweetly and murmur "Yes" and "No" at appropriate intervals in the direction of Cousin Ed, but her heart is with a conversation two chairs or so away.

Mr. Roebuck and Mr. Chatty are both talkers and not listeners. Therefore, when Mr. R. and Mr. C. meet on the way home from business no subject gets much headway. Both want to talk and each is constantly interrupting the other.

CHARACTER SKETCHES

W. E. HILL

Three ladies of small town society talking over the latest item of local gossip. Mrs. Amidon, in the center, is a very good listener—so good a one, in fact, that if you can once get her started talking, and it's not hard to do, all the town gossip of the last ten years and further back is yours for the asking.

Art, talkative enough at all times, has been temporarily converted into a listener. The scene is one of those dry dinners, and Spencer P. Doughey, financier, is speaking at length on "The Relations of Business Ideals to the Civic Mass." Art used to go down to the bar to dodge these after-dinner guys, but in these days of prohibition what is a fellow to do?

The very grand type of conversation between two ladies who have met rather casually and are working overtime to impress each other. There are a great many references to the Queen of Belgium, how dull the town is out of season, "My husband on 'Change says," etc. Neither listens overmuch.

A dealer in personalities is the satiric Miss Widge, who has discovered that the attention of an entire roomful of listeners can be hers by retailing what happened to somebody, with just a few clever trimmings of her own invention to adorn the tale.

Mr. Dietsch, being a listener, has to stand for a lot, for, of course, every one who wants to talk picks on him. Mr. D., who lets the other fellows do all the talking, has gained the reputation of being a very clever, intelligent and witty fellow.

The most beautiful foot in America

CHOSEN BY THE BARON DE MEYER

FROM the capitals of Europe, patronized artist of society, portrayer of beauty, came the Baron de Meyer, to establish his atelier in New York because he had found American women the loveliest of all.

Striving for the ideal in all things, he sought the most beautiful foot in America, knowing that, when he succeeded, he would have found the loveliest in the world.

He studied the feet of famous actresses, of society beauties, of dancers and models. Finally, among all the thousands, he found his ideal.

This foot he studied. He posed it in many different ways. And, to give it the final touch of slender grace, he clothed it in a Dorothy Dodd shoe.

A few of the gravures which the Baron made have been gathered into a folio which will be given to women who are truly interested. These untouched photographic studies show how Dorothy Dodd shoes lend added charm to the most beautiful foot—how they will look on your own feet.

You will like their style and beauty—but you will love their utter comfort. As you wear Dorothy Dodd shoes day after day, you will see how they hold their shape, how they hug and fit in every line and curve, and how they allow you to walk with your whole foot.

Dorothy Dodd comfort means graceful poise rather than the awkward carriage that goes with an ill-fitted foot.

Whether the occasion calls for boot or pump, oxford or sport shoe, your nearby Dorothy Dodd Agency is ready to fit you. Your choice of leather, of color, of fashionable design awaits your pleasure.

Whatever your taste, you'll find it in Dorothy Dodd shoes. You, too, can have that added touch of charm which goes with the shoes that grace "the most beautiful foot in America."

A FEW BARON DE MEYER GRAVURES—showing some of the graceful poses of which are taken here, show how Dorothy Dodd shoes will look on your feet. Send for the Dorothy Dodd Style Book which pictures the "Most Beautiful Foot in America."

They afford you a choice of all the modish leathers. Many models are made in Shoe Soap Kid—a beautiful, lustrous black leather of exquisite softness and pliability that yields an amazing wear and that neither cracks nor hardens.

A Wife Too Many

Into the hotel lobby walked a beautiful woman and a distinguished man. Little indeed did the gay and gallant crowd know that around these heads there flew stories of terror—of murder—and treason. That on their entrance half a dozen detectives sprang up from different parts of the place.

Because of them the lights of the War Department in Washington blazed far into the night. With their fate was wound the tragedy of a broken marriage, of a fortune lost, of a nation betrayed.

It is a wonderful story, with the kind of mystery that you will sit up nights trying to fathom. It is just one of the stories fashioned by that master of mystery,

CRAIG KENNEDY
The American Sherlock Holmes
ARTHUR B. REEVE
The American Conan Doyle

He is the detective genius of our age. He has taken science—science that stands for this age—and allied it to the mystery and romance of detective fiction. Even to the smallest detail, every bit of the plot is worked out scientifically. For nearly ten years America has been watching his Craig Kennedy—marveling at the strange, new, startling things that detective hero would unfold. Such plots—such suspense—with real, vivid people moving through the maelstrom of life! Frenchmen have mastered the art of terror stories. English writers have thrilled whole nations by their artful heroes. Russian ingenuity has fashioned wild tales of mystery. But all these seem old-fashioned—out of date—beside the infinite variety, the weird excitement of Arthur B. Reeve's tales.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S BLESSED INTERVALS.

President Wilson is quoted as saying:—"There are blessed intervals when I forget, for one moment or another, that I am the President of the United States. One means by which I forget is to get a good detective story, get after some imaginary offender and chase him all over."

Colonel Roosevelt said—"I did a lot of reading. I particularly enjoyed half a dozen rattling good detective stories by Arthur B. Reeve—some of them were corkers."

The Underwear a Hundred Women Ordered Made

A HUNDRED women who had never had satisfactory knit underwear.

Some had one difficulty—some had another. "Why can't we ever be pleased with knit union suits, just as we are with hats and gloves?" they asked.

Julius Kayser determined that they should be pleased.

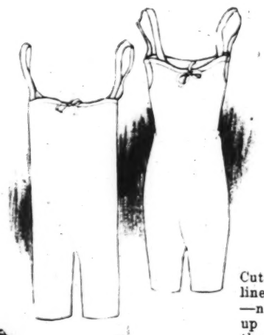
Starting with the finest, sheerest, combed yarn, Kayser cut a hundred suits by hand, one at a time, from accurate paper patterns. Sloped the shoulders so they would not slip. Made the back nice and narrow, the front full. Put the triggest tailored finish on some—sewed the daintiest silk ribbons into others.

The first hundred suits finished were sent to the hundred women. Then their comments began to come. "Can't I get more than just one of these wonderful suits?" "How did you make the seat so it never gaps?" "I never before had a vest with enough room at the arms." "At last a union suit that really fits me."

You can buy these very same Kayser Marvelfit suits in any department store or specialty shop. They cost no more than ordinary knit union suits. You have only to look for the Kayser label, which is sewed in every one. Julius Kayser & Co., New York.



Cut to follow the lines of the body—not straight up and down—that is why Kayser Knit Underwear gives comfort to one's inner consciousness as well as charm to one's outer appearance

One of the most interesting features of this underwear is its back cut narrower than its front, so that it fits smoothly in back, yet never binds in front

What do you know of the pillows you sleep on?

—the importance of care in selecting pure pillows

YOU bury your face in your pillow—a third of your life is spent close to it—in the most intimate contact possible. Surely nothing should be purer—fresher—sweeter. Surely you should know most certainly what sort of feathers (and what besides feathers) are inside the pillows on which you and your family rest their heads so trustingly.

Most people are shocked to learn that pillows frequently are made of "used" second hand feathers, gathered, perhaps, from discarded pillows and feather-beds that have been exposed to infection, "renovated" after a fashion that leaves much of the foreign matter—including animal matter—still on the quills. The sterile Restwel process, on the other hand, applies the surgeon's standard of purity to every feather.

The Only Pillows Filled with Washed Feathers

Every feather in every Restwel is actually washed—thoroughly purified by torrents of pure water through which pass high velocity electric currents which annihilate animal life. Every feather is steamed again and again, and shaken and sorted in a ten-fold process through which thousands of pounds of feathers are carried by powerful air-blasts untouched by human hands. This is the exclusive Restwel process.

Restwel Pillows and Restwel Mattresses are on sale at Bedding, Furniture and Department Stores near you. If you don't know where, write us.

DANGEROUS filth or soft, downy purity may be inside the same non-committal ticking. Buy pillows by the name—the Restwel name—and be sure of their history.

ARE your pillows flat? Feathers that have been slept on too long are mostly quill and dust. Throw them away and get new pillows—pillows that you know are pure.

SILKY, resilient, durable Kapok makes the lightest, richest mattress—the Restwel mattress. No lumpiness, no harboring of animal life, no need to remake a Restwel mattress

Every Day People Judge You by Your Nails

Have they the beauty they so easily can gain?

"HOW beautifully turned out, how correct," you thought—until you caught a glimpse of her nails.

Then, "Shocking!" you said to yourself.

And that one glimpse of her carelessly groomed hands left an impression that you never forgot.

Do you realize how easy it is to keep your nails lovely—so lovely that they lend you that assurance which comes from the knowledge that even the most critical eye can find nothing but immaculate perfection?

The secret of beautiful nails lies in the care of the cuticle. This is the most important part of a manicure. To cut the cuticle or force it back with a sharp instrument is ruinous. Such rough methods are the cause of most ragged, unkempt nails. The more you cut the cuticle the faster it grows. It becomes tough, thick, and hangnails appear.

You can have nails that add to your attractiveness

You can keep your nails lovely without injuring the cuticle. The Cutex way of manicuring will keep them dainty.

Cutex is a harmless cuticle remover developed after years of experiment. Applied to the cuticle, it keeps the base of the nail smooth, firm, crescent-like. It maintains the even, regular curve which Nature intended it to have.

Wrap a little cotton around the end of an orange stick (both come in the Cutex package), dip it into the bottle of Cutex and work it around the base of the nails, gently pushing back the cuticle. Instantly the dry cuticle is softened. Wash the hands, pushing back the cuticle with a towel. The surplus cuticle will disappear, leaving a firm, even, slender nail base.

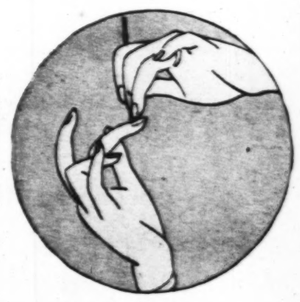
If you like snowy-white nail tips, apply a little Cutex Nail White underneath the nails directly from its convenient tube. Spread it under evenly and remove any surplus cream with an orange stick. Cutex Nail White will remove all discolorations from underneath the nails. Cutex Cake Polish rubbed on the palm of the hand and passed over the nails gives them a quick, waterproof polish. If you wish an especially brilliant, lasting polish, use Cutex Paste Polish first, then the Cutex Cake or Powder Polish. After washing, restore the polish by rubbing the nails lightly over the palm of the hand.

If your cuticle has become sore and tender from cutting, apply Cutex Cold Cream, or if your cuticle has a tendency to dry and grow coarse, apply a bit of Cutex Cold Cream each night. This cream was especially prepared to keep the hands and the cuticle soft and fine.

Give yourself this manicure regularly. Make it as much of a habit as keeping your shoes shined. You will find that it is no trouble. It takes only about fifteen minutes a week to give your nails this complete manicure. But do not neglect this duty. Do not do it for one week and forget it the next. It is true that one Cutex manicure makes your nails look lovely; but you cannot keep them well groomed by irregular care. Give your nails a Cutex manicure regularly.

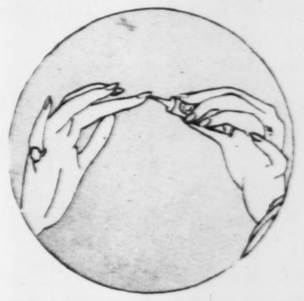
Just give your nails a few minutes' care once or twice a week, depending on how fast your cuticle grows, and they are always exquisite—smooth, shapely—a decided addition to your personal charm.

Cutex Cuticle Remover, Nail White, Nail Polish and Cold Cream are each 35 cents. The Cuticle Remover comes also in 65-cent bottles. You can get Cutex in any drug or department store in the United States and Canada and in any chemist shop in England.



TO KEEP YOUR CUTICLE SMOOTH

To remove overgrown cuticle, gently work around each nail base, pushing back the cuticle with an orange stick wrapped with a bit of cotton and moistened with Cutex. Wash the hands, pushing back the cuticle as you dry them.



NOW WHITEN THE NAIL TIPS

Apply a little Cutex Nail White directly from the tube underneath each nail. Spread evenly and remove any surplus Nail White with the orange stick.

A complete manicure set for only 20 cents

Mail the coupon below with 20 cents and we will send you the Cutex Introductory Manicure Set, not as large as our standard set, but containing enough of the Cutex preparations for at least six complete manicures. Send for it today. You will see after your first manicure how easy it is to have noticeably attractive hands. Address Northam Warren, 114 West 17th Street, New York City.
